Approach of Ex-President to Venezuelan Shores Alarming.

Power of Dictator Far from Broken and Revolution Threatens.

Real Sentiment Differs from Reports Published to Aid Pretender.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WILLEMSTAD (Island of Curacao) April 4:—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The government of Venezuela is in a panic, and it is reported here on what is considered good authority that President J. Vicente Gomez is about to turn over affairs to J. A. Velutini, the Vice-President of the republic, and seek seclusion in some spot where the timber is exceedingly tall and where the guns of foreign warships will be able to assure him protection.

One man, small in stature, but in power so big that his shadow falls across the country, even though he is far at sea, is the cause of the turmoil. He is former President Castro, dictator of his nation, but by many hailed as its protector from foreign aggression.

Every day brings Castro nearer to the shores he was forced to leave to seek health in Europe, and appearances are that the predicted revolution on his return will be realized sooner than was expected.

GOMEZ AMBITIOUS.

It was to Gomez that Castro turned over the government when he left Venezuela. The understanding was that Gomez was to rule in the absence of Castro and return the government to him. Gomez, however, was fired with ambition, and Castro had been out of the country only a short time when a wild story was sent out of a plot to assassinate Gomez. According to Gomez this was done at Castro's orders and the dispatches sent out to the world told how the heroic acting President went out, revolver in hand, overawed a whole regiment of soldiers and made Castro's brother prisoner.

The story, at the time, was taken with a grain of salt. It was repeated to Castro, who at the time was in France. Castro was asked if he had sent a cablegram that Gomez be assassinated, and replied:

"If I had wanted him killed, I would have had it done before I left. The story is foolish."

PLANNED SCARE.

Gomez proceeded to reorganize the government and make peace with the great powers. He granted all the demands made of him and had the courts indict Castro on charges of conspiring to murder. He arranged things so that he thought the former President would be afraid ever to return to his own land.

To all these acts Castro paid not the slightest heed. He went to a sanitarium, remained until his ailment was cured, and then started for home as calmly as though nothing had happened. Before he sailed from Bordeaux he more than hinted that he planned to start a revolution as soon as he arrived home.

It was decided by the steamship officials that they could not land Castro in Venezuela, but would put him off at Port of Spain, Trinidad. This port, however, is near enough to form a basis for revolutionary movements.

Castro is the idol of his people and Gomez's government has proved far from popular.

NICARAGUAN CRISIS.

STATE DEPARTMENT SILENT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Indications are that diplomatic relations between this country and Nicaragua are nearing a crisis, resulting from the failure of President Zelaya to adjust the Emery claim.

The reticence of the State Department in regard to the case indicates the situation is grave, and that there is little probability of any settlement on the basis proposed by Secretary Knox.

A significant fact is that J. H. Gregory, the American Chargé d'Affaires, who recently reached here from Nicaragua, is not expected to return to the Central American republic.

KING SERVANT OF POOR.

MADRID, April 4.—The royal family has returned to the capital for Holy Week, which will be celebrated with the traditional religious solemnity by the Spanish court. King Alfonso, assisted by the grandees, will wash the feet of twelve poor men on Thursday, in imitation of Christ, and subsequently will set before them with his own hands, a mammoth feast.

MUST CATCH CRAZY SNAKE.

HICKORY GROUNDS (Okla.) April 4.—Col. Hoffman, in command of the State troops hunting Crazy Snake and his troublesome Snake Indians, half-breeds and negroes, received orders tonight from Gov. Haskell to remain in the field until he captured the chief. A scouting party, led by Jim Starr, a full-blood Indian, and member of the Creek Council, is believed to be close on the trail of Crazy Snake.

Mme. Olive Fremstad, famous grand-opera star who says singers should not become mothers, said by Massachusetts woman to have been former kitchen maid.

SECRET OUT.

PRIMA DONNA WAS SERVANT,

MME. OLIVE FREMSTAD STIRS UP TROUBLE GALORE.

Her Theory Anent Perils of Matrimony and Maternity Brings Out Assertion That the Great Singer Was Once Kitchen Maid in Household of Massachusetts Woman.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WORCESTER (Mass.) April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When Mme. Olive Fremstad, famous on the grand opera stage for her portrayal of "Carmen" and other leading roles, opined that great singers could not become mothers without sacrificing their art, she stirred up a tempest of criticism from her sex that apparently has no limitation.

The latest contribution among the replies to Mme. Fremstad, is the statement of Mrs. Charles H. Fowler of Springfield, Mass., that the singer was once her kitchen maid. While this fact has little bearing on the merits of the question at issue, it is intimated by Mrs. Fowler, that a kitchen maid with a remarkable voice is not to be considered an authority on such profound subjects as maternity in art.

Fremstad has heard without apparent concern the replies of Gadski, Sembrich and Homer. Gadski said she had never reached the highest point of art until she became a wife and mother. Sembrich has been more of a favorite as the mother of five children than she was before she was thus blessed. Louise Homer, mother of twins, is still a favorite.

If that were not enough to annihilate Fremstad and her theory, there remains the crushing revelation that she herself is a demonstration of the fact that washing kettles and peeling potatoes is not an obstruction to the development of an artist.

Mrs. Fowler does not like Mme. Fremstad's talks against opera singers marrying and becoming mothers. The Fremstads came to America when Olive was 12. From the age of 6 she was known in certain parts of Sweden as a musical prodigy.

After they landed in Minneapolis nothing more is known of Olive's life for six years. It has always remained a mystery to even her closest friends, and is now revealed for the first time. At about the age of 16, she became a kitchen maid for Mrs. Fowler, according to the latter's statements to the press today.

Startled by the wonderful songs of her maid, Mrs. Fowler says she one day had her sing at an informal social affair for some guests. Her ability was quickly noticed, and Mrs. Fowler claims, she made her a member of her family and brought her out.

BURNS WITH OLD HOME.

Young Girl Perishes in Fire That Destroys Famous Virginian Mansion. Her Parents Injured.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WINCHESTER (Va.) April 4.—Miss Virginia Carter, young daughter of Reese B. Carter, was burned to death today in a fire which destroyed her home, "Yellow House," at Rest, this county.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter were badly burned in an effort to save their daughter.

"Yellow House" was more than 200 years old, and was the scene of many notable events during the Revolutionary and Civil wars. Gen. George Washington stayed there while on his way to Braddock's relief at Fort Duquesne, and during the conflict between the States it was the home of Miss Rachael Wright, whose information to Gen. Sheridan was of such value to the Federal army during his campaign that Congress voted her a gold medal.

Member of Good Citizens' League Beaten by Saloonist.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WELLSVILLE (O.) April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The long continued bitterness between the wet and the dry forces culminated in a street duel today in which two East Liverpool men, William Zellars and Ben Davidson were shot, the latter perhaps fatally, by Dr. Hamlin Barnes, a dentist, and a leader in the "Good Citizens League."

In a previous mixup between the forces, William Renoff of Wellsville, also a member of the league, was given a terrible beating by Frank Geisse, a former Wellsville saloonist. The two attacks occurred on the C. and P. railroad tracks, near the Ohio River, where was stationed a house boat on which, it is said, liquor was being sold.

Two hours after the Renoff-Geisse encounter, Dr. Barnes, following his usual custom of walking on Sunday afternoons, happened along the river front. While passing he was accosted by Zellars and Davidson. Scenting trouble because of the known antipathy of the liquor men against him, he warned them off and stepped around them. The men followed, however, throwing stones and when the doctor turned to seek safety behind a telephone pole, Zellars is alleged to have fired twice, neither shot taking effect.

Barnes then whipped out his revolver and shot Zellars in the hip. Seeing his companion down, Davidson picked up his weapon and jumped behind another telephone pole, where he continued to load and fire at the dentist. The latter proved to be the better shot, however, and after striking the pole behind which Davidson was hiding, he finally brought him down with a bullet in his neck. Then he gave himself up. He was released on bond.

WISCONSIN VOTES TOMORROW.

Hot Campaign on Local Option Question Will End in Large Cities There Tonight.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MILWAUKEE, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Local option will be voted upon at several of the biggest cities in Wisconsin on Tuesday. Such cities as Oshkosh, Appleton, Neenah and Eauclaire are in the throes of a hot battle over the liquor question.

In each city the campaign is being led by the Anti-Saloon League, which has organized local branches, and which has taken up contributions to push the fight in the newspapers. In every city where the fight is in progress the daily papers are filled with advertisements of both sides.

Speakers are being sent to plead the cause of both the "wets" and the "drys," and in some cities the fight is so sharp that there is even talk of starting new newspapers. It is too late, however, for any such course, though in Beloit the "wets" have sent out daily handbills, giving their side of the fight, as both dailies are lined up with the "drys."

In many of these papers there is little else than the liquor question discussed.

FIGHT IN COLORADO.

LIQUOR QUESTION HOT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, April 4.—Municipal elections in Colorado, outside of Denver, will be held on Tuesday. In nearly every town the liquor question is the predominant issue, and in many cases the fight has been extremely bitter.

Colorado Springs, "dry" since its foundation because of clauses inserted in all deeds given by Gen. W. J. Palmer, its founder, will fight out the handling of liquor by drug stores.

At Cripple Creek a wrangle in the courts leaves it undecided whether the liquor question will be submitted to the voters.

Both parties in Fort Collins are pledged against liquor selling, and the voters will find their issue in municipal ownership and civic improvement.

The saloon question will be bitterly fought in Grand Junction.

In Boulder local option will be submitted.

BARTENDERS SCARED.

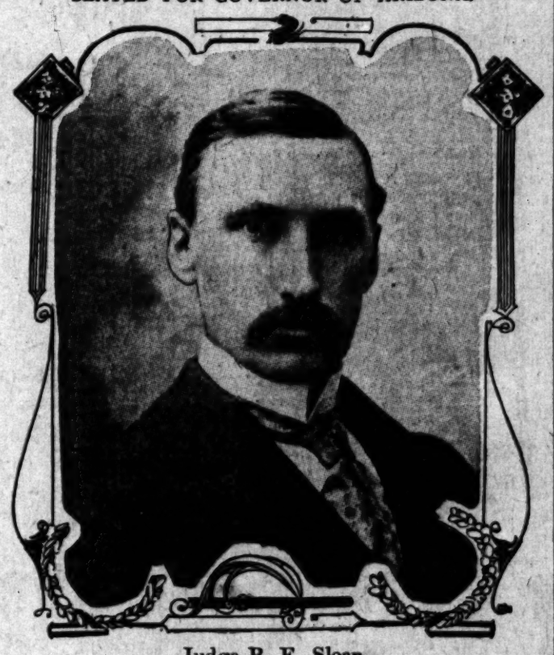
DISCUSS PROHIBITION.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BOSTON, April 4.—The growing prohibition sentiment throughout the country was discussed today by the executive board of the New England branch of the Hotel and Restaurant Employés Union, and of the Bartenders' International Alliance, which met here to formulate plans for the national convention in Minneapolis in May.

The meeting adopted a resolution calling for a law granting a permanent license system to all cities of 50,000 or more population; a bill limiting local option to municipalities and towns with a population of less than 50,000; each municipality to have complete control of the license commission, and two-thirds of the fees to go to the town and one-third to the State.

SLATED FOR GOVERNOR OF ARIZONA.



Judge R. E. Sloan

of Prescott, classmate of President Taft at Yale, whom latter will appoint to succeed Gov. Kibbey.

OFFICE SEEKS MAN.

PRESIDENT'S FRIEND ARIZONA'S GOVERNOR.

Judge R. E. Sloan, Associate Justice of Supreme Court, Is to Be Appointed Chief Executive in Territory in Anticipation of Coming Statehood.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Judge R. E. Sloan of Prescott, is to be appointed Governor of Arizona to succeed Gov. Joseph H. Kibbey. The change in the administration of the Territory is the outcome of difficulties between Gov. Curry and the administration at Washington which have been accumulating for some time.

At the time of Gov. Kibbey's visit to Washington during the campaign for Statehood the trouble broke out violently and there were some ugly charges regarding ring politics in the Territory. There were suggestions of a break then but Gov. Kibbey returned home and for a time all was peaceful.

The report was freely circulated that the visit of Gov. Kibbey had been of no benefit to the Statehood cause and that if anything the result was of adverse influence.

Judge Sloan was a classmate of President Taft at Yale and stands in high favor, both because of his personal acquaintance and his ability as a jurist. The President is anxious to have a lawyer of ability at the head of affairs when the constitution of the new State is formulated. There exists no doubt that Statehood will soon come and Judge Sloan is the man picked to usher in the new régime properly.

Judge Sloan is associate justice of the Supreme Court, having served on that bench since 1889. He is a native of Ohio but located in Arizona in 1884, the year in which he graduated from the Cincinnati law school and was admitted to the bar.

The appointment of Judge Sloan will insure an administration in close sympathy with that of President Taft and will work to the advantage of the new State when it becomes such. The choice may not satisfy the politicians of the Territory but it will be acceptable to the people who have no private interests to serve.

HALF-CENTURY OF SERVICE.

Three Generations of Her Employer's Family Unite to Honor Faithful Servant, Mary Grogan.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Fifty years ago tomorrow Mary Grogan began work in the family of Abagail Price of South River, N. J. Today three generations of Prices and three generations of Grogans celebrated the anniversary, because, wonderful to relate, Mary is still there as the family cook.

In the beginning she asked for $100 a year, and got it. She has never asked for a raise or a vacation. No wonder that Abagail Price sent to New York for champagne with which he and his relatives and friends might drink to the health of such a servant. No wonder that he engaged the Riverside Orchestra of South River for the entire day to play whenever the folk had to stop praising Mary long enough to get their breath. The house was decorated just as it was on the day when she arrived at the farmhouse with her three fatherless children and asked for work.

Today the faithful old servant became the mistress of the household for the day. The children ran races to get her slippers and the grown-ups tried to devise new ways for making her comfortable in all the arm chairs of the old house. If Mary had not been occupied all day in admiring the presents that every member of her own and the Price family had brought her she might have had the rare experience of a servant being bored by too much ease and luxury.

At dinner Mrs. Grogan sat beside the head of the house, and there were so many things for the feast that nearly everybody had a chance to pass her something, at least once.

AUTOMOBILE CHASERS.

NEW YORK, April 4.—The recent wholesale maiming and killing of people by reckless chauffeurs running their cars at excessive speed through the city streets, culminated today in the organization of a special squad of "automobile chasers" by Police Commissioner Bingham. These, mounted on fast motorcycles, arrested sixty-five chauffeurs for exceeding the speed limit.

DYNAMITE KILLS MINER.

BELLINGHAM (Wash.) April 4.—The premature explosion of a charge of dynamite in the tunnel of the Great Excelsior mine near Maple Falls, this county, resulted in the death of William Laufman, and the fatal injury of Frank Hart. Both men lived here.

CABBY COUSIN TO POPE.

Relative of Leo XIII Now Driving Taxicab About Streets of the National Capital.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A tall, rather thin young man with black hair, black eyes, and a dark Latin skin, giving his name as Augustus Grant Prosperi, and declaring himself to be a cousin of the late Pope Leo XIII, is now performing duty as a chauffeur for a taxicab company here.

Prosperi is 23 years old, intensely American, with an American wife and two children. He worked for six years in the postoffice department, and only once in all that time, so far as he remembers, did any one find out that he is related to a pope. For the last two years he has been working for Armour & Co. in Philadelphia and only recently returned to Washington.

"There will be lots of people who may laugh over this story," he said, "but I am a cousin of the late Pope Leo, and I can prove it beyond doubt. My grandfather's sister married the Count of Pecci, who was the father of Pope Leo XIII, and there comes in my relationship."

NEW YORK-CHICAGO TROLLEY.

First Train to Make Long Run by Electricity Arrived in Chicago Last Night.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Direct connection between Chicago and New York by trolley became a reality at 9:45 o'clock tonight, when a two-car train pulled into Pullman over the tracks of the Kensington and Eastern Railroad, completed less than fifteen minutes before.

The line spans the last gap in the system of inter-urban railroads which stretch across the continent to Chicago from the eastern seaboard, and a trip to New York over lines operated by electric power is now possible. The route is still a little roundabout, it is true, but it is there, and the dreams of electric railroad promoters have been realized.

Residents of Kensington and Pullman had been looking for the cars all day. Crowds were gathered at the Illinois Central stations in both cities to see the first train come in, but most of the enthusiasts had gone home when the train arrived.

The route to New York from Chicago is as follows: From Chicago to South Bend, Ind., via the Chicago, Lake Shore and South Bend; from South Bend to Indianapolis; from Indianapolis to Dayton, O.; from Dayton to Toledo; from Toledo to Cleveland; from Cleveland to Buffalo; from Buffalo to Syracuse and thence to Jersey City.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

PLAYING POLITICS.

Office Holders Are Too Active.

Condition Threatens Power of People to Direct Elections.

Charges That Roosevelt Used Patronage for Mr. Taft Unfounded.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 4.—The report of the special committee appointed by the National Civil Service Reform League to investigate the political activity on the part of office holders, was made public today.

The conclusions of the committee, briefly stated, are that charges made by certain newspapers are sustained to a great extent.

A notable exception is reported in the allegations that Mr. Roosevelt coerced certain Federal officeholders into the support of Mr. Taft for the Republican nomination.

The committee finds that evidence to sustain the charges are wholly lacking. On the contrary, Mr. Roosevelt is credited with advancing civil service reform by so amending the civil service rules as to prohibit employés in the competitive service from taking part in political campaigns.

On the broad question of office-holders' pernicious activity in politics, however, the committee finds that a most undesirable situation exists. Of the more than 380,000 general office-holders, one-third are not amenable to civil service classification. These often exercise a powerful influence in politics and constitute, in the opinion of the committee, a menace to free institutions.

The remedy is to be found, the commission believes, in extending the classified competitive service and a clearer definition of the executive order governing political activity in the unclassified service.

"Reports of undue political activity on the part of Federal office holders appearing in the press of the country were gathered together through the aid of an efficient clipping bureau. These were examined and the persons mentioned in them were written to with requests for full information, correction or denial. The replies were carefully inspected and the most important of these cases were followed up by an investigation by an assistant secretary of the league, on the spot. Final drafts of our conclusions were submitted to all office holders and political leaders who were unfavorably involved.

"Charges of coercion of office holders by the President to secure the nomination of a particular candidate have been inquired into, but evidence to sustain those charges is wholly lacking. President Roosevelt's appointment lists for a considerable period were, with his permission, examined. From those lists it would appear that Presidential appointments prior to the convention were made in the usual manner on the recommendation of Senators, Congressmen and others claiming the patronage of the offices involved.

"President Roosevelt took a decided step in advance toward checking the evils resulting from the activity of office holders in politics by his order of June 3, 1907, amending the civil-service rules by forbidding employés in the competitive service from taking part in political management or in political campaigns. This order was enforced in the last campaign.

GET ON DELEGATIONS.

"The official roll of delegates to the Republican National Convention at Chicago was compared with the latest government Blue Book. It was found that of the delegates to the Chicago convention Federal office holders constituted one in ten, and of the delegations from the Southern States nearly one in three, and of some Southern States, more than half.

"These office holders were political, that is, outside of the jurisdiction of the civil-service act, and in most cases their appointment was subject to confirmation by the United States Senate.

"The office holders in the South practically control the Republican party organization in their respective States and frequently resort to unfair means in order to retain their power.

"Their support is a tremendous political asset to any candidate for nomination. As the southern Democratic States have as many votes in the Republican National Convention as the Republican States of equal population, under ordinary circumstances the southern delegates would control the balance of power in the national convention.

"These organizations controlled by office holders are mainly interested in the distribution of the patronage and the naming of delegates to conventions. It is not to the interest of these office-holding cliques to elect Republican Congressman or to bring about party growth and party success, which would mean curtailment or loss of the control of the patronage.

BOUQUETS FOR MR. ROOSEVELT.

Kaiser Sends Him Masses of Red Carnations.

Women Will Strew His Path With Many Roses.

Naples Is Eagerly Waiting to Welcome Him.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NAPLES, April 4.—The steamer Admiral, which is to carry ex-President Roosevelt to Mombasa, is lying in the harbor, decorated with flags. The special quarters set aside for Mr. Roosevelt and his party are already showing evidences of the welcome awaiting him.

Numerous gifts of flowers have been sent to the ship, and tomorrow the remembrance of the German Emperor, in the shape of great masses of carnations, in the German colors, will be placed in Mr. Roosevelt's cabin.

The Hamburg is expected at noon, and Mr. Roosevelt will be greeted on board that steamer by the representatives of the City Council, who will extend to him an official greeting, and a party of women, who will strew his path with roses.

The German Consul-General will extend the personal greetings of the Emperor, and Ambassador Griscom will represent the hundreds of Americans, who have gathered at Naples.

The American ships in the harbor, of which there are several, have their flags and bunting ready to dress ship on the first appearance of the Hamburg.

Police precautions will be made stringent, and service boats will keep all craft at a distance.

Mr. Roosevelt probably will not remain on board the Hamburg long after its arrival, as he probably will wish to make the most of the few hours of his stay at Naples. He will have luncheon with the Duke and Duchess of Aosta, and it is believed that he will visit the Aquarium.

In connection with the efforts to engage apartments for the ex-President those who had the problem in hand had a rather amusing experience. They found it impossible, owing to the great number of visitors who had come to the city or had engaged rooms in advance, to procure apartments at the highest-class hotels for Mr. Roosevelt, as they did not announce the name of the intended guest. At each of these houses they were informed that it apartments were taken, and as a consequence rooms finally were engaged at the Hotel Londres, which is a hostelry of quite ordinary pretensions. Later, however, a commodious apartment was engaged at the Excelsior Hotel, which was considered more habitable.

The Duke of Oscali, gentleman-in-waiting to Queen Helena, has tendered the use of his automobiles, which have been accepted by the American Ambassador, on behalf of Mr. Roosevelt.

CONFIDENT.

PUBLIC SURE OF HIGHER PRICES.

IGNORE LACK OF WARRANT FOR THE BULL CAMPAIGN.

Aside from Fact That Bullish Interests Are Led by a Resourceful Man There Is Nothing in Legitimate Demand to Cause the Advance in All Futures.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Popular sentiment is now as confidently committed to a belief in still higher wheat values, as it was to the contrary proposition some six months since, when values were about 20 cents per bushel lower for May, and 10 cents lower for July. The public is apparently oblivious to the fact that May wheat closed Saturday just 20 cents, July 20¼, and September 14 cents higher than at corresponding date last year.

Leaving out the fact that the bullish forces of the world now have an able, resourceful and well-equipped leader, there is nothing in the legitimate demand and supply propositions, either domestic or foreign, to warrant such a vast difference between the values current at the respective periods.

Going back to the Leiter year, 1898, for a parallel case, reveals the present situation still more at fault. For the five years previous to the Leiter year the average wheat crop of the United States was 456,000,000 bushels. In the last five years it has averaged 642,000,000 bushels.

The speculator is quite generally convinced that Patten will carry his May deal through to maturity, and it is quite probable that shorts in wheat will be given a lively time before they have an opportunity to see lower prices. Most of them who have not yet covered may be forced to do so before the tide turns.

VASTLY DIFFERENT!

In the first three months of 1909, the Los Angeles Times printed a larger volume of advertising than any other newspaper in the United States.

Its unequaled aggregate of 13,166 columns for the period named was 2½ times greater than the sum total carried by the Evening Express, the latter having printed 5154 columns of paid matter for the three months or, 8012 columns less than The Times.

The gain of The Times in business during the months of January, February and March this year, over last, was 842 columns; that of the Express, 699 columns.

The vast difference and lead of The Times over all local contemporaries is not duplicated in any other city of the same size in the United States.

Note—March, 1908, had five Sundays, as against four for the same month of this year.

MRS. TAFT'S JERSEY GRAZES ON WHITE HOUSE LAWN.

IN CLOVER.

MRS. TAFT'S COW ON WHITE HOUSE LAWN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, March 30.—There appears daily on the White House lawns a splendid specimen of Jersey cow which grazes near the disused tennis court and bathes itself in the sunshine throughout the afternoon while passers-by look on with astonishment.

"Why, that's the first cow in the land," says the policeman on duty at the gate, "and entitled to all the courtesy and respect which we policemen can shower upon her. She belongs to Mrs. Taft, just purchased from Lieut.-Gen. H. C. Corbin, and we have orders to give her carte blanche and entree to the most exclusive spots she can select out here to graze on."

The cow was purchased by Mrs. Taft in order that the President's family may be provided with milk scrupulously sanitary under all conditions. In the daytime the cow will graze on a section of the White House lawn near the stables, where Mrs. Taft can see it from the window at any time she chooses.

The strictest care will be given to hygiene conditions at the White House and Mrs. Taft believes that pure milk is one of the first and most important essentials. Having the cow spend its time in the stable or on the green lawn adjoining it is part of the plan to insure the cow a daily healthful routine.

WOMEN DESCEND ON CAPITOL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With each day of campaigning the army of suffragettes which will move on the State Capitol at Springfield, April 14, is growing. On that day the Chicago municipal suffrage bill is to be brought up in the House of the Illinois Legislature. More than a thousand women will go there from Chicago on a special train. This will be the nucleus of the suffrage army. Through its members and the various organizations here and over the State, the women of Illinois are being organized for that one day's demonstration. Many thousands of pledges to attend have been given by women to the committee engineering the movement and other special trains from all sections of Illinois will carry the suffragettes to Springfield in regiments. Speeches from the platforms of the trains will be a feature. From every corner of the State the women will close in on the Capitol and lay siege to the Legislature. Besides the Chicago municipal suffrage bill, the Legislature has before it a constitutional amendment for equal suffrage and a limited suffrage bill.

FIRE THREATENS INSANE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WOODWARD (Okla.) April 4.—Six hundred helpless insane persons were in danger of death today when a blaze, starting from a prairie fire, destroyed several buildings of the State insane asylum at Fort Supply. The fire broke out in the laundry, spread to the pharmacy supply building and threatened the asylum itself. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

PITIFUL.

DIES A MARTYR TO GREAT LOVE.

MILLIONAIRESS PASSES AWAY AMONG LEPERS.

Mrs. Walter R. Brinkerhoff, Who Gave Up Wealth and Social Position to Join Husband in Fighting Dread Affliction, Is Dead on the Island of Molokai.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WINCHENDON (Mass.) April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A three-word cable received from the barren isle of Molokai, Hawaii, announced the death of Mrs. Walter R. Brinkerhoff, formerly Miss Nellie White, of this town, who three years ago gave up the pleasures that wealth and assured social standing can bring, and took her place beside her husband to assist him in caring for the lepers, among whom he has cast his lot.

She died a martyr of wifely devotion to the slowly dying creatures on the island, who fairly worshiped her. The cablegram contained only the terse message, "Nellie is dead."

Mrs. Brinkerhoff was the daughter of the late multi-millionaire, Nelson D. White, and a niece of ex-Gov. John D. Long. Her marriage, which took place in August, 1907, was one of the most romantic in the annals of New England.

The bride, heiress to the millions of her father, and leader of the best society of Boston, Newport, Washington and European capitals, journeyed 6000 miles to wed the young pathologist, who had devoted his life to the lepers of the Pacific in an heroic effort to discover a cure for the loathsome affliction. For the past three years she has lived, contented, upon the forsaken island, assisting her husband in his laboratories.

John McGrain.

STILLWATER (Okla.) April 4.—John McGrain, 78 years old, who in the early fifties drove an ox team to the California gold fields and later joined the gold rushes to Australia, New Zealand, Africa and Alaska, died here today. Though 65 years old, he joined the Alaskan fortune hunters and dragged a sled many miles across the snow and ice.

Earl Stirling.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Earl Stirling, who was a member of the company that played at Ford's Theater the night Abraham Lincoln, was assassinated, died today. A few months ago, at a local theater, as there was no one to take his part, he was forced to play while his wife was dying in a hospital. After the performance he collapsed and never recovered. Mr. Stirling had been stage manager for Augustin Daly and for Daniel Frohman's old Lyceum Theater in New York.

Adolph Ritter von Sonnenthal.

PRAGUE, April 4.—Adolph Ritter von Sonnenthal, the noted actor, died here tonight of apoplexy. Herr von Sonnenthal was born at Pesth, Hungary, December 21, 1834. He made his first appearance at Temasvar, in 1852. In 1889 and 1902 Herr von Sonnenthal visited the United States, appearing in New York, and subsequently touring through the leading cities.

FORMS DAIRY COMBINE.

Millionaire St. Louis Altruist Succeeds in Organizing Huge Co-operative Plant in Louisiana.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] N. O. Nelson, altruist and millionaire manufacturer of St. Louis and Leclaire, Ill., whose cooperative promotions have given him a national reputation, has just effected a combination of forty-five of the leading dairymen of Tangipahoa Parish under the name of the Hammond Cooperative Creamery.

Mr. Nelson states that it is in no sense a business combine, or trust, but is calculated to revolutionize the milk trust in Louisiana, and bring good to the consumers as well as the members.

"It is absolutely a carrying out of the cooperative plan," declared Mr. Nelson; "a plan not to raise prices or start a milk war, but to seek and gain the best market for the commodity."

Mr. Nelson worked up the plan at his own expense and without compensation. Each dairyman goes into the plan under an agreement to sell his milk for two years through the association.

In time, the association will erect a big creamery for the manufacture of butter and cheese. Mr. Nelson states that about 90 per cent. of butter and cheese consumed in Louisiana and other southern States is made in the North. The farmers in the association will buy their feed for the stock and general supplies on the cooperative plan. Mr. Nelson organized the dairies of Virginia into a cooperative creamery, and will leave New Orleans shortly and endeavor to organize the dairymen of Georgia.

PRESIDENT'S GUARD PRESENT.

Mr. Taft Risks Walking to Church Again and Is Followed Home by Curious Crowd.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Tempted by the beautiful weather, President Taft decided to risk walking to church today. He left the White House with Mrs. Taft, and their sons, Robert and Charlie, at 11 o'clock. At the corner of Lafayette Square, Mrs. Taft and Charlie turned off to St. John's Episcopal Church. Mr. Taft and Robert proceeded to All Souls Unitarian.

Discouraged by the fact that Mr. Taft shot by in a motor car last Sunday, there was no crowd awaiting him at the White House. But when he left the church the Old Guard of patriotic citizens, with a lot of recruits from the thousands of holiday visitors, fell in behind and tramped after the Chief Magistrate. Mr. Taft took an entirely new route, cutting across a park at one point, but the crowd had played "follow your leader," in its younger days, and took to the chase with enjoyment.

When the President finally entered the executive office the escort had grown to several hundred persons. They stood around awhile, unconvinced that the show was over, and scattered to look up other sights of the capital.

FAR-REACHING.

FOUR JUDGES FOR BIG CASE.

Full Bench Will Preside at Standard Hearing.

Huge Mass of Testimony Is to Be Given.

Seven Million Words in the Printed Record.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

ST. LOUIS, April 4.—Tomorrow the full bench of four judges comprising the United States Circuit Court of this district, will hear arguments in the government case seeking the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Seldom has such a mass of evidence been compiled in a single case. The record, including the exhibits, already exceeds 7,000,000 words, all taken by one stenographer.

Printed, the evidence is more voluminous by several volumes, than a set of encyclopedae. Most of the testimony was taken in New York, John D. Rockefeller and John D. Archbold having been among many notable witnesses called to the stand.

So large is the record that even a perusal of its digest by the court is impossible, and much will depend on the summaries presented by the attorneys.

FAR-REACHING.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The hearing in the case of the government against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, to be begun in St. Louis tomorrow, is one of the most important and far-reaching civil actions that has ever come up for trial in this country.

The bill of complaint on the part of the United States, charging a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, was filed in November, 1906.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the parent organization, together with its various subsidiary corporations, John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, Henry H. Rogers, John D. Archbold, Oliver H. Payne and Charles M. Pratt are charged with having entered into an agreement, combination and conspiracy to restrain trade and commerce among the several States, to monopolize trade and commerce in the purchase of petroleum and in the distribution, sale and shipment of the products of petroleum.

The United States seeks perpetually to enjoin the defendants from doing any act looking to the carrying out of the alleged combination or conspiracy, and to dissolve the Standard Oil combination.

The government concluded its testimony on January 21, 1909. About 400 witnesses were examined, approximately 200 appearing for each side.

The issue is so important that whatever may be the result of the trial by the Circuit Court, the case certainly will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

"BLACK HANDERS" CAUGHT.

Oklahoma Merchant Plays Trick That Lands Three Suspects, After His Home Was Dynamited.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

M'ALLESTER (Okla.) April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The store of Joe Nellis, a wealthy Italian at Krebs, Okla., was blown up with dynamite last Monday night, after Nellis, guarded by officers, had placed $1000 at a spot where he had been ordered to put it by a "Black Hand" letter.

Nellis yesterday received another letter, dated Alderson, three miles east of here, demanding that he place the money at noon today in an old coke oven near Alderson. He complied, after two deputy sheriffs had concealed themselves within thirty yards of the oven. Four minutes after Nellis placed the money in the oven, San Dibbilli took the money from the oven, it is alleged, and was arrested by the deputies. Dominic Maussires and Basili Guippaues were arrested later. The three prisoners are young miners from Southern Italy. They refused to talk. They are newcomers here.

IN ASHES.

VAN BUREN (Ark.) April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The town of Illinois Station, Okla., has been practically destroyed by fire which started at 9 o'clock this morning. Illinois Station is a town of 1500 inhabitants and is the terminal for all local freights on the west end of the central division of the Iron Mountain road.

The fire started in the Commercial Hotel, and this building and the Majestic Hotel, both large frame buildings, were the first to burn. A high wind drove the flames into the business section. The Farmers Bank block, built of brick, and in which all of the larger stores were located, was burned.

OPPORTUNITY.

...CH COUNTRY OPENING UP.

...ailroad to Mazatlan Means Trade Chances.

...os Angeles Is the Natural Distributing Point.

...eady Demand for All Kinds of Made Goods.

The entrance of the Mexican branch of the Southern Pacific into Mazatlan marks an epoch in the history of the West Coast and opens another vast field for Los Angeles merchants, who should not be slow to take advantage of it.

Mazatlan is the geographical and commercial center of the West Coast, from which supplies are distributed to the interior for 500 miles in one direction and 200 in another. For centuries a thriving business has been done with Germany, Spain and France, by means of sailing vessels around Cape Horn. Not a railroad worth the name was established in the whole country, the only attempt being a forty-mile line from Altata to Culiacan, while the harbor of Altata was dangerous and unsafe for vessels of even the smallest draught.

Despite this handicap the growth of the West Coast has been steady and substantial. Mazatlan has grown from an Indian pueblo to a great port, to which vessels from all parts of the world call. With a population of 20,000 it distributes all kinds of merchandise, agricultural and mining machinery and supplies, to practically every section of interior Mexico. The harbor is always crowded with ships, most of which come from Germany with the ware of Bremen, Hamburg and Vienna merchants.

Recently British Columbia, San Francisco and Seattle have paid some attention to the business that is assuming vast proportions, but residents of Mazatlan for twenty years past that in all of that time they have never seen the face of a Los Angeles drummer. Heretofore the nearest approach has been at Guadalajara, five days' distant by stage, traveling day and night, and fifteen to twenty-five days by freight teams, and Durango, seven days by the hurricane deck of a mule.

SECTION WAKES UP.

For months prior to the laying of the rail in Mazatlan the entire section tributary to it began to awaken and long before there are many enterprises under way which will materially aid in the development of the country. Irrigating systems are being established, mines are opening and agriculture has taken on new life. This means increased business, and it is up to Los Angeles to get her share. Irrigation and harbor improvements in the West Coast means the importation of cement, which is shipped in barrels, but from Europe. There is a good cement manufactured in Los Angeles and vicinity as anywhere, and we should find a market at Mazatlan. Mexico is a large consumer of wines, liquors, and Southern California leads the world in quality and could supplant that now pouring into the West Coast from Spain, France and Germany. It will supplant it if a right effort is made.

Hams and canned fruits and other canned goods are bought in large quantities on account of the climatic conditions and the difficulties in securing fresh meats and vegetables. France, Germany, Italy, Spain and lately, Vancouver, are sending these commodities to Mazatlan by the shipload. There are many Los Angeles and California people interested in the western section of Mexico and the preference of the entire section, they say, is to trade in Los Angeles, where it does not require from two to four months to receive goods after being shipped, and where the merchants can come in person to trade. Once a year merchants buy in Mazatlan, but when they do the amount of the purchase would give a Los Angeles drummer heart failure. And they pay well, too, on the West Coast. Credits are long, but payments are sure.

MILLIONS FOR SUPPLIES.

The next ten months will see over $4,000,000 invested in mining, agriculture and irrigation, in the States of Sinaloa, Tepic, Durango and Jalisco, for machinery and supplies alone. Stamp mills and concentrating tables will be needed and mining machinery of all kinds bought. Some of this is made in Los Angeles and the manufacturers should go after the business that foreign countries are carrying off from their very doors.

The Harriman line is graded for nearly two hundred miles between Mazatlan and Guadalajara, one of the most progressive cities in the whole republic. Rails are laid for fifty miles and within a year and a half trains will be running, it is asserted, into that city, opening another vast empire of commerce. From Guaymas to Nogales there is a great mining country in the midst of development. From Guaymas up the Yaqui River to Agua Caliente the railroad has opened another great area, all tributary to and all previously supplied from Mazatlan.

The growth of this section has only started and possibilities for Los Angeles merchants are enormous. One day but to visit Mazatlan since the first construction train ran into that port to get a day's business done. Especially this business belongs to Los Angeles, but it goes to Germany. The people are becoming more progressive, new ideas are supplanting the old, and modern homes and dress are coming into vogue. This means enormous business in the furnishing of homes and dressing of a nation and there is no reason why in that this business should not come to Los Angeles. Mazatlan is the distributing point for all of this business and her wholesale houses supply the merchants of the interior with every class of wares. One firm in Mexico handles practically everything needed and the connecting Mazatlan by rail with Los Angeles brings opportunity right to the feet of the business men of this city.

ONE LARGE ENTERPRISE.

Already Los Angeles interests are getting in on the exports of hardwood and the Pacific Lumber Company ship monthly by way of Charles Hansen, about 200,000 feet of white mahogany and Spanish cedar to Los Angeles, the boat returning with supplies to keep the 700 men employed on the 220,000 acres in food, clothing, and the mills supplied with machinery.

This company is building a flume from the mill to the ocean, many kilometers distant and will greatly increase the amount shipped when the completed. The Colima Lumber Company is also preparing to ship and send to this city for distribution. Various of the United States Large

With a population of ...ver 30,000 it distributes all kinds of mer...handise, agricultural and mining ma...chinery and supplies, to practically ...every section of interior Mexico. The ...harbor is always crowded with ships, ...most of which come from Germany ...and the ware of Bremen, Hamburg ...and Vienna merchants.

...Recently British Columbia, San ...Francisco and Seattle have paid some ...attention to the business that is as...suming vast proportions, but resi...dents of Mazatlan for twenty years as...sert that in all of that time they have ...never seen the face of a Los Angeles ...man. Heretofore the nearest ...railroad has been at Guadalajara, five ...days distant by stage, traveling day ...and night, and fifteen to twenty-five ...by freight teams, and Durango, seven ...days by the hurricane deck of a mule.

SECTION WAKES UP.

...For months prior to the laying of ...rail in Mazatlan the entire section ...tributary to it began to awaken and ...now there are many enterprises un...der way which will materially aid in ...the development of the country. Irri...gating systems are being established, ...mines are opening and agriculture has ...taken on new life. This means in...creased business, and it is up to Los ...Angeles to get her share.

...Irrigation and harbor improvements ...on the West Coast means the impor...tation of cement, which is shipped in ...bulk, but from Europe. There is ...not a cement manufactured in Los ...Angeles and vicinity as anywhere, and ...would find a market at Mazatlan. ...Mexico is a large consumer of wines ...and liquors, and Southern California ...holds the world in quality and ...could supplant that now pouring into ...the West Coast from Spain, France ...and Germany. It will supplant it if ...the right effort is made.

...Hams and canned fruits and other ...packed goods are bought in large ...quantities on account of the climatic ...conditions and the difficulties in se...curing fresh meats and vegetables. ...France, Germany, Italy, Spain and ...Japan, Vancouver, are sending these ...commodities to Mazatlan by the ship...load. There are many Los Angeles ...and California people interested in the ...southern section of Mexico and the ...importance of the entire section, they ...say, is to trade in Los Angeles, where ...it does not require from two to four ...months to receive goods after being ...ordered, and where the merchants can ...come in person to trade. Once a year ...merchants buy in Mazatlan, but when ...they do the amount of the purchase ...and give a Los Angeles drummer ...short failure. And they pay well, too, ...for the West Coast. Credits are long, ...but payments are sure.

MILLIONS FOR SUPPLIES.

...The next ten months will see over ...$50,000,000 invested in mining, agri...culture and irrigation, in the States of ...Sinaloa, Tepic, Durango and Jalisco, ...for machinery and supplies alone. ...Saw mills and concentrating tables ...are needed and mining machinery ...of all kinds bought. Some of this is ...being sold in Los Angeles and the manu...facturers should go after the business ...that foreign countries are carrying off ...from their very doors.

...The Durango line is graded for ...nearly two hundred miles between ...Mazatlan and Guadalajara, one of the ...most progressive cities in the whole ...republic. The rails are laid for fifty ...miles and within a year and a half ...trains will be running, it is asserted, ...into that city, opening another vast ...empire of commerce. From Guaymas ...to Nogales there is a great mining ...country in the midst of development. ...From Guaymas up the Yaqui River to ...Cajon Caliente the railroad has opened ...another great area, all tributary to ...and formerly supplied from Mazatlan.

...The growth this section has only ...started and the possibilities for Los ...Angeles merchants are enormous. One ...has but to visit Mazatlan since the ...last construction train ran into that ...port to get a line on the amount of ...business done. Practically this business ...belongs to Los Angeles, but it goes to ...Germany. The opals are becoming ...more progressive, new ideas are sup...planting the old, and modern homes ...and dress are coming into vogue. This ...means enormous profit in the furnish...ing of homes and outfitting of a nation ...and there is no reason that this busi...ness should not come to Los Angeles. ...Mazatlan is the distributing point ...for all of this business and her whole...sale houses supply merchants of ...the interior with every class of wares. ...One firm in Mexico handles practi...cally everything need and the con...testing Mazatlan bill with Los ...Angeles brings opportunity right to ...the feet of the business men of this ...city.

ONE LARGE ENTERPRISE.

...Already Los Angeles men are get...ting in on the exports of hard...wood and the Pacific Lumber Com...pany ship monthly by Captain Charles ...Nelson, about 250,000 feet of white ...mahogany and Spanish cedar to Los ...Angeles, the boat returning with sup...plies to keep the 700 men employed on ...the 250,000 acres in food and clothing. ...The mills supplied with machin...ery.

...The company is building a flume ...from the mill to the ocean, a distance ...of many kilometers distant and will greatly decrease ...the amount shipped when the com...pleted. The Colima Lumber Company ...is preparing to ship and send ...machinery for distribution to various ...parts of the United States.

JOKE IS BAD, TOWN IS SAD.

Watts, as Buffer, Made to Suffer, But Theater-goers — Glad.

Has a commonly bandied theatrical joke put Watts to the bad?

Said a Watts real estate dealer yesterday: "Business has fallen off in Watts to an alarming extent, and half the stores along the main street are either vacant or their occupants are suffering from depression. We lay it to the theaters of Southern California in general, and of Los Angeles in particular. If there is a Rube, he came from Watts; if there is a dark scene, vacant, it is Watts on a busy day; if there is a joke as old as Methusaleh's grandfather—it is new in Watts.

"One of these doesn't hurt, nor two, but when the bum joke is shoved at Watts systematically, from theater to theater, day in and day out, year in and year out, it makes the very name nauseating to a stranger. It is a thoughtless, cruel and absolutely reasonless persecution, a persecution that is killing an industrious, ambitious little town.

"It began in vaudeville, and Kolb and Dill gave the sting its fiercest venom when they laid their burlesque satire, "Lonesome Town," in Watts. That spread the stigma all over the country, and now 'Watts' is a sort of clowning synonym in showdom for everything that is pedantic, plodding or punk. Watts is not famous—it is infamous, and that quite without reason."

SMUGGLING STORY FICTION?

Detectives Seek Information About Alleged Swindler and Odd Diamond Tale.

Efforts are being made by detectives to learn if Robert Leonard, the alleged swindler arrested Friday, is wanted elsewhere. He is said to have sought small loans from Los Angeles' lawyers, representing that he had a large amount of smuggled diamonds which he could not dispose of because he was watched by the Federal authorities.

Robert Leonard,
about whom the Los Angeles police seek information.

If he found any victims here, they are not known. Information against him was furnished by Attorney Fred Thompson, who was approached but refused to make a loan.

A man, believed to be Leonard, attempted to work a similar swindle at Santa Ana about a month ago.

Detectives have not been able to locate Leonard's room but they feel certain that his story of the smuggled gems is fiction.

SPLIT OVER MATRIMONY.

Members of Live Forever Club Wrangle With President Over His Last Edict.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON (Mass.) April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There is dissension among the members of the Live Forever Club, an organization of people in thirty States, who are pledged to live forever, because their leader and president, Harry Gaze, has sent out an extremely radical programme regarding love and marriage.

All who would live forever, he declares must wed at once, and those who remain unmarried, as a consequence, will die, and therefore cannot be members of the club in good standing.

Shortly after the formation of the club here, President Gaze fell in love with the secretary, Miss Mildred Balcom of Boston. They were married, and went to Europe on a wedding tour, also to get new ideas for securing everlasting life.

Mr. Gaze has recently returned, and announces that as a result of his trip, he is satisfied that the formula formerly followed by the members of the club is not in itself sufficient to secure unending life. The fact that several members have died he says proves his assertion.

To live forever, President Gaze says each member who is not married must seek out an affinity and get spliced. Then the newly weds are supposed to live along certain lines laid down by him. That is where the rub comes. Some unmarried members object to the prescribed quick hunt for affinities, and others object to the regulations that are made for the life after marriage. As a consequence the disruption of the association is predicted.

John Hamilton,

SHOWS COLOR.

SINGS "SALOME" IN HIGH KEY.

SEASONED PROSPECTOR TELLS OF MINING CAMP.

Gives Partial Confirmation of Extravagant Tales Told of Strikes About the Place in Yuma County, Arizona—Has Been in Adventures in Many Lands.

With thirty years' experience as a miner and prospector, to encourage him, Jack Hamilton has become an advocate of the new "Salome dance." This does not refer to the Mary Garden or Tanquay contortions, but to the "joy movements" of several hundred prospectors and tender feet that are making things lively in the hills around the new camp of Salome, Yuma county, Arizona.

After six years of torpid peace the camp is holding the attention of the mining world by sending out great tales of gold strikes. It consists of a railroad station, hotel, and store, the latter two being operated by Leon Jones, of the Brayton Commercial Company. The rest of the town is canvas. It is situated on the Arizona-California branch of the Santa Fé, running between Jerome Junction and Parker on the Colorado River.

This is what Hamilton says about it:

"The district for at least twenty miles around the Bonanza strike, near Salome, is the greatest mineral country that I have ever been in. I have not the least doubt but that within the very near future it will be one of the greatest mining camps in the world. From what I have seen of the country there is more mineral to the square acre than there is in Nevada to the square mile."

Hamilton has been in Los Angeles a week, after a strenuous time locating claims in the new country. For tenderfeet, he states the country offers scant profits.

What is generally known as the Bonanza, but is really the Arizona Northern Mine, was located the middle of last month and was the first strike in the neighborhood of any magnitude. Work is now progressing on the mine. The Hillside Mining Company, of which another Salome man, "Dick" W. Hall, is the chief owner, is also shipping ore of equal value from a mine on the same ledge.

There are many commercial openings in the country, doctors and drug stores being especially in demand. Restaurants and boarding-houses are also greatly needed and it is probable that in the near future there will be a substantial town. To all people going to the new district Hamilton advises taking a tent, blanket and cooking utensils.

Hamilton has spent the greatest part of his life in quest of nature's storehouses. He went to work in a coal mine in Pennsylvania when he was 9 years old, after his father and uncles had been killed at the battle of Antietam.

When he was 20 years old he started in to prospect for coal mines in the same State and shortly afterward went to Wyoming, where he had his first experience in quartz mining. Going to Colorado, he prospected in several camps, sometimes winning and sometimes losing, and eventually followed the thread of gold to Montana, where he leased and prospected, and varied his life by working in the copper mines for wages.

He went to Spokane and from there to the Couer d'Alene country, before the time of the railroads. In Rossland, British Columbia, he acted as a foreman in the mines of Patsy Clark, now a millionaire in Spokane.

From Rossland he went to Alaska in 1897, and spent four years in the Yukon Territory. His tales of the gold fever in the northern territory are many and various, ranging from the terrible to the ridiculous, and among his experiences was carrying the first mail down the Yukon, traveling 900 odd miles on native skates of whale-bone.

Hamilton is probably one of the most typical mining men of the desert today, but declares that if this, his strike at Salome, makes good, it will be retirement for him, while looking back over nearly sixty years of adventures in all parts of the world.

QUART OR NOTHING.

Committee of Texas Legislature Is in Favor of Setting Minimum Mark for Whisky Sales.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

AUSTIN (Tex.) April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Mason Bill, providing that not less than one quart of intoxicating liquor shall be sold at a time, and that it shall not be drunk on the premises where sold, was unanimously reported favorably last night by the House Committee on Liquor Traffic.

The bill also provides that malt liquor dealers shall pay the same license as dealers in whisky. The bill by the same author providing that any violation of the local option laws shall be a felony was also unanimously reported favorably by the committee.

When Robertson's bill, amending the Basking-McGregor liquor law, comes before the House next Tuesday, Mason will offer the above bills as amendments to that bill, and thus get them before the House earlier than he otherwise could. Should these measures become a law, as indicated by the committee reports, it would be almost the equivalent of a prohibition and would eliminate the bar-room entirely.

IDENTIFY KIDNAPER AGAIN.

Mrs. Boyle Laughs When She Hears Police Now Think She Is Helen Richards.

[BY DIFECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SHARON (Pa.) April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. James H. Boyle, alleged accomplice in the kidnaping of Willie Whitla has now been identified as Helen Richards, the daughter of a man named Richards, of Columbus, O. This information was received in a letter from the Columbus police authorities last night.

It gave little data, but it was stated that the woman had been recognized by acquaintances through the publication of her pictures in the newspapers. Mercer county authorities are positive that Mrs. Boyle is not the daughter of William McDermott of Chicago. When informed today that the Columbus police have connected her with the Richards family, Mrs. Boyle laughed merrily.

"So now I'm Miss Richards, you want to know who I am? Tell them I am plain Mrs. 'Lefty' Boyle."

The police assert that evidence enough has been secured to indict both Boyle and his wife. It is understood that the detectives have been quietly at work for several days and have secured damaging evidence against Mrs. Boyle.

POLITICIANS BUSY, PEOPLE IDLE.

Populist politicians who flourish in Texas and other States, like long-horned steers on the ranges, do not agree in their views about railroad management with the business men who make a practical study of the railroads either as managers or patrons. Most politicians come from two subdivisions of the people, office holders or lawyers. It is to be regretted that this is so.

Here is a young man who, before his beard becomes stiff, "gets into politics." Here is another who goes into the practice of the law. Neither is closely in touch with the business activities of the day. When they mix up in politics the one idea is to get votes. They skim the surface of all that concerns the industries and the commerce of the country. They do not try to learn more than to get in sympathy with the upper currents of thought among the mass of the voters. They go into office with biased minds and superficial views. They know the popular sentiment and are content to be led by that. The politician tells you he will let the people have anything they wish.

In the long run, in a country like ours, the people work out the various problems of the day pretty accurately. But it takes time. What the student, the close observer, the statesman sees years ahead, through intuition sometimes, by grasp of fundamental principles oftener, the people come to by slow degrees, through painful experience. The statesman would legislate for the future; the politician legislates backward. The first course prevents awkward situations, and saves the people from the effects of the mistakes their prejudices would rush them into. The politician tries to remedy these mistakes after they have done great harm to the people.

In Texas and elsewhere the bogy of consolidation is still scaring the people out of their sense and property, and the politicians are still echoing the popular cry. Because some combinations are managed so as to oppress the people and hinder free development of business they are still jumping at the conclusion that all combinations are wrong, and that the only way to right the wrong is to forbid all consolidation.

And so, by legislative enactment, cut-throat competition is made necessary, and economy is forbidden by forcing the maintenance of rival offices and big salary lists.

Another crusade in which the politician is always engaged is that for lower freight rates as a general, universal proposition. He is satisfied that all rates are too high. He could not figure out the mileton cost of handling freight or carrying passengers. His conclusion is in most instances a prejudice. He finds popular favor because he makes loud proclamation that he is working in the interest of the people.

This is an old slogan. It was tooted a dozen years ago, and the assertion was made that rates were then as high as a generation before. Some man of just mind who wished to know the truth applied to the Bureau of Statistics at Washington, and T. H. Newcomb, employed as an expert statistician in the bureau, put out the following figures in reply, showing the average ton-mile rate on freights in the United States:

1869	1.709	1879	1.153	1889	.922
1870	1.889	1880	1.232	1890	.941
1871	1.789	1881	1.188	1891	.895
1873	1.613	1883	1.205	1893	.878

In thirty years the rates were reduced 58 per cent. It would be hard to match the record in any other service rendered the public. If we were to sum up the cost of governing the country by the politicians in national, State or municipal affairs, a very different condition would appear. While the railroads have, year by year, served the people at a lower ton-mile rate, the patriots who handle the revenues raised by taxation have made the per capita administration higher and higher.

The people are deceived and hurt. This populistic attack on common carriers and on other enterprises necessary to the comfort of the public has had the effect of stopping railroad extension and checking the proper maintenance of lines already in operation. It has had similar effect on other great enterprises. We still read of men out of work, of wage reductions here and there. The idle people suffer and those whose wages are cut must live on a lower plane. Had it not been for unwise legislation, for populistic clamor, for bitter warfare made on corporations, there would not be an able, willing worker in America idle, nor a cut in wages in any industry.

Politicians two years ago began howling for tariff revision. They have checked industry and commerce for all these months. By June the new tariff bill will be passed, and it will be so like the law now in force that the late President McKinley and the late Nelson Dingley, Jr., would be fully satisfied. Much political cry and very little tariff revision! The need of revenue to carry on the government and the demand for adequate protection to American industries forbid the downward revision of the tariff to any considerable extent. So the net result of this political legislation has been the checking of business and of manufacturing activity, with increased numbers of idle men, lower wages for those at work and smaller profits for manufacturers and merchants large and small.

ENGLAND'S HYSTERIA.

The animus between Germany and England, mitigated for the moment by King Edward's visit to Berlin, shows no signs of a full surrender to common-sense. Day by day comes fresh evidence that English nerves are upon edge and that she believes herself to be in a peril as great as when the armies of Napoleon were camped upon the cliffs of Boulogne. A mere hint that in some indefinite number of years the naval power of her rival may approximate to her own is sufficient to cause a financial outlay that would have staggered the last generation, while the frenzied call to arms is sounded as energetically from pulpit, press and theater as from the army recruiting authorities, whose business it is to attend to such matters. It is evident that there is such a thing as collective hysteria, and that England is still suffering from this very un-English complaint.

There does not seem to be any corresponding nervousness on the part of Germany. Shipbuilding, it is true, is proceeding at a tremendous pace, and the resources of the years to come are mortgaged to the hilt, but there is very little of the popular clamor that is so noisy upon the other side of the North Sea. It is said, indeed, that German navy officers drink "To the Day," and that war with England is uppermost in their thoughts, but the German people preserve their reputation for stolidity and go soberly about their business without any apparent enthusiasm for the aggressive designs with which they are credited. The newspapers contain few references to the quarrel. What they have to say is mostly pacific and on the whole there is no beating of the war drum in Germany.

And yet Germany has better reason to mistrust England than England has to mistrust Germany. That the Emperor has formed any serious design to invade England is unthinkable, although it becomes him to look far into the future and to provide for all possible emergencies from all possible sources. If the German people have no definitely hostile intentions—and it may be taken for granted that they have not—they must look upon English preparations with grave suspicion. Naturally they ask if these portentous undertakings are actually for self-defense, or if they are not rather a part of a plan for ousting Germany from her accustomed trade markets. England's vast navy is justified by her insular position and by her immense possessions over the sea, but why this sudden enthusiasm for an army that shall make of her a military as well as a naval power? What legitimate use can she make of a home force of a million men? Germany can hardly be blamed if she answers mistrust with mistrust, and follows England upon the fatal path of foreboding and suspicion.

It must be remembered that Germany is already in a position of isolation that must be numbered among her most disquieting problems, and that she owed much of her embarrassment to English diplomacy. A glance at the map will show that she has not a friend in Europe, with the exception of Austria, and Austria is more likely to ask for aid than to give it. Upon all sides she sees nothing but a hedge of bayonets, and in whatever direction she moves fortifications and guns give her grim warning to stand back. It is of course her own fault. She should have buried the hatchet after the war with France instead of creating an incurable wound that caused her enemy to build a chain of forts from Belgium to Switzerland. Thus barred upon the west, Germany sought egress first through Belgium, who promptly turned Antwerp into a second Gibraltar, and then through Switzerland, who hastened to fortify Jura and to sow the country with forts from end to end. Taking a not unnatural alarm, Holland followed the same plan in the north and Italy in the south, and thus hemmed in upon three sides Germany turned toward Russia, only to find the same impregnable barriers of bayonets and ramparts. Surrounded thus by a circle of steel and fire, Germany may be pardoned if she looks uneasily toward Denmark, also armed to the teeth, but willing, perhaps, to grant passage to an English army that might descend like an avalanche upon Schleswig. Her position is therefore one of extraordinary difficulty, and she knows it. The article written by Gen. Von Schleiffen for the Deutsche Revue, and recently read aloud by the Emperor to the generals of his army, is a model of pessimistic prophecy. The general says: "At a given moment the doors will be opened, the drawbridges will fall, and armies numbered by the million will pour into Germany over Vosges, Meuse, Niemen and the Tyrolean Alps, dominating, annihilating. The danger seems appalling."

It does, indeed. And bcause it is so appalling Germany will not invite it by aggression. Her dreams must be of defense and not of wanton provocation.

AN ANARCHIST'S REASONING.

We have before us a more or less careful statement on socialism and anarchy by Enrico Malatesta, an Italian, who says, "I am an avowed anarchist." He refers to the assassination of King Humbert of Italy some years ago, that of the Empress of Austria near the Lake Geneva, also years ago, the more recent assassination of President McKinley, the still more recent taking off of the King of Portugal, and the attempt made upon the King of Spain upon his wedding day.

From referring to these instances, Malatesta goes on to arraign the press for what he calls its "many lies and slanders" circulated regarding Italian anarchists. The basis for his charge is not well laid. He openly acknowledges the assassination of the persons above referred to, the attempt upon the King of Spain, and seeks to palliate these and other assassinations and attempted assassinations by Italians whom he himself characterizes as anarchists. In this attempted apology he goes quite elaborately into the industrial conditions existing in the kingdom of Italy. He says: "Italy is one of the poorest countries in the world; it has a great number of inhabitants who live in a perpetual state of semi-starvation. They cannot read or write; but in spite of this fact the Italian poor and the Italian illiterate are not the stupid and resigned creatures which we find in other countries possessing higher educational facilities."

This pronounced anarchist then arraigns the ecclesiastical establishment of his country as lying at the root of all the discontent among the people. He says the Italians as a rule "do not brutalize themselves with strong drink." They have never accepted their position, but are always struggling and dreaming of a condition of independence and wealth. He concedes that "patriotism appeals to them but little because their mother country has never been to them more than a stepmother. The Italian is a selfish man who cares only for the material interests of himself and his own immediate family."

This whole attempt to justify anarchy as a fundamental principle and "assassination as a fine art" seems to us to be particularly lame and confused. During recent years there has been no King in Europe possessed with higher ideals and a greater desire to be a just ruler and a helpful one to his people than the King of Italy. Moreover, Italy is not the poorest country in Europe, by a great deal. The Italian peninsula is as rich in resources today as it was when regarded as the garden spot and granary of Europe. The riches of the soil are marvelously various and great. Italy has been handicapped in the lack of coal and the resulting absence of manufacturing enterprises. All the coal used in Italy was imported from England at great expense, rendering it impossible for the people of that country to compete with those of England in manufacturing. But with the development of electric power, Italy is rapidly becoming full of industries.

It depends entirely upon what part of Italy you visit whether you find abject poverty common or not. Milan is a city of great and various industries and the people there seem to be moderately prosperous. The same is true of Genoa and Leghorn. The agricultural districts of Italy teem with great crops. It is not until you come to Naples and the southern part of the peninsula that you see poverty common and so deep. Undoubtedly misery is very abundant in the southern part of the Italian peninsula. Ignorance is quite as deep as poverty there. The agricultural pursuits of the people are less remunerative and manufacturing is slower of development. The population is too redundant for comfortable living.

In the minds of just and reasonable persons none of these conditions will justify anarchy. Indeed, Malatesta, like all his kind, uses language with abandoned incorrectness. Probably none of those who profess anarchy are anarchists. If they were striving rationally and morally for betterment of their own condition and a more popular form of government, one would understand their aspirations. But when a man pronounces himself a socialistic anarchist and attempts to justify assassination, or even to palliate that horrible way of dealing with wrongs, real or imaginary, he discovers himself as a fit subject for membership in the society of the Black Hand and also in that of the Black Heart.

DREADNOUGHTS!

PROPHECY AND FACT.

In 1852 William H. Seward, speaking in the Senate of the United States, uttered this remarkable prophecy:

"Henceforth European commerce, European politics, European thought, and European activity, although actually gaining force, and European connections, although actually becoming more intimate, will nevertheless relatively sink in importance; while the Pacific Ocean, its shores, its islands, and the vast region beyond will become the chief theater of events in the world's great hereafter."

This was nearly two generations ago. At that time there were no telegraph lines west of the Mississippi River, and probably not 100 miles of railroad. This prophecy was uttered fifteen years before the first regular steamship service was put on between San Francisco and Asia. It was just after California had been admitted to the Union, and before very much was known about this State or any part of the Coast, their wealth or possibilities. When this great statesman stood in the Senate and made this prophecy, nearly all the Americans in California regarded the State as a mining camp, and looked upon civilization here as tentative and dubious. There were less than 100,000 people in California, and the whole country between the Missouri River and the Coast was a wilderness. China had but just opened its ports to trade, and Japan was at that time a "hermit kingdom."

When Seward made this prophecy, between the Missouri River and the Coast there were scarcely a quarter of a million inhabitants. Ten years later the population of California would have perished in a dry year had it not been fed by charity, shiploads of food being sent out from New York to relieve the people on the Coast.

At the end of the half century the whole country between the Missouri River and the Pacific Coast is filled with an industrious and prosperous population. Half a dozen transcontinental railroad lines connect the Coast at various points with the whole East. Several lines of steamships ply between Coast ports and Asiatic ports, and the coastwise trade up and down Western America is as great today as was that of the Atlantic Coast when Seward uttered this prophecy. The mineral wealth which has added annually so much to the riches of the American people is all coming from the western half of the hemisphere. Alaska is yielding up millions of gold, and as many millions from her fisheries. In the time to come the woods of that then unknown country will be our main reliance for timber. The coal deposits of this newly acquired region are of vast extent and value.

The sparse population of the Pacific Coast in 1852 waited years for the construction of the little railroad across the Isthmus of Panama, which made travel so much easier and so much safer than it had been around the Horn or across the isthmus up the malarial Chagres River on mule back. It was eighteen years later that the first transcontinental railroad was built. In a few more years, instead of the Panama Railroad, we shall have the Panama Canal. The United States has acquired Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, and has a protectorate over the far-away Philippines on the edge of the far Orient down near the equator. The commerce of this country with China, Japan and Australia is counted by tens of millions in and out in each case.

A half century, since Seward in the Senate astonished the people of the United States with his prophecy, has wrought these wonderful changes, converting his predictions into actual fact. Look ahead another half century, and we shall have a development along the shores of the Pacific and across its broad waters which will dwarf the wonders seen since Seward's prophecy. The greatness of the Pacific commerce in future years is beyond the grasp of thought or the flight of imagination.

Direct Primaries in Georgia.

[Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

The editor of Uncle Remus's Magazine declar the March issue that the direct primary "has li squeezed the South dry of the sap of statesman and that, though it has been "perhaps a nece evil" in the past, it is one that should be no l endured.

It is possibly well to say here that the ma in which those criticisms appear is trying more than a periodical of entertainment. lian Harris, son of the beloved teller of tales the present editor, endeavors to discuss public tions seriously and from a broad American point.

These southern censures of the direct pri have a special interest for the reason that the posed success in the South of that favorite pe panacea undoubtedly weighed heavily with the erage voter hereabouts in consenting to try it. we find it denounced as a thing which "rots s manship" by a thoughtful southern writer in terms as these:

In nine cases out of ten there is no issue platform—and, as in the two recent gubernat primaries in Georgia, the result is an outpouri personal abuse, vicious cartooning and a flow of lingsgate that would make a fishwife faint pure ecstacy. Not one step forward is taken in cating the people in the issues that confront the in the problems and perplexities of our more ever complicated system of government. So primary, benevolent in its outward aspects first intentions, has driven the big vital issues of the people's grasp.

This is a description of the direct primary s works in the South generally and in Georgia particular. Yet how much of it is true also of direct primary in Illinois! Let the reader think h to last July and August.

Credit is cheerfully given to each candidate trying as best he could to discuss the real is Unfortunately, Mr. Deneen and his newspaper gans had begun by assuming that the censure the conduct of the State institutions for which Deneen was officially responsible, had a purely p sonal animus. Having started on that line it humanly impossible to leave it.

And even without the handicap of a bad be ning, and with the most loyal will on either si discuss the issues on their merits alone, those were necessarily obscured by the exciting spe of a personal encounter.

The spectators of a battle can take little thou which of the armies ought to win. They are too interested in marking the attack and the defe They see the battle as a battle, and can see nothing else.

And so the "vital issues" are "driven out of peoples' grasp" by the excitements of the pers combat. The people are not informed and educa They are merely excited, and that not for a visi tion of principles, but for personal success. Growth of California's Agricultural Resources Unparalleled.

By J. T. Moriarty.

The following statements, based upon a s what careful study of the census reports of Federal government, show briefly the develop of California's agricultural resources between 18 and 1900. They also show how it compares w that of her sister States, and the United State taken as a whole, during the same period.

The figures are not brought down to a later d than 1900, for the reason that no statistics available for the several items named, and cover all the States for any later year.

The States whose names are given along w that of California are those that rank next to in the various matters alluded to, all the rest them, of course, falling further behind her those specifically mentioned.

The increase in the number of farms between years above named was: California, 83-fold; 29-fold; the United States, 4-fold.

The decrease in the average size of farms was: California, 12-fold; South Carolina, 6-fold; United States, a little more than one-fourth of a fold. This statement shows a rapid elimination of the monopoly element in the ownership of California farm lands.

The increase in the average value per acre of farm lands, with improvements thereon, was: California, 25-fold; Iowa, 7-fold; the United States, materially less than 2-fold.

The increase in the acreage of farmlands, improved, was: California, 360-fold; Iowa, 5-fold; the United States, 4-fold.

The increase in the value of farm implements and machinery was: California, 205-fold; Iowa, 50-fold; United States, 5-fold.

The increase in the total value of farm property of every kind, was: California, 85-fold; Iowa, 7-fold; the United States, less than 4-fold.

Taking the foregoing statement as a whole, aside from what is said of unimproved farm lands and live stock, it is safe to affirm that no other section of country on earth made a relative percentage of increase in the same time one-half as great as that of California.

TRIAL BREAKS ALL RECORDS.

Thirteenth Week of Calhoun Case Begins Today.

Two Thousand and More Jurymen Examined.

Fifty-six Days Have Been Consumed Already.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4.—With every expectation of completing the case this week, attorneys engaged in the trial of Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railroads, will enter tomorrow upon the thirteenth week of what promises to be the longest criminal action that has encumbered the calendar of the Superior Court in many years.

Since the effort to secure a jury was undertaken, on January 12, another department of the court has become involved through an injunction issued to restrain the search of the United Railroads offices, and Superior Judge Murasky will hear tomorrow evidence and argument for and against the allegation that three attaches of the District Attorney's office and a police sergeant were guilty of contempt in disobeying an order of the court while the raids on the corporation's offices were in progress.

Already the trial has broken every record established in the case of Abraham Ruef, where a jury was completed in ten weeks, with fifty days of actual court proceedings. In the Calhoun case there have been fifty-six days and more than eighty days' elapsed time.

Tomorrow's special venire, the thirty-first summoned in the trial, will bring the total number of citizens examined as talesmen up to 2130. Of these, about 1300 have been excused by the court for various reasons, and others have been actually examined in court. Six jurors were impeached and discharged after acceptance, and others have been excused upon peremptory challenges, of which the prosecution retains one and the defense six. In the event that Judge Lawlor allows the application for a thirteenth juror the prosecution will have two challenges and the defense eight.

The typewritten record of the case already consists of fifty-six volumes, which makes a pile nearly three feet high. There are 9650 pages of this record, containing approximately 2,000,000 words. Reading at the rate of three pages an hour, it would require 3215 hours to peruse the entire record to date.

The cost of transcribing this mass of testimony has been about $4320.

The jurors already sworn to try the case are in the custody of two bailiffs, and the party is domiciled at a local hotel. In addition to forbidding the use of newspapers in their rooms, the jurors are allowed to communicate with their families or friends only by directing their business affairs through Judge Lawlor. The only agreement among the attaches has been given authority to adopt some different method of recreation or diversion for the older and younger men in his charge. Twice a week the jurors visit a theater, and on Sundays they are allowed to take a drive in one of the parks.

HIS DEATH ENDS HUNT.

Wife Breaks Mysterious Silence After Husband Dies of Grief.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Immediately after the death of Andrew P. Nelson, who died here Friday from grief and pneumonia, following a continent-wide search for his wife, Mrs. Nelson has wired from New York, instructing a local attorney to have the body embalmed, pending her arrival, and to take charge of Nelson's estate, valued at $15,000.

In the meantime her two brothers, living near Spokane, had arrived here to take charge of Nelson's affairs. Mrs. Nelson did not give her New York address.

Until she arrives her motive for allowing her husband to spend thousands searching for her, and, finally to die of grief and disappointment, while she gave no sign that she was alive, must remain a mystery. She returned last October from a visit to Denmark. Nelson established that she disembarked from a steamer in New York, but could get no trace thereafter. He hired detectives and lawyers to aid in the search, besides publicly offering $1000 reward.

PIONEER HORSEMAN DEAD.

Frisco Fisher Dies Suddenly in the Mountains Back of Madrone, Near San Jose.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN JOSE, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Frisco Fisher, the pioneer horseman and capitalist of Coyote, dropped dead today in the mountains back of Madrone, according to word brought by courier today. Coroner Kell left to investigate the case this afternoon and has not as yet returned. Fisher left his home in Coyote with a double team and several laborers early today for his place in the mountains back of Madrone.

Fisher was about sixty years old, and was born in an adobe house at Coyote. His father was an Englishman who married the beautiful daughter of an old Spanish family. The descendants of this union today include some of the most prominent families of the country. Fisher was a brother of Mrs. Murphy Columbet, who is perhaps the largest land owner in the valley.

ATTACK CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

Congregation of New York Church Agree to Join Fight on Cult of Mrs. Eddy.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A congregation which packed the First Baptist Church, Broadway and Seventy-ninth street, tonight, joined in a remarkable demonstration against Christian Science, led by the Rev. I. M. Haldeman, D.D., pastor of the church.

At the conclusion of his attack, Dr. Haldeman turned to the audience and called on every one of them who was willing to enlist in a fight on Chrustian Science to stand and sing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

"You must show your colors, you must do something. This is the most dangerous and insiduous attack ever made upon the gospel of Jesus Christ," he urged. With the exception of half a dozen who occupied rear seats, the audience arose and joined in the singing of the hymn.

"I lift up my voice tonight," said the preacher, "to warn all who hear me against Christian Science. I proclaim that it is neither science on the one hand nor Christianity on the other. It is not scientific, because it denies that the heavens above exist; that the stars of the firmament shine. It is not even decent lunacy; it is a lie and an insult to intelligence."

SEEK TO HONOR GOD.

Gen. William Booth Tells American People to Abandon Pursuit of Wealth and Pleasure.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 4.—Gen. William Booth, whose eightieth birthday is to be celebrated throughout the world next Saturday, has replied to the score of congratulatory cablegrams with a message to the American people. It follows:

"After passing eighty years in this world, with almost countless opportunities for observing the purpose for which men generally live, and the disappointments they so commonly suffer, it seems reasonable that I should have formed some opinion as the course they ought to follow if they are to have any real success.

"So on this, my eightieth birthday, I tell the American people this: If they will seek the honor of God, the reign of righteousness, the welfare of the friendless poor, the riches that endure forever, with the same self-sacrificing activity with which they seek the wealth and pleasures of this world, they will have a good chance of finding that life of satisfaction which now so often eludes them, and of building up a pattern nation for the world to imitate.

"William Booth, General."

INDIANA RUNS ON THE ROCKS.

Pacific Mail Boat Ashore at Magdalena Bay.

Cruiser Albany Rescues All Her Passengers.

Steamer Is Resting Easily on Rocky Bottom.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4.—According to advices received by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, the steamer Indiana, bound from Mazatlan to San Francisco, went ashore during a heavy fog in Magdalena Bay last night, and is still on the rocks.

The passengers with their personal baggage and the mail, were removed by the cruiser Albany, of the Pacific fleet, and the tugs Fortune and Navajo.

The passengers have been placed aboard the ships of the fleet, and will be picked up by the City of Sydney, which will leave Acapulco for Magdalena Bay tomorrow.

The statement issued by the Pacific Mail Company says the Indiana is ashore on Cape Tosco, the southern extremity of Santa Marguerita Bay. She is resting easily on a rocky bottom, and is protected from the sea and westerly winds.

The Indiana sailed from Mazatlan yesterday and carries a valuable cargo for this port. The messages received by her owners, say the water is fourteen feet deep in hold No. 1; sixteen feet in hold No. 2; twelve feet in hold No. 3, and fourteen feet in hold No. 4.

The company estimates the value of the ship at $200,000 and the cargo at $400,000. Of the cargo, 1200 tons is general freight from New York, and 1200 tons coast freight.

The officials of the company say they have heard nothing beyond one wireless message, but believe there is little hope of saving the vessel.

Every effort was made to procure lighters to be rushed to the wreck, and it is hoped that a large portion of the cargo can be taken off without damage. The lower holds are flooded, but the between-decks freight is still above water, and is likely to remain so, as the vessel lies on rock bottom.

One item of the cargo is 11,000 sacks of coffee.

TO SELL DEWEY SUPPLY SHIP.

Navy Wants to Get Rid of Old Hulk, Zafiro, Purchased by the Admiral.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Bremerton navy yard will soon make another attempt to sell the merchant ship Zafiro, which is useless to the government. The ship was purchased by Admiral, then Commodore Dewey, a few days before the battle of Manila. He bought her to obtain the coal in her bunkers to enable him to take his fleet to the Philippines from Hongkong. The Zafiro was an old hulk, even when Dewey bought her for about a million. After the close of the Spanish-American war, the ship was brought to Bremerton and put out of commission. Several attempts have been made to give the ship to the army, to use as a cable ship, but army officials, after inspecting the craft, declared her unseaworthy.

A board of inspection will soon be appointed to inspect and appraise the Zafiro again, and the Navy Department will attempt to sell her.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

Ranchers' Fellow Countrymen Assert He Has Been Whisked Away by Malign Spirits.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAUSALITO, April 4.—Asserting that Manuel Silva, a Portuguese ranch employé, who disappeared several days ago, was whisked away by malign spirits, his countrymen near here, refuse to go near the place where he was seen last, or to venture forth after dark.

Silva was driving to Sausalito three days ago with his employer, Constantine Dellao, a rancher of Lagoon, when he got out of the vehicle to open a gate. After driving through Dellao turned to call to Silva, but the man had disappeared. Thinking he had gone back to the ranch, Dallao drove on.

When he returned home he found that Silva had not put in an appearance. Searchers found no trace of him. The gate where Silva was seen last, is in a flat, open country, which does not afford enough cover to conceal a man.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4.—Because a thief, who ransacked the rooms of Miss Ella Turner, in the Claremont apartments, tore the left-hand knobs from several bureau drawers, the police are searching for a left-handed crook. The burglar took heirlooms valued at $800. Most of the jewels are engraved with the family monogram.

SURPRISED INTO PANIC.

Old Lady, Slightly Deaf, Starts Demonstration When She Finds Telephone in Her Pew.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PITTSBURGH (Pa.) April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There was almost a panic in the First United Presbyterian Church this morning when Mrs. Mary Humphreys, one of the old and tried members of the congregation, ran foul of the new telephone wires, which the church has put in for the use of parishioners a trifle deaf.

Rev. George W. Robinson has insisted that these machines be put in, extending from the pulpit to the pews of some of his older parishioners. Some of the old people had not been informed of the surprise that was in store for them.

Mrs. Humphreys was one of the surprised, and when she saw the "telephone looking thing" in her pew though she had not heard a sermon for sixteen years, she took it up. When she heard some words she began a demonstration [illegible]

WINS RACE WITH DEATH.

H. C. Van Norman Travels from Los Angeles to Pittsburgh, Dying Twelve Hours Later.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PITTSBURGH, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Harry C. Van Norman, formerly of Pittsburgh, died here yesterday afternoon in the arms of his family, after being carried across the continent by his young wife in one of the most exciting races with death. Van Norman married Miss Jenks, daughter of Frank Jenks, city editor of the Gazette-Times of Pittsburgh, five years ago, and went to Los Angeles as manager of a Rochester, N. Y., house. He became ill some months since and just one week ago he was told by physicians that there was no chance to live. He asked to be brought back home.

His wife raced with him to their Pittsburgh friends, reaching here twelve hours before he died. For six days and nights Mrs. Van Norman did not sleep, stopping off a few hours at Houston, Tex., with her dying husband. The physicians there urged her on, saying there was no hope and if he would see his own people she must go fast with him.

Mr. Van Norman, who had been worn practically to a skeleton, from 195 pounds to 108, insisted on trying to carry their grips from the train in Pittsburgh to the cab, but collapsed. He was insistent that he would again be well in the Pittsburgh air, but while talking to his wife yesterday afternoon he again collapsed and was dead in a few minutes. Mr. Van Norman was 29 years of age and a member of some of the best clubs in Pittsburgh.

MISS COLEMAN WILL WAIT.

Marriage of Noted Suffragette Is Postponed on Account of Illness of Bride-to-Be.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The marriage of Miss Mary Coleman, lawyer and suffragette, which was to have been celebrated in Easter week, has been postponed until June because the prospective bride is just recovering from a severe attack of grip.

Frederick L. Hardenbrook, a Harvard man, in the real estate business in this city, is the man in the case. Does he believe women should vote? Of course he does.

All the details of the wedding have been agreed to except one. Miss Coleman said today she had not decided whether to take her husband's name or retain her own.

When the news to the effect that Kansas had just decided that married women might retain their maiden name was read to her, she said that the name of Coleman would suit her better than Hardenbrook.

When the marriage does take place in June, the ceremony will be performed by a woman minister, the Rev. Lydia Kingsmill Commander, who has left the pulpit to give all her time to the suffrage cause. The ushers will also be women, and the wedding cake will be distributed in small boxes labeled "votes for women."

FIGHTING GOVERNMENT.

PARIS, April 4.—The revolutionary labor organizations have made another move in their campaign against the government. A meeting attended by 15,000 workmen was held today on the initiative of the unions of electricians and masons.

M. Pataud, secretary of the electricians' union, and M. Yvetot, a leader of the General Confederation of Labor, and several labor agitators made revolutionary speeches.

It was decided to appoint a central strike committee, the composition of which will be kept a secret to prevent arrest of the members. This committee will be empowered to take whatever action it deems proper and may even call a general strike.

QUICK WORK.

ROCK RIPPERS TOP NOTCHERS.

Honors Are New Laurels by Aqueduct Constructors.

Another American Record Is Apparently Broken.

"Speed Most Surprising" Is Engineer's Verdict.

Aqueduct engineers and miners have added to their laurels for rapid construction by what they believe is the American thirty-one-day tunnel record for boring excavation in hard rock with two shifts at work. Twice in succession the American three-shift record has been broken on the Elizabeth tunnel and now the new honors go to the men at work on the Jawbone division, eighteen miles north of Mojave. In March forces at work under direction of Construction Superintendent L. S. Preston made a total distance of 370 feet on each of two tunnels.

"The speed is most surprising," said J. B. Lippincott, assistant chief engineer, yesterday, "and while tabulations are not available, the men feel confident that they have cut a notch a little bit higher than any before them. Incidentally, of the eight miles of tunnel, which compose by far the most difficult part of the Jawbone division, and the Jawbone division is the hardest section on the aqueduct, I do not believe that we shall have much over a mile or a mile and a half to excavate by the end of the month. In other words, between five and six miles of tunnels have been excavated on the Jawbone since we began work last October."

At the south portal of the Elizabeth tunnel, the thirty-one-day record was snatched from the engineers of the government's Gunnison tunnel in October, 1908, by a run of 406 feet, which was sixteen feet in excess of the previous best performance of American mining engineers. Last month, at the same place, Tunnel Superintendent W. C. Aston and his men again eclipsed their own record by ten feet. To do this the work was carried on continuously throughout the twenty-four hours of the day.

On the Jawbone division the men worked sixteen hours out of the twenty-four. All things being equal and working continuously, the Jawbone men would have pushed the tunnel faces 525 feet forward in each instance. However, there is an advantage in working two eight-hour shifts, and that is that opportunity is given for the tunnel to clear of gasses from powder explosions and the muckers in clearing away the blasted rock do not interfere with the miners.

The city has provided on the Jawbone section the most modern tunnel equipment possible to procure, and every facility is given to the men for rapid work. Leyner drills are used by Preston's men, and the power is furnished from the city's own hydro-electric plants on Cottonwood Creek, near Owens Lake, and on Division Creek, in Owens Valley.

A. C. Hansen, who made an enviable record for himself in the building of the city's outfall sewer, is in charge of the entire Jawbone division, where the forces now at work number nearly one thousand men.

William Mulholland, chief engineer, who returned yesterday from a trip of inspection over the aqueduct, in speaking of the character of the work being done on the Jawbone and the two runs of 370 feet, said:

"Don't think that all the good men are at work on the Elizabeth tunnel because two American records have been broken there. I don't know what the record is for two shifts, but in this contest which is going on between the tunnel men I believe the Jawbone men miners, with 370 feet to their credit, have surpassed anything done on the aqueduct so far. The rock in which they worked is practically the same as that encountered in the Elizabeth tunnel and the other conditions are much the same."

FOR STOLEN PICTURES.

Harry Miller was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives Ingram and Carroll on the charge of having entered the Riley studio at No. 324 Winston street on the night of March 15 and stolen oil paintings to the value of $500. Miller was detected through having offered the pictures for sale. One of these, valued at $150, has been recovered by the police, having been sold to a saloonkeeper. Miller is charged with grand larceny.

SHEEPMAN FLEECED.

Six men, charged with stealing a drove of sheep from the ranch of P. J. Watson, near Wilmington, are prisoners in the County Jail. They are George Lowe, a white man, and Jesus Grelieda, Phillip Moreo, Pio Moreo, V. Moreo and Francisco Moreo, Mexicans. They were brought in from Wilmington Saturday night by Deputy Constable Mullern. All are charged with grand larceny and are held under ... each.

BECOMES VIOLENT.

Insane Man Makes a Terrific Fight Against Officers Who Go to Arrest Him.

After being kept securely locked for two days in a room at his home in Sawtelle by his parents, who feared that in his violently insane condition he might harm other members of the family, Fred Lundy was brought to the County Hospital last night. He will be arraigned before the Lunacy Commission tomorrow.

When Officers Hutchinson and Hubbard, who were sent from the county institution, entered Lundy's room the maniac put up a terrific fight, but was overpowered after a lengthy tussle. Lundy had previously been in an insane hospital, but was reported cured and recently returned to his home. A few days ago he became suddenly violent. In fear, his parents locked him in his room and then barricaded the doors and windows.

SHEEPMAN DIES HERE.

Following an Operation for Ulceration of the Stomach Death Comes to Edgar Tevis Smith.

Edgar Tevis Smith, a sheep owner of Seligman, Ariz., died Friday at No. 225 South Occidental boulevard, after an operation for ulceration of the stomach. While his business was in Arizona he had made his home in Los Angeles during the last five years, going back and forth to attend to his property interests.

He was born at Greenville, Ill., in 1856, was a graduate of Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., and was a civil engineer by profession. He lived for many years in St. Louis, where he was connected with the Frisco Road as purchasing agent and assistant to the general manager. He was married in 1902 to Miss Sarah Colladay of St. Louis, whom he leaves his widow. He also leaves three small children, Edgar, Alice and Sallie. The remaining members of his family are three sisters, Mrs. Lucy E. Smith, Mrs. Robert London and Mrs. J. W. Wham of St. Louis, a brother, Capt. Clarke S. Smith, U.S.A., and two nieces, Mrs. Hansen Moore of this city, and Miss Mary Wham, of St. Louis.

Funeral services will be held at the residence at 10 o'clock this (Monday) morning. Rev. Baker P. Lee of Christ Church will officiate. The interment will be at Hollywood Cemetery. The honorary pallbearers named are Gail B. Johnson, Lawrence B. Burck, James Drake, Thomas B. Inch, Alfred Gwinn and Frank Miller.

MEXICO NEEDS WHEAT.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An official decree, signed by President Diaz, has just been issued, which says that in view of the fact that the effects of the scarcity of wheat in the national markets have not ceased, the President has seen fit to order the following:

"Wheat that shall be imported through the customhouses of the republic after April 3, next, effective until the following June 15, inclusive, shall continue to be subject to the tax of 1 peso for each one hundred kilograms, gross weight."

This tax is at the rate of ½ cent per kilogram, American money, as compared with the former tariff of 1½

ANTICIPATION.

JOYS ASSURED VISITING ELKS.

Allegorical Parade Details Are Perfected.

Will Be Feature of Herd's Midsummer Carnival.

Fifteen Hundred Dollars to Be Given as Prizes.

Details of the floral and allegorical parade, which will take place on Friday morning of Elks' week, have just been completed by Postmaster Flint, chairman of the executive committee. He is now making arrangements for the other entertainments for the visitors.

The floral and allegorical parade will be one of the most spectacular ones of the week. It will start at 10 o'clock and the first division will consist of decorated automobiles. This city is noted for its splendid cars and Mr. Flint expects that hundreds of the best ones will be in line. Decorations may be of flowers, bunting or tissue paper.

In the second division there will be at least 300 gaily-decked horseback riders. The first section will comprise horses with silver trappings; the second, fancy-gaited animals; the third, horses with floral decorations, and the fourth will consist of a troop of lancers.

In the fifth, will be handsome women mounted on spirited steeds, and attired in costume, and in the sixth will appear the old Horace Greeley stage, with scouts and cowboys as escort. The last section will consist of caballeros.

FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS.

The third division will be devoted to fraternal organizations. Each society in the city has been asked to enter a typical float. The following will probably be represented in this division: Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Branch No. 24; National Association of Letter Carriers, Branch No. 57; United National Association of Postoffice Clerks, Los Angeles Branch; Railway Mail Association, Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, Fraternal Brotherhood, Ancient Order of Hibermians, Knights of Columbus, Young Men's Institute, Royal Arcanum, Los Angeles Lodge, No. 99; Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Al Malaikah Temple, Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine; Ancient Order of Foresters, Ancient Order of United Druids, Brotherhood of American Yeomen, Foresters of America, Grand Army of the Republic, Improved Order of Redmen, Independent Order of Foresters, Knights of the Maccabees, Ladies of the Maccabees, Modern Woodmen of America, Woodmen of the World, Army of the Philippines, Confederate Veterans, United Spanish War Veterans, Western Fraternal Association, Independent Order of Redmen, Women of Woodcraft, Royal Court, International Alliance, and theater employés.

CIVIC INTERESTS.

The fourth division will include labor organizations, and the fifth will represent civic interests. Among the entries in the latter are the following: Los Angeles fire department, Park department, Chamber of Commerce, Produce Exchange, Builders' Exchange and Union League. These towns will probably have floats, or tallyhos: Venice, Redondo, Hollywood, Pasadena, San Pedro, Long Beach, Santa Ana, Pomona, Glendale, Covina, Monrovia, Whittier, Santa Monica and Ocean Park.

Honolulu citizens are planning to enter a magnificent float that shall be typical of Hawaii. Seattle may also have a float suggestive of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.

The sixth division is to be one of the most attractive in the parade and will comprise representatives of the numerous nationalities of the city. It is planned to have every large nation on earth represented by appropriate floats and marching bands of villagers.

Postmaster Flint has announced the following prizes for the parade: Best-decorated automobile, $250; second best, $150; third, $100; most attractive float, $500; second, $200; third, $100; largest uniformed body in line, $150; second, $75.

Sheriff Hammel will be grand marshal. Harry Harrington will be in charge of the automobile division; W. T. Calderwood of the fraternal division; H. S. McManus of the labor organizations, and Louis P. Collette of the "Parade of All Nations."

DETERMINED TO DIE.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Indalecio Alarcon, 27 years old, said to be the son of a wealthy plantation owner, near Parral, Mex., tried to commit suicide today by stabbing himself twelve times in his left side, cutting his throat, swallowing a mixture of carbolic acid and port wine, and throwing ... out of a third story win-

DRINKS CHLOROFORM.

Young Woman, Despondent Over Her Ill Health, Attempts to End Her Life.

Despondent because of ill health, Miss Laura Hoagland, 16 years of age, attempted to end her life last night at 9 o'clock in her room at the Hotel El Monte, No. 832½ South Broadway, by drinking two ounces of chloroform. The landlord was attracted by moans coming from the room, broke open the door and found the young woman lying on the bed unconscious.

She was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where police surgeons said after treatment that she will recover. Before Miss Hoagland took the chloroform she wrote and mailed letters to her relatives and a number of friends telling of her determination to end her life. After recovering consciousness at the Receiving Hospital the young woman refused to discuss her act.

Miss Hoagland came to Los Angeles two years ago from West Coshocton, Pa., with a Mrs. Pilkington, who has since left the city. Miss Hoagland secured employment as a domestic at which she worked until six weeks ago, when she was thrown out of employment. She then took rooms at the Hotel El Monte where she received frequent visits from Lawrence Rhoades of No. 162 West Fifty-fifth street. Police are now searching for the young man. Miss Hoagland has a father living in Coshockton. Her mother is dead. She is being held in the woman's ward at Central Station.

TOUGH.

CANARY JOINT RAIDED AGAIN.

THREE ARRESTS IN NIGHT DASH UPON YELLOW COTTAGE.

Notorious Offender, Often Fined, Taken With Wife and Negro Cook for Violation of Liquor Ordinance. Men and Women Routed from Place. Jail Sentence May Be Demanded.

For the third time within the last few months the notorious Canary Cottage on Mission road, just outside the Los Angeles city limits, was raided last night by Chief Detective S. L. Browne of the District Attorney's office. Three arrests were made and several men and women frequenters of the place were tumbled out of the rooms they occupied, being permitted to go after they had been subpoenaed as witnesses.

Those arrested were Charles S. Rice, keeper of the place; his wife, and a negro cook. All are charged with violating the liquor laws. An additional charge probably will be lodged against them today—that of keeping a disorderly house.

The raid was planned several days ago by Browne, who had information that the joint was still running in violation of the law. Early last evening the detective, accompanied by Officers Ramsey, Maheal and Carey of his department, and Constable Austin of Pasadena, swooped down in an automobile.

The honk of the auto horn is a familiar sound at the little yellow house, which has been the scene of many a drunken carousal by parties of men, women and young girls.

The place was brightly lighted in anticipation of a rushing Sunday-night trade when the officers arrived. There were sounds of revelry within, and apparently no suspicion that the agents of the District Attorney were stalking abroad.

Placing an officer at each of the exits, Browne entered. He already had obtained evidence that liquor was sold illegally and he at once placed Rice and his wife under arrest, later taking the negro cook, who has served before as waiter at the resort.

Then the cottage was searched, three men and two women being routed from the bed-rooms. The members of this quintette were known to the raiders and they were allowed to go, though they will be obliged to appear as witnesses.

A large quantity of liquor was confiscated and will be placed in evidence at the trial.

The prisoners were taken to Pasadena and locked up in the City Jail. They will be arraigned in a justice court in that city today.

Rice is an old offender. He has conducted the Canary Cottage for several years and on numerous occasions has been under arrest. Always he has fought bitterly, but seldom has he escaped with a light fine.

Time and again he has defied the District Attorney and the Sheriff, persisting in resuming operations after each arrest, only to be trapped and returned to court. For a time it was supposed that he had gone out of business, but it was not for long. The cottage was too popular among the travelers of the cocktail route, and the certainty of succeeding fines was not sufficient to awe the keeper into submission to the law.

In the prosecution of this latest case it is said the District Attorney will insist upon a jail sentence as the only means of closing the resort for good.

CIVIC INTERESTS.

The fourth division will include labor organizations, and the fifth will represent civic interests. Among the entries in the latter are the following: Los Angeles fire department, Park department, Chamber of Commerce, Produce Exchange, Builders' Exchange and Union League. These towns will probably have floats, or tallyhos: Venice, Redondo, Hollywood, Pasadena, San Pedro, Long Beach, Santa Ana, Pomona, Glendale, Covina, Monrovia, Whittier, Santa Monica and Ocean Park.

Honolulu citizens are planning to enter a magnificent float that shall be typical of Hawaii. Seattle may also have a float suggestive of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.

The sixth division is to be one of the most attractive in the parade and will comprise representatives of the numerous nationalities of the city. It is planned to have every large nation on earth represented by appropriate floats and marching bands of villagers.

Postmaster Flint has announced the following prizes for the parade: Best-decorated automobile, $250; second best, $150; third, $100; most attractive float, $500; second, $200; third, $100; largest uniformed body in line, $150; second, $75.

Sheriff Hammel will be grand marshal. Harry Harrington will be in charge of the automobile division; W. T. Calderwood of the fraternal division; H. S. McManus of the labor organizations, and Louis P. Collette of the "Parade of All Nations."

DETERMINED TO DIE.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Indalecio Alarcon, 27 years old, said to be the son of a wealthy plantation owner, near Parral, Mex., tried to commit suicide today by stabbing himself twelve times in his left side, cutting his throat, swallowing a mixture of carbolic acid and port wine, and throwing ... out of a third story win-men working. It is not customary to run the shop on Sunday, but Mitchell said they were behind on a contract. Mitchell was operating the sticker and Holmes was working a saw when the accident occurred. It is supposed a knot in the wood was the cause of the blade breaking. When Holmes was hit he was so dazed that he ran out on the street where Mitchell found him lying with his bowels protruding from the wound.

Holmes lives with his parents at No. 5556 Hillcrest drive. He was removed to the Pacific Hospital.

TURNS OVER.

AUTO HITS CAR, TWO INJURED.

STEERING GEAR BREAKS AT A CRITICAL MOMENT.

Realty Man and Woman Victims. Former Hurt in Back; Latter Sustains Dislocated Elbow and Other Mishaps at Thirty-eighth Street and Moneta Avenue.

An automobile, driven at high speed, crashed into the rear of a Moneta-avenue car at Thirty-eighth street and Moneta avenue yesterday afternoon, and turned completely over, spilling the occupants, O. E. Moyer, a real estate man residing at No. 4779 Moneta avenue, and Mrs. Grant Clear, of No. 126 South Beaudry street. Both were severely injured. The automobile was much damaged, and the rear steps of the street car were torn off and the passengers thrown into a panic. The accident was due to the breaking of the steering gear of the automobile.

Mrs. Clear is the wife of a street car conductor, and they live with her mother, Mrs. P. G. Riley, at No. 126 Beaudry avenue. They are friends of the Moyers.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Clear went to call on Mrs. Moyer. As she arrived at the house Mr. Moyer drove up in his machine and said he was going to meet his wife, and asked her to go with him.

Moyer, after the accident, carried Mrs. Clear to the sidewalk, and Dr. E. O. Sawyer, who was on the street car, examined her. He found that her right elbow was dislocated; that she had an abrasion on the forehead, and that one knee was injured.

A passing automobile was stopped and Mrs. Clear lifted into the tonneau and driven to her home, but as her mother was not home, she was taken to the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Mitchel, at 209 South Olive street. Later she was removed to the Receiving Hospital, where Drs. Quint and Wiley attended her.

Moyer thought, at first, that he had sustained only bruises, but it developed that his back was injured and he was obliged to go to bed.

EXCITING EXPERIENCE.

When Axle Breaks, Car Leaves Track. None of Fifty-two Passengers Injured.

When an axle of a West Jefferson-street car broke at Twentieth and Hoover streets, early last evening, the fifty-two passengers had an exciting experience, but not one of them was injured. The coach left the track and plowed a great furrow in the curb and sidewalk. It was inbound and going at the rate of about fifteen miles an hour when the accident happened.

Motorman William Robinson was thrown down, when the crash came, and before he had regained his feet, the other occupants of the car were scrambling to get out of it. That no one sustained anything worse than a severe jolting is remarkable.

Fortunately the coach remained upright; otherwise, the list of casualties might have been a long one. When it stopped, it was standing broadside to the street, with the front end partly buried in the sidewalk in front of No. 1927 Hoover street.

Conductor Charles Miller took the names of the passengers and then summoned a wrecker. Traffic was blocked for about an hour.

BLADE CRUELLY CUTS.

Flying Piece of Steel Severely Injures Workman Employed at a Planing Mill.

While at work in the West Coast planing mill, No. 228 East Fourth street, shortly before noon yesterday, Max Holmes, aged 20, was struck in the abdomen by a steel blade that flew from a "sticker" and severely injured. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital where an operation was performed by Dr. Quint. Only the abdominal wall was perforated, but the missle cut a hole four inches square. ... condition is serious

Your Easter Gloves Are Important

To be sure, they must harmonize or softly contrast with the tones of your frock. We are amply prepared to see to that; we'll match any color perfectly unless it's most unusual:

Cleopatra suede gloves in three-clasp style, fastening with large pearl buttons, tailored buttonholes, and silk filet embroidery in contrasting shades, will be most appropriate—here in pearl, mode, champagne or white $2.25

Glace gloves in two-button style we will show you in all sizes and ALL colors—we say that advisedly—at $1.75

Of course we fit and guarantee all the gloves that enter our store.

A Men's Grill
Has Been Added to Our Cafe

So many of our men patrons have requested us to set aside a space for their disposal that we have just arranged a part of our Fourth Floor Cafe for a grill room, where we invite all of you who are now our patrons to bring with you somebody who isn't to enjoy this new departure, which we feel sure will meet with your distinct approbation. Service, of course, a la carte and distinctly first-class in every respect. Eleven to two-thirty daily.

Staple and Fancy Hosiery

You probably have heard the old saying—"they who wear new stockings on Easter shall have good luck throughout the year." Let that be true or not, it is distinctly good luck to be able to buy such stockings as these:

Women's black cotton hose, with either all white, or split LINEN feet—something new that you'll appreciate even more after you've tried them than you will in hearing about them. All sizes, of course.

We can perfectly match any shade of goods in silk hosiery; try us.

"How Very Stylish and So Inexpensive"—

exclaims every woman who sees these handsome silk-mixed Rajahs; duplicates of the all-silk and even more durable, because you may put them in the wash tub without fear of their losing their soft sheen:

Self borders are shown on some pieces, in natural; others are bordered in Grecian key design with contrasting colors; there are a number of shades to choose from; and you may save half a dollar on every yard you buy, because we have cut their price from $1.50 to $1.00

Sturdy Scotch Zephyr ginghams in plain colors and every fancy combination you can imagine; 32 inches wide 25c

The Beauty of a Coulter Ready-to-Wear Suit

The perfection of a Coulter tailor-made suit is not a matter of costliness. The woman who goes out of this store in a $20 suit of ours is fit to consort with queens, as far as the good taste and correctness of her suit are concerned:

At $25 and $35—the average prices women pay for suits, we have honestly two hundred different STYLES—not suits, but styles—that will measure up to any $35 and $40 suits in town.

They include French serges, hard-twisted worsteds and mannish suitings; panamas, prunella cloths, plain and fancy worsteds—and any color your fancy wanders to.

We will guarantee delivery in time for Easter wearing, if you order early this week.

Easter Garments for Little Folks

weight of falsehood. I think Mr. Gyblin has padded his part with much personal comedy—which is surprisingly good. He has the real, convincing spontaneity of the natural comedian, and an adaptation to musical stunts which is quite phenomenal.

Desmond is called upon, for the first time in his life, to introduce a song. He gave this yesterday in a Cohanesque talking style, with the spotlight beaming bright, and when called upon for an encore brought down the house by playing it with cheerful vigor upon a mouth-organ, jigging to the same with sustained fervor if not at all moments with precision. There were encores until he could think of no more things to do.

The resourceful Mr. Beasley, who can give equally creditable performances in comedy, tragedy or farce, is delightfully situated in a breezy role which gives him a chance for a number of songs and much kindly satire after his own agreeable sort.

Blanche and Jessie Mae Hall—the latter a perfect soubrette in the best sense of the word—and very much to the worth of the show in a variety of musical and dramatic ways.

Henry Stockbridge, as a loose-jointed, lackadaisical house-servant with a penchant for stumbling, has a great deal of fun in his assignment. It is a fun which is contagious, and as Henry sings and dances well, he runs close to Gyblin in several of his specialties.

In brief, this is a song and specialty show; the costumes of the chorus are new, well chosen for color and neatly effective as to general scheme. And it is a good chorus, while the orchestra, under George Towle's direction, has gotten into fine musical comedy form.

This is not merely the ambitious effort of a dramatic stock company toward a musical production; it is the real thing.

Lillian Russell will appear at the Mason Operahouse tonight, presenting her company in "Wildfire," by George V. Hobart and George Broadhurst.

George Broadhurst's striking play of modern business life, "The Dollar-Mark," will enter its fifth week at the Belasco Theater this evening.

John Blackwood has the gout again. Too much of the money-sign play.

Your Easter Gloves Are Important

To be sure, they must harmonize or softly contrast with the tones of your frock. We are amply prepared to see to that; we'll match any color perfectly unless it's most unusual:

Cleopatra suede gloves in three-clasp style, fastening with large pearl buttons, tailored buttonholes, and silk filet embroidery in contrasting shades, will be most appropriate—here in pearl, mode, champagne or white $2.25

Glace gloves in two-button style we will show you in all sizes and ALL colors—we say that advisedly—at $1.75

Of course we fit and guarantee all the gloves that enter our store.

Has Been Added to Our Cafe

So many of our men patrons have requested us to set aside a space for their disposal that we have just arranged a part of our Fourth Floor Cafe for a grill room, where we invite all of you who are now our patrons to bring with you somebody who isn't to enjoy this new departure, which we feel sure will meet with your distinct approbation. Service, of course, a la carte and distinctly first-class in every respect. Eleven to two-thirty daily.

Staple and Fancy Hosiery

You probably have heard the old saying—"they who wear new stockings on Easter shall have good luck throughout the year." Let that be true or not, it is distinctly good luck to be able to buy such stockings as these:

Women's black cotton hose, with either all white, or split LINEN feet—something new that you'll appreciate even more after you've tried them than you will in hearing about them. All sizes, of course.

We can perfectly match any shade of goods in silk hosiery; try us.

"How Very Stylish and So Inexpensive"—

exclaims every woman who sees these handsome silk-mixed Rajahs; duplicates of the all-silk and even more durable, because you may put them in the wash tub without fear of their losing their soft sheen:

Self borders are shown on some pieces, in natural; others are bordered in Grecian key design with contrasting colors; there are a number of shades to choose from; and you may save half a dollar on every yard you buy, because we have cut their price from $1.50 to $1.00

Sturdy Scotch Zephyr ginghams in plain colors and every fancy combination you can imagine; 32 inches wide 25c

The Beauty of a Coulter Ready-to-Wear Suit

The perfection of a Coulter tailor-made suit is not a matter of costliness. The woman who goes out of this store in a $20 suit of ours is fit to consort with queens, as far as the good taste and correctness of her suit are concerned:

At $25 and $35—the average prices women pay for suits, we have honestly two hundred different STYLES—not suits, but styles—that will measure up to any $35 and $40 suits in town.

They include French serges, hard-twisted worsteds and mannish suitings; panamas, prunella cloths, plain and fancy worsteds—and any color your fancy wanders to.

We will guarantee delivery in time for Easter wearing, if you order early this week.

Easter Garments for Little Folks

Fresh as daisies--or the little tots themselves--all the things fond mothers will most appreciate, are here in this Infants' Wear Section. Just now, a hint of savings in little dresses:

Belted, French and Mother Hubbard styles of lawn, nainsook and linen dresses for children of six months to six years old; trimmed with dainty laces, and honestly worth up to and including $3.50; now, only $1.00

Beautiful Embroideries 15c yd
Aren't Many of Them Well Worth 50c? Buy Them Tuesday—Not Today

Just the kind of embroideries that women want to "stock up" with for spring and summer sewing--and how ridiculously low they're buyable! On Tuesday, though; not today--we want you to have time to make all preparations for being here early tomorrow:

Corset cover embroideries, flouncings, narrow edgings, baby embroideries—Swiss and cambric; all widths up to 18 inches—a little of it is shown in one of our display windows today; and values which every one of you know are good at prices up to fifty cents a yard; tomorrow 15c

Hand-Embr'dered Scarfs for $1.50

The opportunity's open for you to profit just now by our reductions on some splendid hand and machine embroidered scarfs:

Of course we bought them at far less than usual cost, or we couldn't begin to sell them for so little—sizes 18x45 to 18x54 inches; some scalloped, others hemstitched; all beautifully done, and worth, regularly up to $5; specially priced at $1.50

Repriced House Furnishings

Spring means open windows and fresh draperies and floor coverings. So these prices will be most opportune:

LACE CURTAINS, 95c PAIR: $1.25 and $1.50 values.

UPHOLSTERING VELOURS, 35c YD.: 27 inches wide; 75c value.

50-INCH VELOURS, $1.50 YD.: $2.50 value.

IMITATION ORIENTAL RUGS, $3.50: 3x5 feet; $4.75 values, $3.50.

BIGELOW AXMINSTER RUGS: Arlington Axminsters, 9x12; $45 value, $25; 8.3x10.6, $42 value, $22.50.

Wool Goods Drop in Price

Just space for hints of the good bargains today in wool goods. Don't overlook any one of them, for they're all splendid:

A line of CHIFFON VOILES in black and the newest spring colorings—mulberry, greys, greens, copper, taupe, Edison, ocean green, dark red, navy, etc., which sell in a regular way at $1.25 and $1.50—came to us at such a price that we can sell this one lot, 44-inch voiles, at 55c
The quantity is limited, however, and we can buy no more.

ALL WOOL PLAIDS, ETC., 50c—Another fortunate purchase that we had the chance to get; checks, stripes and plaids, all wool; in tan, grey, blue mixtures; blue or black with pin stripes; values to $1.25; 42 to 48 inches wide 50c

TAILORED SUITINGS, $2 TO $3.50—These are pure Australian and Austrian wool goods; made in Germany, England and France; they have body enough to hold their shape permanently; shown in our Reception and Fitting Rooms, adjoining the Dress Goods Section—some hundred different pieces; serges, worsteds and cheviots; they'd retail at $2 to $3.50 a yard.

SUITS TO MEASURE, $45.00—From the foregoing tailored goods; coats lined with Skinner's or all silk lining; styles the very newest; trimmings and interlinings of finest quality; all work guaranteed satisfactory from YOUR standpoint; made complete, for $45.00.

What's a New Dress Without a Silk Petticoat?

Years ago a silk petticoat was a luxury. Only recently have you been able to buy petticoats for as little as five dollars—petticoats as good for wear as their vastly more expensive sisters:

In the celebrated S. H. & M. silk petticoats which we sell the year round at five dollars, you will be able to match any shade you may care to; plain colors and changeables are here, in all sizes; every one guaranteed for three months' satisfactory wear, or you receive a new one in its place. Will you select today?

SPECIAL NOTICES—

TIMES COOK BOOK, NO. 5, READY TODAY. 2nd and 3rd editions is exhausted, is placed on sale at the counters of the publication department. This cook book of the series issued by The Times, contains recipes for hot Spanish and Mexican dishes and the hygienic department are big features of the publication. The recipes, issued by The Times Prize Cooking Contest, are generally from Southern California housewives and noted chefs. Price 25c; by mail, 5c additional. Address THE TIMES, Los Angeles.

SUNDAY REAL ESTATE LINERS—Classified real estate advertisements for insertion in SUNDAY TIMES must be in the office not later than 10:30 o'clock Saturday night. Other "want" advertisements for Sunday insertion will be taken over the counter until 11 o'p.m.

The great volume of liners printed in The Sunday Times, numbering regularly over 5000 separate announcements, makes this regulation absolutely necessary in order to get the big Sunday issue out on time.

STOCKS AND BONDS—
And Mortgages.

BONDS AS INVESTMENTS—
Finely handled.

There is much less trouble in handling a bond than a single mortgage loan, for you have but one paper to look after, viz. the bond itself. In the case of a single or straight mortgage loan, the investor has to look after the trust deed or mortgage, the note, the abstract of title or guarantee policy and the insurance policy. In the case of a bond you purchase of us you have none of these worries.

I cordially invite you to call and look over my offerings in bonds and stocks. It is no trouble for me to show you what I have and to explain anything you may want to know regarding them.

Articles by Experts Tell of the Food Values.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

FRESNO, April 3.—Gigantic strides are being made in the Raisin Day campaign in this city, and hundreds of letters are coming and going daily relative to this day. The Rock Island and Frisco Railroad has taken up the proposition, and will send men out all over its lines advertising the day.

Hundreds of thousands of posters, placards, stickers recipes and other pieces of literature are being sent out all over the country, and it is expected that within a few days appreciable effects will be noticed.

OUGH HOUSE BALL GAMES.

Fight Almost Started at Vernon in Morning.

on Injures Dillon During Afternoon Battle.

ocals Win by Luck and Lose Through Errors.

Los Angeles, 2; Portland, 1. Morning game.

Portland, 5; Los Angeles, 1. Afternoon game.

It was a fine day for a murder yesterday and the only reason the coroner did not have to get out of bed and take a ride on the hearse with the undertaker, was because no one happened to have a gun on him. If some fellow could have dug up a knife some other fellow's head might have been sawed off his neck, but as it was an only occurrences of the day were an imitation scrap at the morning game between the ball players, the spiking of Dillon in the afternoon game by Rowdy Olson, by which Dillon will be on the shelf for a week and a slashing fist fight by two rabid fans on the ball grounds, following the afternoon game at the Chutes.

Other distinguishing incidents of the day were a home run over the left fence by Jud Smith in the morning game at Vernon; a noisy crowd of over 6000 fans at the afternoon game and the sending of a telegram by Henry Berry to President Cal Ewing of the league, asking that Rowdy Olson be suspended and fined, as George Wheeler will be fined by Berry. All this should be enough to hold the fans for several days and the fleavers will doubtless be remembered here every game this summer, if Olson is allowed to remain on the team.

This fellow Olson is said to be a bank clerk from the beautiful city of Hutchinson, Kan., wherever that is. He has been playing back in one of those corn crib leagues in the pig belt and some of the Los Angeles players say that the Portland bunch has made him the "fall guy." He has evidently been told that the way for a ball player to get along in this country is to take a running jump at about two players in every game and if he succeeds in tearing a lot of bones from their legs, he will become the most popular man in the West.

He tried this three or four times during the past week but made it work but twice and the second and most successful time was yesterday afternoon at the Chutes grounds before 4000 fans, when he spiked Dillon on the left side of his left foot, gashing a big hole in the flesh and severing a small artery. Dillon retired from the game with the blood running from his shoe and was taken home in an automobile after the doctor had sewed several stitches in his foot.

Several days ago Olson spiked Dillon at first base and yesterday morning in the game at the Vernon grounds, tried to gash Delmas in an attempted steal to second base, but Delmas was too quick for him. In the next inning of the same game, Wheeler attempted to get even by working the corn-crib league trick on Olson by jumping into second base feet foremost but Olson escaped. When Wheeler arose from the ground he rushed in in a shoulder butting contest that drew all the players from both teams around second base. McCredie rushed in from the field and grabbed Wheeler by the collar; several of the players used Barbary Coast words and elbowed each other around for several minutes and when the 200 fans had worked themselves into the hope of seeing a real rough house fight, everything was called off. This spirit was carried into the afternoon game until Olson saw his chance to cripple Dillon and after that, every time Olson came to the plate he was hissed and booed to a finish.

Olson told Umpire Toman that he intended to dive into third base for Smith, but Toman warned him to be careful, as Smith might knock the Olson "block" off. This fresh young kid who has started the dirty ball so early in the season will surely get "his" before long, and Henry Berry is trying to have him suspended and fined, for Berry declared last night that he would not stand for the corn-crib kind of ball in this city.

It was a large and exciting day for those who followed the two games through, and the fans certainly saw all kinds of baseball. The first game at Vernon was a little beauty, in which the features were the fine pitching of Harkness of the Beavers, Jud Smith's home run over the left fence and the luck of the locals in winning a contest in which they made but two hits while the Beavers were making eight. Pat Phillips heaved for the locals and had little trouble, except in two innings, although the Beavers stabbed him for no less than five two-baggers. Two of these hard pokes came together after two were out in the second inning, and accounted for the one run the enemy secured. Another might have been counted but for a little hard luck by Catcher Armbruster in being caught between third base and the plate in the ninth inning with but one out, but these hard-luck stories make up three-fourths of the history of the sport. There was little of the startling, aside from the near fight and Smith's home run, for Jud gets but few of these things.

The locals had the luck and they started off in the first inning to make use of it. Daley was passed, advanced to second on Godwin's sacrifice, stole third and scored on a wild pitch, this run being made without a hit. Then they went until the seventh inning before a hit was made, and Wheeler got this on a high liner over third base, after two were out. The final and winning hit was when Jud Smith opened the last half of the eighth with a house run over the left fence. Dillon tried a busher named Grindel of the St. Vincent team and he made a very good showing, giving every evidence of being a real ball player.

MATINEE BOUT.

The afternoon game at the Chutes was the one in which Rough House Olson distinguished himself and was marred by the fearful calamity that befell the locals in the fifth inning. Briswalter and Carson were the opposing pitchers, and Carson did much the better work, for he held the locals to five hits and walked but two, while Briswalter had seven swats, five passes and a hit-by-pitcher marked against him.

The Beavers jumped out in the lead in the first inning with an easy run. Rough House Olson hit to deep short for a single and after a hard recovery of the ball, Delmas threw it over first base, Olson going to second. He easily scored on McCredie's double past first. The local tied the score in the third inning on a fluke run, which resulted from Carson's sacrifice and Daley's high-bouncing infield single.

Ryan started the fifth for Portland with a bunt toward third, which he beat out. Olson attempted to sacrifice, but Briswalter threw the ball wildly to Dillon and both runners were safe, Olson spiking Dillon's foot in jumping on first base. Dillon was forced to retire from the game, with blood pouring from his shoe, and Howard took his place. Then Ort sacrificed, advancing the other runners, and Briswalter filled the bags with a pass to McCredie. Johnson bounced the ball to Howard, who forced Ryan at the plate and the bases were still full, with two out and no runs in. Kennedy followed with an easy bouncer to Smith and he made a low throw to first. The ball got away from Howard and rolled to the right field bleacher fence, Olson and McCredie scoring. Johnson was tearing around the bags and Howard tried to catch him at the plate but threw wildly and the ball went to the bleacher fence behind third base. Johnson and Kennedy scoring before it could be recovered.

With Dillon hurt and out of the game, the locals played in a half-hearted manner after that fearful inning and Carson pitched such good ball that they could do but little with him at any stage. There was little chance for either team to make runs after the fifth, but the big crowd stayed to the finish and when all but fifty fans had streamed out of the park, two fans got into a fist fight in the grounds and slugged each other a dozen times, until separated by the spectators who rushed up. This was the wind-up of a strenuous day and it would have furnished an attractive feature if it could have been started ten minutes earlier.

ERRORS LOSE GAME.

VERNON IS UNLUCKY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SACRAMENTO, April 4.—Opportune hits and an untimely error won for Sacramento today in the sixth inning, after Vernon had overlapped the two runs scored by the local club earlier in the game. Each team is credited with two errors and they figured in the result.

A feature of the game was the hitting of Bob McHale, retired player subbing for the Sacramento team in the absence of Raymer, who was injured a few days ago. Baum allowed five and Hitt only six safeties, but they were bunched. Score:

TEAMS BREAK EVEN.

OAKLAND SHUT OUT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4.—It would seem that the Oakland and San Francisco teams play best on their home grounds, for the Oaklanders took the morning game across the bay today, by the close score of 4 to 3, while the San Francisco aggregation batted out a 7 to 6 victory in the metropolis in the afternoon contest.

The unsteadiness of Browning in the third inning of the first game cost the game to San Francisco. He allowed four hits and hit one man.

In the afternoon, hammering Boice for five runs and eight hits in the four innings he was allowed to play, Johnson, who relieved him, could not stop the scoring, and two more men crossed the home plate after six hits had been gathered. Willis was in fine form, giving but four hits and himself hitting safely each of his four times up. Scores:

BANGING.

WEBSTER NOW IN GOOD TRIM.

CONFIDENT HE CAN WIN FROM SCRAPPER HEFRON.

Local Boy Has Trained Faithfully and Is Well Liked by Enthusiasts. Both Pugs Finished Their Hard Work Yesterday—Good Preliminary Card Is Promised.

Interest in the ten-round contest Tuesday evening between Martin Hefron and Danny Webster is increasing daily, and the fans seem to be evenly divided over the outcome of the battle which Manager McCarey has arranged for the Naud Junction patrons.

Webster put in a strenuous Sunday, appearing at Doyle's training quarters for an hour's work after he had done six miles on the road in the morning. The afternoon crowd was of fair proportions, and Danny seemed at his best, boxing four rounds with Norman Stone, two with Jimmy Austin and four with Jim Flynn. Webster weighed 118½ and is ready for the greatest contest of his career.

He is confident of beating Hefron, for he figures that with an open fighter like the Goldfield lad he will be able to do his best work, and he is waiting for the gong to sound so he can get at the presuming Nevada feather and show the fans just how good he is at the present time.

Hefron not only believes that he can conquer Webster, but he declared that he would win over the knockout route, and that in short order. He worked hard at the Naud pavilion Sunday, and put the finishing touches to his training, weighing 118 after his tolling. Hefron has no excuse to offer for his condition, for he could not ask for anything better in the way of preparation, so the fans will see both boys at their best.

The programme has been changed slightly for Tuesday, the Austin-Miller scrap having been dropped, as Miller failed to come anywhere near the weight at which he agreed to meet Austin. It was too late to get any other lad to go on with Austin, so a bout was arranged between Kid Solomon and Kid Bell for six sessions. The full card is as follows:

Martin Hefron and Danny Webster, ten rounds.

Hobo Dougherty and Young Turner, six rounds.

Kid Solomon and Kid Bell, six rounds.

Frank Nelson and Norman Stone, six rounds.

Dick Winter and Curley O'Connell, four rounds.

Mike Fusco and Kid Rees, four rounds.

Turner and Dougherty are expected to put up one of the best battles of the evening. They are evenly matched and both will strive for a knockout.

NERVE TESTS.

DARING RIDING GIVES THRILLS.

Motorcycle Honors Shared by East and West.

World Records Shattered at Coliseum Races.

De Rosier Beats Derkum in Reckless Contest.

World motorcycle records made at the Coliseum yesterday were:

Twenty-mile professional in 17m. 1 2-5s., by De Rosier.

Ten-mile professional in 8m. 34 4-5s., by De Rosier.

Five-mile amateur for single-cylinder machines in 4m. 49 2-5s., by "Fearless" Balke.

Jake de Rosier, the peer of fearless motorcycle performers, added two world's marks to his string of notable records by winning the ten-mile invitation and twenty-mile match race at the Prince Coliseum yesterday afternoon in the remarkable time of 8:34 4-5 and 17:01 3-5, respectively. Paul Derkum, the best rider of the West, was beaten in each race by more than a lap.

Freddie Huyck, the pride of the Windy City, and the greatest amateur motor rider in the East, was thrice beaten, in turn, by Erwin Knappe, "Fearless Balke" and M. J. Graves, the local riders taking the measure of the nervy Chicago boy in the most exciting events of the programme. Balke established a world's record in the five-mil erace, his time being 4:49 2-5.

Twice Balke passed Huyck in the course of the third mile of the five-mile invitation event, and twice the nervy Huyck spurted past the fighting Balke in the closest finish of the afternoon. The crowd wanted Balke to win, and on the three sides of the great coliseum the enthusiastic spectators gave their plaudits freely as the two youngsters rode like lightning flashes past the stands.

Side by side the two amateurs tore off the laps in that deciding mile. Every inch of the distance Huyck pressed his flying opponent. Both machines were belching streams of blue smoke, and the boys rode with frightful velocity. Every minute it seemed the frail machines must snap under the terrific speed, and every second of the last mile of that race the spectators leaned forward anxiously, expectant of a collision. The last lap proved too fast a clip for Huyck, Balke maintained his lead and won by scarce a wheel length.

Two thousand enthusiasts were in attendance, and the new stands were comfortably filled. A majority of the visitors occupied seats in the new section at the north end of the track, and here the spectators could easily velw the entire course. The events lagged toward the close of the meet, but the exhibitions of the winners seemed to amply please the fans and the meet on the whole was a decided success.

The opening event, the three-mile amateur race for stock machines, was won by Erwin Knappe by a length. Huyck was forced to swallow his first defeat. Knappe was an added starter, riding in place of A. Ward. Huyck opened wide on the start and was half a lap ahead of the field at the end of the first mile. It looked like a procession. In the fifth lap Knappe began to devour the intervening space, and with a beautiful burst of speed passed Huyck in the seventh lap. The Chicago boy rode well, and although he took the pole from Knappe for a portion of a lap, he was unable to hold up the pace, and lost by a length.

THRILLS FURNISHED.

The match race between Huyck and Graves furnished more thrills than even the faster exhibitions between the pros. Huyck, as before, took the lead at the start and increased his advantage until he lead Graves in the seventh lap by half a lap. It took the local boy about seven laps to warm up his machine, however, and in the last of the seventh circle Graves opened up.

Graves passed Huyck in the eighth. Then the easterner opened to his limit, and lapping the boards at over seventy miles an hour, the two amateurs raced side by side for over a mile. Graves hugged the black line near the base of the track, and rode like a fiend. He was out to win, and inch by inch he gained on Huyck until he showed his rear tire to the fighting Chicagoan. The time was fast, Graves covering the course in 4m. 12 1-5s.

De Rosier won easily in the first professional exhibition, the Frenchman beating Derkum, his nearest rival, by a lap and a quarter. The real race of the event was between Derkum, Mitchell and Lingenfelder. De Rosier, as usual, opened wide at the start, and gained half a lap in four times around. Meanwhile Derkum was doing his best to pass Mitchell, and the spitting N.S.U. motor proved the equal of Paul's Indian for three laps.

Gradually Derkum opened a gap between him and Mitchell, and riding low over his handlebars, tore after the Frenchman. Jake was out for a record and had apparently little intention of letting Derkum get within striking distance. Jake passed Mitchell in the first lap of the fourth mile, and with Derkum sticking a half lap in the rear again lapped the bunch in the opening of the ninth mile. De Rosier then went after Derkum. With his motor popping like a triphammer he sped dangerously near the base board, catching the pride of the West in the last lap of the ninth mile. Jake slowed a trifle and beat Derkum to the finish by about a lap and a quarter.

The time for the ten miles establishes a new mark, beating both the professional and amateur previous records. Huyck made the course at Detroit in 9m. 17 2-5s., while De Rosier held the previous professional mark of 11m. 59s., made at Trenton, N. J.

SPECTATORS HELD BREATH.

For a brief moment in the twenty-mile match, professional event, Derkum and Samuelson featured in a "lapping" contest that caused the spectators to hold their breath in horror. The two pros were racing hard to catch De Rosier in the sixth mile. Derkum had taken the pole from Samuelson, and the Salt Lake rider tried to force Paul below the safety line and regain his advantage. The attempt was almost fatal. Paul held his position and Samuelson caught his front wheel in Derkum's pedal. Two spokes snapped, and Samuelson's wheel wobbled, dangerously near to collapsing. Samuelson, however, managed to maintainn his equilibrium, and stopped his motor safely. Derkum kept on.

Mitchell dropped out in the eighth mile, one cylinder was missing. Derkum rode about a half lap behind De Rosier and Lingenfelder circled two laps farther back, riding to finish in the money. Derkum was handicapped by riding a slower machine. He lost half a second on each lap, but he tore after the Frenchman with a determination that earned for him the plaudits of the crowd. The motor fiends wanted Derkum to show up De Rosier, and for seven miles Derkum hung within half a lap of the leader. No more and no less seemed the intervening distance between the two racers.

Then De Rosier opened up his reserve. His riding was superb. With exhaust unmuffled the speedy Indian was urged to the limit of its speed, Derkum was passed on the fifteenth mile, and on rode De Rosier pitilessly seeking to beat his rival by even a greater margin. Derkum never let up, however, and though he knew his machine was too slow to make good against Jake's mount, the local boy would not give up. By three quarters of a lap more De Rosier increased his lead when the gun at the finish line ended the agony. De Rosier's fastest mile was made in 44 1-5s.

De Rosier broke the previous records for the distance in both the straightaway and circular tracks. At Ormond Beach last week Chappell rode an Indian twenty miles on a straightaway in 17m. 25 1-5s., which established a new record. The best previous time on a circular course was made by Huyck at Ascot Park last year in 18m. 39 3-5s. Derkum completed the course well under eighteen minutes.

YOUNGSTER'S STUNT.

Between the professional and amateur events, Russel Schoene, a tiny youngster barely six years old, rode a tiny bicycle a mile around the track. The stunt took well. The contrast of the mile a minute motorcycles and the mile an hour bicycle seemed to please the fans and they cheered the little fellow on to the finish.

As a further diversion a motor-paced bicycle race was run in three heats, Ray Duer and W. E. Samuelson of Salt Lake and "Dutch" Hoffman of Los Angeles being pitted against each other. Hoffman had been in training but a day, and although he showed a flash of his old-time form in the first heat he was unable to keep his pace in the second heat, and failed to qualify for the final.

Samuelson started thirty yards behind Duer and Hoffman at the start of the first heat and passed Hoffman on the third lap. He followed his rear tire to Duer on the sixth lap when Ray lost his pacer in a spurt. Again Duer caught his pacemaker, and in a strong spurt passed Samuelson in the fifteenth lap. Duer held his lead to the finish winning the heat by a length.

In the second qualifying heat Samuelson outclassed both Duer and Hoffman. The two Samuelsons rode as if coupled together, and the combination proved too strong for Duer. Derkum made a failure as a pace-maker, and Hoffman was not in condition to run his usual pace. He fell out in the third mile. Samuelson won by two laps over Duer.

SHOWS REAL CLASS.

In the deciding two-mile heat Samuelson showed his real class. He rode a very high-geared bike, and getting a flying start spurted all the distance. Duer was unable to stand the pace, and was beaten by over half a lap. The time was 2m. 57s.

Summary of events:

Amateur three-mile open, for fully-equipped stock machines of 30-32 cubic inch piston displacement, or under—Won by Erwin Knappe (Indian;) Fred Huyck (Indian,) second; M. J. Graves (N.S.U.,) third. Time, 4m. 41s.

FIGHTING IT OUT.

BIRD FLIGHT IS POSSIBLE.

Human Beings May Yet Fly With Their Wings.

Prof. Twining Says Wright Machine Proves It.

President Zerbe Differs and Argument Follows.

The principles of bird flight are practicable in flying machines, and no machine which does not carry out its underlying principles can be expected to succeed, and the Wright aëroplane serves as a practical demonstration of the theory, according to the opinion of Prof. H. LaV. Twining of the Polytechnic High School, who led a discussion of the subject before the last meeting of the Aëro Club of California.

In explaining his views Prof. Twining gave several novel demonstrations with turkey wings, which he used to explain the action of the bird's wing in the air, and with a gyroscope that was utilized in support of his theory that a moving body loses weight in relation to the rapidity of its motion, from which he argued that the airship that attains a certain degree of speed is relieved of its weight and has to deal with its mass only.

The old theory that the form of the feathers in a bird's wing assists in the flight by permitting the air to pass through on the upward motion while the feathers close on the downward sweep, was disputed by the professor. With a large turkey wing outstretched on a stick and waved as in flight before a light silk curtain, the professor showed that the form of the wing was such as to cause the air to flow from every direction but one, toward the wing into an area of low pressure created by the vibrating wing.

At the outer end of the wing the air is forced out by the downward stroke and leans upon it and helps the bird to lift itself. The wing being waved in various manners in front of the curtain, the cloth was always attracted to that part of the under side which would have been nearest the bird's body in life, flying straight out from the tip. That this was not due to any action of the feathers, but solely to the form of the entire wing, was demonstrated by similar action with a wing that had been covered with paper and left the feathers in place for any possible play. A paper fan, used in the same way, drew the cloth toward the handle and caused it away from a wide radius in the sweep, the action being but little less that of a bird's wing, in which curves has been calculated by nature to the best advantage for slow flight.

THE TURKEY WING.

Prof. Twining called attention to the fact that the turkey from which he had secured the wings weighed six pounds, which, with the superficial area of the wings, gave one pound to each quarter of a foot of wing surface. Insects with straight, flat wings, the motion necessary for flight is enormous in rapidity, although the relative proportion of area to weight is much greater.

Demonstrating with the body of a bird, Prof. Twining showed that in perfect flying machine, the wing must be attached forward by its front edge in order that the center of gravity might be parallel with the center of the wings, or planes, and below them. With these preambles, the professor passed on to the gyroscope, in which the familiar demonstration showed the revolving weight overcoming the laws of gravitation and refusing to fall, whatever plane it was moved, actually losing weight in the process, all of which was used to prove the argument that the bird, by the very rapidity of its flight, lessens the effort necessary to maintain its altitude.

The soaring of the larger birds with outstretched and apparently immobile wings, carrying the bird into the very face of the wind, was explained by a slight oscillating motion, or change in the transverse plane of the wing, causing the bird to rotate downward as the wind strikes the upper part of the wing, then upward as the lower surface is exposed, thus wedging it forward. This motion was said to be perceptible in some of the larger soarers, as, for instance, the buzzard and the sea gull, either of which will circle at will, the wind striking them from every conceivable direction. The idea advanced by some persons that the birds, in order to soar upward select spots in which the heat causes columns of air to ascend was considered ridiculous since the birds soar under such conditions do not exist. In support of his theory that the flight of the bird in soaring consists of a series of upward and downward curves around the front edge of the wing, Prof. Twining pointed to the model of the Wright machine, in which it was found necessary to so manipulate the planes that the machine will travel in what may be called a snakelike course through the air, going up and down in long curves.

Prof. Twining advanced the opinion that the day will yet come when bird flight, that mystery which has baffled investigators, will yet be attained by man who will fly exactly as the birds do by means of artificial wings. Prof. J. S. Zerbe of the Aëro Club criticised some of the theories advanced by Prof. Twining, arguing that if the Wright aëroplane oscillates in flight, it is only because of control of the levers by the operator. Mr. Zerbe insisted that this oscillation was not necessary to flight, and might be proven by the skating of a puck across the room.

Several of the members of the club took part in the discussion, all of them advancing original views and theories on the adaptability of the principles of flight in flying machines of human construction.

Jews That Were Innocent.

The only Jews in Spain are found at Cadiz. They are descended from a band which settled there at the time of the dispersion, and the Babylonian Talmud.

It was from the order of Ferdinand and Isabella, was issued in 1494 expelling all Jews from Spain. the Jewish physician in Toledo was granted exemption by showing proof that their ancestors had nothing to do with the Inquisition, and had not been in Palestine for generations before the advent of Christ.

A decree was issued permitting them to live and reside in a certain quarter of the city of Toledo, and to pursue their lines of business, but they were prohibited to travel or leave the place. Every man, woman and child of Jewish blood was taxed thirty pieces of silver annually.

The archives of the Vatican today contain the documents relating to this remarkable incident.

IMPROVES THE BREED?

RACE HORSES BECOME BROKEN-DOWN PLUGS.

NO MORE unreasonable argument is ever advanced by those wishing to perpetuate race-track gambling than the time-worn one that racing as at present conducted improves the breed of horses. Everything, on the contrary, points to the fact that present methods of training and racing not only render the thoroughbred unfit for ordinary uses, but take away his natural stamina and shorten his years considerably.

As a striking proof of this statement, there are two four-mile races run in California each racing season. They are invariably won by horses of little or no "class," that indefinable quality which in horsemen's parlance separates horses having some claim to distinction from the ordinary nags. The reason that these "no account" horses are generally returned winners in these long distance events seems but too apparent—they are considered so inferior as racing tools that but little time is lost in preparing them for the races, and instead of their vitality being impaired by constant racing and training when left to their own resources they have greater strength and staying qualities than their unfortunate "classy" rivals.

The winner of the four-mile Norfolk handicap here this season turned up in the despised four-year-old nag, Joseph K., whose only claim to distinction was that he had won one race during the season against the poorest lot of horses at the track, and usually finished in the rear division. Five hundred dollars would have been considered an exorbitant price to pay for him before the race, and with the scarcity of long distance events now prevailing, he would not have brought much more after his victory.

To show conclusively how, instead of improving the breed of horses, present-day methods of the race track have the opposite effect, the only other three starters in this so-called "turf classic," the nearest of which was thirty lengths behind the winner, all finished in a bad way. Big Bow, the runner up, was "all in" shortly after entering the last mile, and stopped almost to a walk the final quarter. Animus, supposed to have more "class" than any of the other starters, finished on three legs, and will probably never face the starter again. Of the last horse, Crack Shot, the least said the better, for the poor beast finished totally broken down, and was an object of pity to even the hardened onlookers during the last two miles of the race.

Almost the same finish resulted in the four-mile event in San Francisco, called the Thornton Stakes. Nadzu, another cheap animal that no racing man would care to have long on his feed bill, won with consummate ease from two still more inferior horses, Orcagna and Mendon, while the only horse in the race conceded by horsemen to possess some "class," Milford, finished a beaten-off fourth, in a field of six. It was admitted by all who witnessed these two races that they were truly run and "on the square," the purses being of sufficient value for all those entered to "try."

To cite another example, W. H. Carey, considered two years ago the greatest racehorse on the Pacific Coast, was sold recently for $65, although only 6 years old, and is now drawing a cab on Spring street in this city.

These results point to the inevitable conclusion that far from improving the breed, under present methods of racing, where every other quality of the horse is sacrificed for speed, and speed only, the American thoroughbred has deteriorated enormously from the days of Ten Broek and other great horses of the past, which could run two or three four-mile heats.

What the race-track gambler wants is a quick run for his money, and in catering to this class, which maintains the race track, distances of races have been continually cut down, until more than half of the races are now run at three-quarters of a mile or less, and not much over 10 per cent. of them over a mile.

Truly, this improvement of the breed of horses through the race track is one of the great jokes perpetrated on the gullible American public!

BASEBALL NOTES.

It is reported that four of the major league teams will train at Hot Springs, Ark., next season and that the Comiskey White Sox will be one of these. It would be a good thing for the Sox to stay away from Los Angeles next winter and substitute some other big league team, for the fans showed by the attendance at the Sox games that they were tired of seeing that team.

In answer to an inquiry it is stated that Bernie McCay of this city is field captain of the Oakland team this year and Van Haltren is what might be called business manager. The Oakland management will learn to its cost that the team cannot carry a business manager and a team captain through the circuit.

The imitation Cy Youngs seem to be imitations only, after all. The real Cy appears to be as good as ever but Cy Young II was not even offered a contract by Pittsburgh and Cy Young III has been sold by the Boston National League team to the Oklahoma City Club of the Texas League.

The Washington American team has had the ban lifted from Delahanty and he has been fined $50. Bill Burns has joined the team and the training camp attaches say that Groom is a swell pitcher and that Dolly Gray is doing wonderful work. Dolly is now called a "pinch" hitter, for in three games he averaged .750 in batting.

Jesse Burkett of the Worcester team declares that Charley Schwartz can play in Vancouver but if he does he must pay Worcester $400, which Burkett paid for Schwartz.

The 1909 roster of players in the South Atlantic League makes a familiar noise to the old local fans, for Jack Lawlor is to be an outfielder on the Macon team and Phil Nadeau in the garden for the Charleston club.

Rube Ellis has decided that he will go to the St. Louis team after all because it does not seem inclined to grant him any larger salary than originally offered. He will go east as soon as St. Louis sends him transportation and he may be fined for not reporting earlier, if he has a chance to go at all.

The local fans who think that the Los Angeles team will have its usual walkover for the pennant this year may get an awful jolt from the Sacramento club and the probabilities are that the Senators will come as near winning the rag as any team in the league. Charley Graham is a very wise old fox and he has a fine bunch of players around him.

Warren Hall is to pitch again this year for the Vancouver team and Nordyke will be on first base. Seattle has Mike Lynch, Frisk and McKune.

Connie Mack thinks the American League race this year will be as hot as last season and that Cleveland will make a runaway race of it. Ask Chicago and Detroit about this.

The new Inter-Mountain League, which comprises Salt Lake, Boise, Butte and Helena will open its season May 4. The salary limit will be $1500, exclusive of the manager, and W. H. Lucas is president, secretary and treasurer.

The Eastern League will open April 22.

In the Central League this year the holiday receipts will be pooled, but not the mileage.

President Cal Ewing of the Pacific Coast League has a scheme to take $10 from the receipts of every game played to go toward a fund to be given, at the end of the season, to the team that shows the most ginger.

Catcher Pete Noonan of St. Paul, for whom the Oakland team wanted to trade Truck Eagan, has decided to quit baseball for good and will give his time to the study of law. He is now a student at the Georgetown University Law School.

Larry McLean, the ex-Portland catcher who was with Cincinnati last year, is talking of going on the stage. It will be remembered that he was talked of once, or rather whispered of, as a possible opponent of Jim Jeffries in the prize ring but Mac had to give this idea up because he could not make Jeffries's weight.

A training camp dispatch to Chicago says that Cravath is almost sure to stick on the White Sox regular team. He certainly showed better work than any of the other recruits on the White Sox.

President Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh team has issued an order that his players must not smoke cigarettes this summer if they expect to play ball for him.

Manager Roger Bresnahan of the St. Louis Cardinals has decided that the "squeeze" play is of no value and has ordered it cut out of his system of inside baseball. Rog evidently thinks he is smart enough to improve on the science of the game but he should try and remember that the squeeze will be used hundreds of years after he has been planted in the cold, cold ground.

The salary list of the Boston Americans is about $80,000.

TOMMY BURNS.

Tommy Burns is not the mercenary young man that many represented him to be, with the one thought of how much he could make out of his boxing contests. Those who really know the ex-champion believe that the charge is a mere travesty of his character. To say that Burns when in England took some pains with the making of his matches, and that he took good care that the bargain he made with the promoter was a good bargain for Tommy Burns is but another way of saying that the Canadian is a keen business man, a point upon which he left no one in any doubt. Burns made no secret when here of the fact that he was in the game not because he loved it, but because of the money that was in it. He was not a seeker after wealth in order to vainglориously flaunt it before the public, but for the same reason that a famous namesake of his advised a young man to acquire wealth, namely, "the glorious privilege of being independent."

Burns had before him—always before him—the day that has now arrived for him—the day of defeat. "Old age" reaches the boxer very early. In the limelight today, in the gutter tomorrow, is, alas! too often the fate of the man who dons the gloves; and Burns honesty and without any side whatever, declared that no one would ever have occasion to hand round the hat for him. Is there one of the ex-champion's fiercest critics who will today refuse to applaud the young man for the fear of charity and the love of independence that led him to take up the attitude that he adopted toward the sports promoter who wished his services? And, after all, the sports promoter is in the game for the same reason that the boxing and the sporting journalist is in it—for what he can make out of it. With the exception of the National Sporting Club, whose first consideration is good sport, there is not another boxing promoter in London who can cast a stone at Tommy Burns for demanding a businesslike share of the gate which he was instrumental in drawing.

A staunch friend and an uncompromising enemy, Tommy Burns knows no half-way house. He is no hypocrite, no groveling sycophant. The hearty hand-shake of a workingman is more to him than the condescending nod of a man of wealth. In consequence of his outlook on human nature, the crowing of Burns's enemies today is as loud as the laments of his friends.

His antipathies were few, but they included colored men. We in England cannot understand the racial hatred that consumed Burns. We do not believe that Johnson feels the racial flame so keenly as does Burns. With Burns it is not confined to his immediate opponent, the new champion, and the intense hatred may have interfered with the cool judgment of Burns when he met the negro at Sydney. But this suggestion is not made as an excuse for Burns's defeat, or in any way an attempt to depreciate Johnson's victory, which seems to have been complete. "Yellow dog!" which when defeat seemed imminent he threw at the negro, crystallized the loathing which Burns has never sought to leave behind. However it may be, we know that the intensity of the feeling made certain that when the two did meet it would be a fight without any qualification. Burns always declared that Johnson would never take punishment. None of us knew from actual demonstration how Burns himself would take punishment, but some of us felt that he would rather die than surrender, and we feel more strongly now that he would have gone on and on until insensibility prevented him from continuing. His friends have the satisfaction of knowing that the ex-champion is the gamest of the game.

For the great impetus to the noble art which his visit to this country gave, for his sterling qualities of heart and head, for an example that we wish many of his kind would take, we wish Tommy Burns well.—[An English Exchange.

A New Breed of Children.

We speak of children, but the trouble is that between a child and adult in our modern city democracies it is getting more and more difficult to draw the line. Once upon a time, children had their own games, interests and amusements. Today, children read and discuss what their elders do, and, the other way about. Take the yellow press. With its different colored type, with its pictures, with its rudimentary humor, commonplace sentiment, and elementary morals, it appeals no more strongly to the ordinary laborer than it does to his twelve-year-old daughter. If anything, she is much more up on the details of the latest nauseating criminal trial than her father, who reads the sporting page chiefly. The moving-picture show was primarily intended to draw the children; its audiences are, for the most part, men and women. And naturally, the diet upon which the audiences are fed, grows correspondingly higher spiced. In a metropolis like New York, there will always be thousands of adults who have the mental range and educational equipment of children.—[New

FREE TICKETS TO THE RACES.

"Come-on" Passes Issued to Gambling Suckers.

Bookmakers Must Be Fed With Fresh Lambs.

Fifteen Days More of Mad Scramble for Money.

Driven to the last resort in their efforts to get the gambling "suckers" inside the gates at Santa Anita Park, it is now generally known that only the veriest tyro is supposed to pay admission to witness the running of the seven "high-class" races that go to make up the daily bill of fare at the Arcadia hippodrome.

"Complimentary" tickets in batches are the order of the day, and unfortunate or friendless indeed is the poor player who goes in to lose his money with the handicap of a dollar against him at the start. The bookmaker is the mill which grinds out the dollars from the unsuspecting public, and that mill must be fed or the bookmakers would leave.

A couple of dozen of these parasites are doing business in the "ring" at the present time, for which they pay the racing association the tidy sum of $20 a race, or $140 each a day. Should the attendance be reduced one-half, at least ten of them would seek new fields of action, which would mean a loss of $1400 "sure money" to the association every day. Hence the abundance of complimentary badges and tickets.

NEWSBOYS BUSY.

Here in the city it has given rise to a new industry. Every other newsboy you meet is engaged in the race ticket brokerage business. Many "wise" people, able to get hold of complimentaries, but knowing too much about the game to trust themselves to the tender mercies of the "bookies," give or sell their tickets to the newsboys, who carry on a thriving business with the few "easy marks" without tickets on the outgoing cars. The market price varies according to the supply, anywhere from 25 cents to 75 cents, with the demand brisk at an average price of 50 cents per ticket.

It is at the race track, however, on the arrival of the special cars and trains, that the most amusing spectacle is to be witnessed. No rush of passengers for the box office there—not much—but a perfect stampede direct for the entrance gates. A few stragglers, never over a dozen strong, are occasionally seen buying tickets, looked at in wonderment and derision by the "regulars," but if they are not mere "transients" it is not long before they, too, are fixed with the necessary means to get inside and lose their money.

A wag, inspired by these unusual conditions, told a story recently which if not strictly veracious was at least to the point. "Some time before the first race," he said, "a Pinkerton spied a number of men trying to get over the fence. He was about to give chase when an official came along and noticed his zeal. 'Never mind, Jim,' said this official, 'inside is where we want 'em.'"

Yet, even under this free-and-easy system of gathering grist for the bookmakers' mill, the attendance has dwindled down to a small handful of "regulars," and all those financially interested in the "sport" are looking forward anxiously to the closing day, April 18. The "suckers" have been milked dry, and even the bookmakers are shaking in their shoes for fear a few owners in need of feed bill and "get-away money" will "put one over" on them, which is always the bookmakers' "bete noir" the last three or four weeks of a meeting.

Nothing better exemplifies this "outside risk" taken by the "sure thing" knights of the chalk and chamois than the recent running of races at a mile and an eighth or over, in which the poorest class of feed destroyers are entered. Such worthless nags as Round and Round, St. Ilario, Oberon, King of the Mist, Nattie Rumppo, Cloyne, County Clerk and others are always found in these processions, one winning one day and the other the next. Even bred-in-the-bone "race dope" fiends" have stopped figuring form on this particular every-day circus stunt. It has become simply a question with them of who needs the money worst as to "who's it."

Fifteen days more of racing will end the fleecing of the lambs, for many days to come in this part of the country, for the shrewdest among the gamblers admit that the provisions of the Otis law cannot be defeated, and are looking for a new field of action across the border in Lower California. Tia Juana—perhaps—but even the most hardened have some misgivings, for if Arcadia could exist in a civilized community, they very properly reason: What would it be at Tia Juana?

A WIDOW'S LUCK

Quit the Thing that Was Slowly Killing Her.

A woman tells how coffee kept her from insuring her life.

"I suffered for many years chiefly from trouble with my heart, and severe nervous headache and neuralgia; but although incapacitated at times for my housework, I did not realize the gravity of my condition till I was rejected for life insurance, because, the examining physician said, my heart was so bad he could not pass me. This distressed me very much, as I was a widow and had a child dependent upon me. It was to protect her future that I wanted to insure my life.

"Fortunately for me, I happened to read an advertisement containing a testimonial from a man who had been affected in the same way that I was with heart trouble, and who was cured by leaving off coffee and using Postum. I grasped at the hope this held out, and made the change at once.

"My health began to improve immediately. The headaches and neuralgia disappeared, I gained in flesh and my appetite came back to me at once. Greatest of all, my heart was strengthened from the beginning, and soon all the distressing symptoms passed away. Then I again made application for life insurance, and had no trouble in passing the medical examination.

"It was seven years ago that I began to use Postum, and I am using it still, and shall continue to do so, as I find in it a guarantee of good health."

"There's a Reason."

ne and Marriage.

EV. DR. CHARLES EDWARD LOCKE of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, last evening, ussed the subject "How to Make ppy Homes, and Why Are Many rriages Unhappy." Among other gs, he said:

The home is a Bible institution. In an lands there are no homes. Any id lifted against the home is an my of the flag and of a nation's rties. A home is happy when it the presence of God. Such a me will be a home of prayer, secret family prayer. The Bible will be corner-stone.

Where God is there will be cultied contentment, unselfishness, pace, piety, forgiveness, frugality, ace, and all Christian graces; and e jealousies, rivalries, bickerings and travagances.

In such a home there will be the ristian father serving as a high-iest at his own sacred altars. In t home there will be the Christian fe and mother, the divinest creature earth.

Much of the unhappiness occurs in arried life, today, because children e not desired or welcomed. As a le a husband is disappointed if he es not become a father. The refusal the wife to accept the cares and rrors of motherhood is a tragical use for much marital unhappiness. ere cannot be a happy home when a sband and wife are conscious of deerately defeating the intention of eir Creator in instituting the holy lationship of marriage. Such peoe cannot have the approval of their od. The presence of children in the me will prevent and heal nearly all trangements. The happiest homes, e most honored and successful men, e most amiable and beautiful women, and the most long-lived people, are ose who are willing to assume all e natural obligations and privileges hich follow the faithful fulfilment of e vows taken at the sacred marriage ltar. Children make the parents autiful and stalwart in their characters. They teach the parents lesons of divinity, love, patience, fidelity.

"There is much unhappiness among arried people due to the different tandards of righteousness which are ccepted by many persons for men nd women. There should be a whiteife for the man and the woman bere and after marriage.

"A woman's character would be one forever if she were to spend one years of her life in sowing wild ats. She is sheltered from evil and xcesses of every sort; and, pure and eautiful as a rose, is presented to her usband on the wedding day. Exactly that standard of purity should be equired of the young man. Great disappointment and unhappiness often ollow, sickness and tragedy, because he young man brings a defiled mind nd body to the nuptial altar.

"There would be less unhappiness after marriage if there were more rankness and clearer understandings efore marriage concerning the purposes of the married relation."

The Lord's Vineyard.

At the First Presbyterian Church esterday Rev. Dr. W. A. Hunter reached on "The Lord's Vineyard." The text was Isaiah v, 4-5: "What could have been done more to my vineyard, that I have not done in it? Wherefore, when I looked that it should bring forth grapes, brought it forth wild grapes?" In the course of the sermon the preacher said:

"A parable is a mode of speech by which an important doctrine or truth is taught and a moral inculcated. It is an impressive way of imparting knowledge.

"This parable of the disappointing vineyard represents the ungrateful church or individual.

"It is my wish to show first that God has done all He can consistently for our happines. Look at the physical frame. God showed His wisdom, power and goodness when He created the body with all of its parts so related to each other and each part performing such important duties. God added to our happiness when He gave us ears for hearing and speech to communicate with each other. Then God gave us intellectual and moral constitution.

"God put the mind in a body that could act and be acted upon by matter. So we are upon earth, in material form, but we bear the image of God—a marvelous combination, capable of good and evil.

"God consulted our happines in the arrangement of the universe and in the atonement—the place to save the lost. The necessity of the atonement arises from the depraved condition of the race.

"God graciously provides for salvation and happiness. Many treat it all with indifference. The rejection is oft repeated and the invitation becomes so unimpressionable that the joys of time, the goodness of Jesus, the love of God, the glories of heaven and the terrors of hell seem equally vain to move them.

"Oh, precious souls, if any of you are lost, I do not wish it to be my fault. I therefore urge you to accept all of God's loving proofs of interest in you. Accept the Christ whom He sent to save you. Appreciate the hedge of mercy that He has put about you. Trust and obey while the gospel calls, while God warns, and the spirit strives and the promises are available."

The Lord's Requirements.

At the Universalist services in Cumnock Hall yesterday the pastor, Rev. C. Ellwood Nash, D.D., spoke of the divinely guided life for man. He said, in part:

"Under the illuminating title, 'Every man's life a plan of God,' Dr. Bushnell (was it not?) a half century ago rationalized the idea of the supreme significance in the divine economy of the individual soul. Further development of the scientific facts of the unity and interdependence of all things, and especially of the solidarity of the human race, makes the necessity of a personal providence even more apparent. The units, the atoms, must be controlled if the total is to be directed. A specific divine demand is therefore made upon each of us separately, which, though framed in general terms, and expressing a uniform law, is yet modified for every one by the peculiarities of his character and conditions. So that it is exact to conceive of ourselves as severally the objects of a particular interest and attention on the part of our heavenly Father.

"Of course His requirements are not arbitrary; nor is the announcement of them confined to the statements of a single printed book. His laws are His speech, and they are written in our members and in the order of nature, no less than spoken by the mouth of His holy prophets.

"What could be better calculated to inspire and solemnize our hearts than this recognition of the relation our wills, our behavior, our characters sustain to the divine designs; and that we are under His surveillance and authority—who ever insists that we shall not baffle His benign arrangements, but shall achieve our own highand vicious, have been many of the interpretations men have given of God's law of salvation. Picturing Him variously as a savage, whimsical irresponsible despot, intent upon nothing but pleasing Himself, they fancied him issuing edicts of a purely mechanical or governmental sort, whose justice or reason we were mad to discuss, our sole option lying between abject submission and hopeless ejection into hell. Now that we are witnesses of an orderly universe proclaiming the imminent godhood with which all its parts are instinct, we see that God is moral, is benevolent, is holy, and that He has no other end to promote than the extension and final absolute universality of the good, the true, the beautiful.

"What, then, doth the Lord require of me? That I shall cooperate with Him in the grand design; that I shall accord Him His rights as God and Father, and take my place as subject and son. He forbids my doing anything that will desecrate the sanctity of the being He has communicated to me, or shall waste or pervert its power. He makes me know—now by the slow lessonings of experience, now by sunbursts of sudden vision—that I am capable of a noble, mighty, victorious, joyous life, and that I ought to attain it, and can do so only by hearkening to the highest voices and following the supreme law. To do otherwise is suicide and treason, to do less is malfeasance and degeneracy.

"How simple and how sublime is this understanding! What we need, you and I, is not minute prescriptions, an officious and burdensome chaperoning, but just to dedicate ourselves to the righteousness we know, to inhibit all perversive thought and feeling and conduct, because it is poisonous and destructive, and to reach out sanely and strenuously after the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. This is to have a conscience void of offense toward God and man."

Spiritual Evolution.

In a sermon on "Salvation and Evolution," at the First Unitarian Church yesterday, Rev. E. Stanton Hodgin said:

"Each age has its instrument of service. The use of that instrument during its age is evidence of progress. But when once that instrument has been replaced by a better one its continued use is no longer evidence of progress, but its evidence of deterioration. The thought of evolution has given man a new instrument for the interpretation of life. It has rendered obsolete all the instruments that preceded it. A new heaven and a new earth have been revealed by its light. The old has served its day and no longer possesses saving power. To insits upon its further use is to clog the wheels of progress.

"As the old views of the world which formed the framework of the old scheme of salvation are seen to be defective and are replaced by new ones, we must find a new view of salvation consistent with them. As the dividing line that was once thought to exist between divinity and humanity fades out, and the great gulf that was once thought to be fixed between heaven and earth closes up, the idea of salvation as the transportation of souls from one realm to another can no longer hold.

"We now know that the world and its inhabitants were not created in a spectacular way in six days, but were millions of years in being created, and that the creation process is still in operation. The idea of miracle and special creation so prominent in the old scheme of salvation must be replaced in the new by the idea of growth and development. We now know that there never was a fall of man; that man has been constantly rising from the beginning, and is nearer perfection today than ever before. The doctrine of the fall of man must be replaced by the thought of the ascent of man.

"We now know that there is no such thing as total depravity. No man can sink so low that there is not something in him that bids him rise, and which in the fullness of time will compel him to rise. This is the divine spark which exists as the living principle in every human soul. The old doctrine of the depravity of man is being replaced by the doctrine of the divinity of man.

"We know that man is not saved in some mystical, supernatural way by the atoning blood of Christ. The saving power of Christ is in the power of his heroic life to search the heart and quicken us to new effort. The old doctrine of the atonement is being replaced by that of the efficiency of unselfish service. The great words in the new scheme of salvation are growth, divinity, service, instead of miracle, depravity and atonement in the old. As the full significance of these principles of life become understood and we see how they issue in love, harmony and peace, we shall find that the new life to which it leads is infinitely more satisfactory than the old."

Triumphal Entry of Jesus.

Yesterday morning, at the First Christian Church, Rev. A. C. Smither preached on the "Triumphal Entry of Jesus." He said, in part:

"Jesus' entry into Jerusalem was recognized as that of a king. This king, unlike the kings of earth, was clad in humility and meekness, riding upon the foal of an ass, that symbol of service and humility. This was a prophetic King. Many centuries before Isaiah had sung of His coming. The promise of a Messiah and King had long soothed the wounded and suffering spirits of Israel.

"This King was a sorrowful King. The city of Jerusalem, with its immediate future before Him, had greatly oppressed His spirit, and He wept over its terrific destiny. Jesus was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. He was touched with a feeling of our infirmities and yet was without sin.

"Jesus was a rejected King. He came unto His own and His own received Him not, but to as many as received Him, to them gave He the right to become the sons of God.

"Jesus' coming as King was recognized by a large class, who cast their garments in the way over which He was traveling. With glad hearts they sang hossanas of praise to the Lord and King.

"The sick, the lame, the weak sought the Master in the temple and received healing at His hands. His has ever been the hand of welcome. His heart has ever been touched by the infirmities of the race. He has ever helped and healed the weak and the suffering. Such is His ministry today, through the myriads of agencies appointed by His love."

Drink Evil.

At the Temple Baptist Church, yesterday, Rev. Dr. Robert J. Burdette preached a temperance sermon from the text: "Let us, since we are of the day, be sober." (Thessalonians v:8.)

"Drunkenness," said the doctor, "is about the only vice that tells a man the truth the first time they meet. A man who has grown rich through avarice excites one's envy by his millions and the deference and luxury and comfort and influence they bring him—no matter how he got them. An abandoned woman, by a certain animal beauty of figure and face, a striking dashiness of dress, gayety of manner and the arts of fascination which she so well knows how to use, allures a man, charming them to forget for a time her fearful sinning and the gambling madness and he sees nothing evil in it. It charms him. But the first drunken man he sees—inflamed face, disordered clothes, bleary eyes, idiotic expression, muddled senses, thick, maudlin utterance, disgusting actions, foul obscenity and blasphemous profanity, reeling gait—all this disgusts and horrifies the man and frightens the child.

"The other vices lie to their victims. Drink never does. The other vices put on their most alluring faces and attractive garb and say: 'Now, you see the worst of me. I will always be as beautiful, as delightful, as merry and harmless as I now appear to you.' But drink wears its death's head openly, and calls attention to it. It clothes itself in raiment of disease and rags of poverty and parades the streets in them. It emphasizes its shame and wretchedness. It invites you to see the worst of itself.

"Whisky doesn't lie to a man, but it has the peculiar quality of making a man lie to himself, and worse still, of telling the very kind of lies drink wants him to tell. Drink says: 'If you won't believe me, let my record of thousands of years speak to confirm my truthfulness. Read the list of men and women whom I have snared, shamed and ruined—artists, poets, soldiers, teachers, preachers, priests, prophets, kings and queens, statesmen and conquerors—I have taken them in their pride and confidence and laid them in the mire of the ditch and the sewer side by side with fools, criminals, harlots and gamblers and murderers. I'll lay you among them.' And the man listens, laughs, shakes his head, goes off and gets drunk.

"Why does he do it? You tell, preacher; it's your work to deliver men from these terrible vices. You tell, doctor; you study the bodies and the brains of men; it is your work to keep their bodies and brains well and sound. You tell, policeman; it's your place to keep the streets clean and safe and the laws unbroken. You tell, fool of a drunkard! Why do you do it?"

WHO'S AFRAID?

CITY BILLETS HARD TO FILL.

NEW MAYOR STILL ON THE HUNT FOR COMMISSIONERS.

Many Job-Seekers Urge Their Claims, But "Prominent Citizens" Dodge Duties That Promise to Make Trouble—Shake-up of Police Force Will Cause Furious Strife.

Publication yesterday of the fact that Mayor Alexander is having difficulty in finding the right men for the various commissions resulted in the Sunday pilgrimage of a large number of applicants to the West Thirty-first-street residence of the executive.

Each of the callers insisted that he was the right man, but after the shades of night had fallen, the Mayor stated that there was no change in the situation; that he had not made a selection in addition to those already announced.

The keenest scramble is for the three vacancies on the Police Commission, possibly because this body has been so well advertised in the past. So far, S. C. Graham, chairman of the Recall Campaign Committee, is the only one who has accepted a place on this board. The scramblers are not of the sort the Mayor wants.

"I should like the assistance of the people of Los Angeles in this important matter of commission appointments," said the Mayor. "The responsibility is not entirely mine. It can hardly be expected of me that the commissions will be of the right sort unless good citizens are willing to serve on the boards, or to assist in making the selections.

"I do not ask the aid of any particular class, but it is no more than right that all the people should turn in and see to it that the best available men take the places.

"I have had many applications for appointment, especially on the Police Commission, but I have not yet picked the men I want.

"Los Angeles should have a good police force this summer, by all means. We shall entertain many thousands of visitors and it would reflect seriously upon the city if the report were spread throughout the country by these strangers that this important department is demoralized and useless.

"I certainly am not satisfied with the condition of the police department now. Many important changes are needed if it is to be brought to the highest grade of efficiency. A strong Police Commission will be required to bring about the reform that is so plainly needed, and I hope to be able to find commissioners who will be honest and fearless in the discharge of their important duties.

"We cannot have good commissions if the right kind of citizens refuse to serve on them. Surely we have eminent and qualified men in Los Angeles who will be willing—as they should be for the city's good—to sacrifice something for the common cause of good government."

While the Mayor did not say so openly, it is clear that he is disappointed, to say the least, with the action of members of the "recall set," who have been so loud in preaching reform, and yet who decline to take positions of responsibility or to assist in supporting capable candidates.

A Police Commission that will buckle right down to work and shake up the force will have no easy task. There are officers in the department who have waxed fat and important through their power in the last few years. They will not be "broke" without a struggle. They will make a hot fight against those who would oust them.

No selection has yet been made for Chief of Police to succeed Broadhead, who is slated for reduction to the position of captain, a place to which he is still entitled to return, under civil-service rules. S. L. Browne, chief detective in the District Attorney's bureau of criminal investigation, has been mentioned prominently for the place, but some of the recallers have raised as the principal objection to him that he has been too closely allied with Capt. Fredericks and the "machine."

ARROWHEAD ARRIVALS.

H. N. Mabery of Los Angeles registered today at the Arrowhead Hotel.

Fingers Not to Blame.

Anty Drudge Gives Advice to the Salesman.

Salesman—"I have a patent washboiler which burns denatured alcohol at much less cost than coal or wood—"

Anty Drudge—"You'd better go into some other business, young man, if you want to make a living. Since I've been telling the women how to wash clothes with Fels-Naptha in cool or lukewarm water, without boiling, all kinds of washboilers have gone out of style. Good day."

Fels-Naptha will take grease out of clothes in cool or lukewarm water.

It loosens all kinds of grease quick as a wink, and takes out every trace of the spot.

That's why butchers', and painters', and machinists' clothing can be washed better with Fels-Naptha than any other way.

It's easier, too; in summer or winter, requires no boiling, hot water nor hard rubbing, and makes a better job of it.

Because Fels-Naptha dissolves grease almost instantly, women who have tried it prefer Fels-Naptha to any other soap for washing dishes.

There is no necessity for putting the hands in hot water.

Puts a fine polish on glass and china.

It is likewise superior in cleaning coats, or rugs, or curtains, or anything else that has become spotted or soiled.

In fact, you will find that anything cleanable can be cleaned quicker and better and easier with Fels-Naptha.

And for laundry purposes, Fels-Naptha is a revelation to women who have always washed in the old-fashioned, washboiler-and-hard-rubbing way.

Victim Lies Near Death in Berkeley Hospital.

His Assailant Escapes and Is Still at Large.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BERKELEY, April 4.—John M. Peterson, a former master-at-arms of the revenue-cutter service, is in an Oakland hospital tonight with nine knife wounds in his body, and William H. Wiley, a resident of Ocean View, is hiding in the hills with a posse in search of him. The men fought early today, as the climax of a family feud of long standing. Peterson's recovery is doubtful.

According to Peterson's brother-in-law, Frank Seitz, a private in the coast artillery, Wiley and Peterson quarreled last night in a saloon.

It is said their wives had been unfriendly for some months, and Seitz states that Wiley accused Peterson of having made an insulting remark concerning Mrs. Wiley. The men went outside, and as Peterson was taking off his coat, Seitz says, Wiley attacked him with a knife, stabbing him in nine places before bystanders could interfere.

Wiley escaped, but was traced by a trail of blood, to a point where he turned off into the woods.

IN MOURNING TO FACE JURY.

Mrs. Sampson Will Wear Somber Gown When She Hears Fate on Murder Charge.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LYONS (N. Y.) April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Georgia Allyn Sampson will wear deepest mourning when she faces the judge and jury, who are to decide her fate for life or death tomorrow. The somber gown will be a silent but dramatic protest against the charge of murdering her husband, Harry Sampson, a nephew of the admiral, and connected by ties of blood and marriage to many of the most prominent families in the string of cities between Albany and Buffalo.

This young and pretty prisoner, the petted daughter of one of the richest farmers in northern New York, is awaiting the ordeal which begins tomorrow with a coolness and fortitude of striking contrast to the nervous excitement that prevails throughout the county.

The case is being discussed in every town and hamlet for miles and miles around tonight, and differences of opinion as to the prisoner's guilt or innocence are stirring up ill-feeling and bitterness.

Dist.-Atty. Joseph Gilbert will direct the prosecution. His wife is a cousin of the prisoner and one of the staunchest champions of her innocence.

Mrs. Sampson will be defended by George Tinklepaugh, criminal lawyer and a kinsman of the prisoner.

GAILY TRIES SUICIDE.

Chemist Shoots Himself Through Head and Walks Downstairs to Ambulance.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After sending a 38-caliber bullet through his head at 3:40 a.m., today, Max Lander, a machinist, tossed the revolver upon the bed and said calmly to a group of men who rushed into the room: "Well, I guess this will do me. I think I've done a good job."

Then he sat on the edge of the bed and bade farewell to his friends. Then an ambulance surgeon arrived. Then the Hudson-street hospital he was shaking hands all around and talking as volubly as a man about to go on a pleasure trip.

There was a wound in his right temple just back of, and a little above the left temple, where the bullet entered, and a similar one, though somewhat larger, where the bullet emerged, and it is said that when he put the pistol too close to his temple and burned it, because it "hurts a lot," he said to the surgeon, "You ought to have known better, Otherwise, I'm feeling fine."

Lander went downstairs without assistance, climbed into the ambulance and nimbly as the surgeon himself. The hospital surgeons say there is a chance for him to recover.

KILLS POLITICAL BOSS.

Samuel Young, St. Louis Politician, Slain by Proprietor of Sunday Lid-Lifting Greggery.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Fred Mohrle, who runs a Sunday lid-lifting liquor club in connection with his coal yard, at No. 820 North Twenty-first street, shot and killed Samuel J. Young, colleague of "Boots" Brennan, "Jimmy" Miles and Thomas E. ("Snake") Kinney, noted Democratic bosses and protege of Ed. Butler, the famous Democratic boss, this afternoon in a hallway leading to Mohrle's coal yard.

William Wright of No. 2006 Franklin avenue, Mohrle's friend, is held by the police as an accomplice, having supplied his revolver at Young. The motive is a mystery, owing to Mohrle's refusal to make a complete statement. He told Policeman Schiller that friends had told him three days ago that Young had said Mohrle would not be allowed to vote at the municipal election here next Tuesday, giving as the reason that he would shoot Mohrle before that time. Young, he said, opened fire first, and that he shot in self-defense. More than a dozen bystanders are reported as saying Young did not draw a gun or shoot.

Young was found face downward with his hands under him, clasping his revolver, one cartridge of which was exploded. Mohrle tonight claimed to be a Republican. Others say he is a Democrat.

LIFE'S SEAMY SIDE.

USES KNIFE IN FAMILY FEUD.

Stabs Enemy Nine Times as Climax to Row.

Victim Lies Near Death in Berkeley Hospital.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BERKELEY, April 4.—John M. Peterson, a former master-at-arms of the revenue-cutter service, is in an Oakland hospital tonight with nine knife wounds in his body, and William H. Wiley, a resident of Ocean View, is hiding in the hills with a posse in search of him. The men fought early today, as the climax of a family feud of long standing. Peterson's recovery is doubtful.

According to Peterson's brother-in-law, Frank Seitz, a private in the coast artillery, Wiley and Peterson quarreled last night in a saloon.

It is said their wives had been unfriendly for some months, and Seitz states that Wiley accused Peterson of having made an insulting remark concerning Mrs. Wiley. The men went outside, and as Peterson was taking off his coat, Seitz says, Wiley attacked him with a knife, stabbing him in nine places before bystanders could interfere.

Wiley escaped, but was traced by a trail of blood, to a point where he turned off into the woods.

IN MOURNING TO FACE JURY.

Mrs. Sampson Will Wear Somber Gown When She Hears Fate on Murder Charge.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LYONS (N. Y.) April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Georgia Allyn Sampson will wear deepest mourning when she faces the judge and jury, who are to decide her fate for life or death tomorrow. The somber gown will be a silent but dramatic protest against the charge of murdering her husband, Harry Sampson, a nephew of the admiral, and connected by ties of blood and marriage to many of the most prominent families in the string of towns between Albany and Buffalo.

This young and pretty prisoner, the adopted daughter of one of the richest farmers in northern New York, is undergoing the ordeal which begins tomorrow with a coolness and fortitude that, striking contrast to the nervous excitement that prevails throughout the county.

The case is being discussed in every town and hamlet for miles and miles around tonight, and differences of opinion as to the prisoner's guilt or innocence are stirring up ill-feeling and excitement.

Asst.-Atty. Joseph Gilbert will direct the prosecution. His wife is a friend of the prisoner and one of the strongest champions of her innocence.

Mrs. Sampson will be defended by Frank Tinklepaugh, criminal lawyer and kinsman of the prisoner.

DAILY TRIES SUICIDE.

Soldier Shoots Himself Through Head and Walks Downstairs to Ambulance.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After sending a 38-caliber bullet through his head at 8:40 a.m., Henry, Max Lander, a machinist, tossed the revolver upon the bed and said quietly to a group of men who rushed into the room: "Well, I guess this will finish me. I think I've done a good job."

Then he sat on the edge of the bed and bade farewell to his friends. When an ambulance surgeon arrived from the Hudson-street hospital he met him shaking hands all around and talking as volubly as a man about to go on a pleasure trip.

There was a wound in his right temple just back of, and a little above the ear where the bullet entered, and a similar one, though somewhat larger, on the left temple, where it came out.

"Guess I put the pistol too close to my temple and burned it, because it hurts a lot," he said, to the surgeon. "I ought to have known better. Otherwise, I'm feeling fine."

The leader went downstairs without assistance, climbed into the ambulance as nimbly as the surgeon himself. The hospital surgeons say there is a chance to recover.

KILLS POLITICAL BOSS.

Joel Young, St. Louis Politician, Slain by Proprietor of Sunday Lid-Lifting Groggery.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Fred Mohrle, who runs a Sunday-morning liquor club in connection with his coal yard, at No. 820 Twenty-first street, shot and killed Samuel J. Young, colleague of Tom Brennan, "Jimmy" Miles and Edward E. ("Snake") Kinney, noted democratic bosses and protege of Ed. Butler, the famous Democratic boss, this afternoon in a hallway leading to Mohrle's coal yard.

William Wright of No. 2006 Franklin avenue, Mohrle's friend, is held by the police as an accomplice, having loaned his revolver at Young. The shooting is a mystery, owing to Mohrle's refusal to make a complete statement. He told Policeman Schiller that Young had told him three days ago that Young had said Mohrle would not be allowed to vote at the municipal election here next Tuesday, giving as the reason that he would shoot Mohrle on sight that time. Young, he said, would fire first, and that he shot in self-defense. More than a dozen bystanders are reported as saying Young did not draw a gun or shoot.

Young was found face downward with his hands under him, clasping his gun, one cartridge of which was fired. Mohrle tonight claimed to be a Republican. Others say he is a Democrat.

SHEEP HERDER SUICIDE.

SMALL BURIAL FEE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

GRAND JUNCTION (Colo.) April 4.—Shooting a double-barreled shotgun, rigged for the occasion, between his knees and pulling the trigger with his toe, J. B. Hoy, a sheep herder, out near Loma, blew off his head. According to a contract let some months ago, twenty undertakers will receive fifty-eight cents of a cent to prepare bodies for burial.

FACTS, FEATURES AND FANCIES FOR WOMEN

BY MISS SYDNEY FORD.

I saw a chafing dish set the other day which is destined to make happy the heart of a certain school girl when she graduates in June, preparatory to entering college. Surely nothing, among all the gifts this popular girl is destined to get, will be more satisfactory or of more real service. Imagine the numbers of appetizing little messes she will prepare during the four years of her college course spent in a distant State. When she feels a bit homesick she will brew herself a cup of cocoa, or mix up some tempting concotion on this Los Angeles chafing dish, and imagine she hears the mocking birds singing around her California home.

Whereas, the college girl was satisfied formerly with simply a chafing dish, now the dish itself is as nothing without the accessories that go with it and which consist of, briefly, a spoon, fork, skimmer, egg poacher, toaster, omelet or chop dish and a flagon, the whole mounted on a chafing dish tray. The spoon has a broad bowl of silver, rounded at one end, and with a long ebonized or stag-horn handle and is of use in serving, stirring or mixing. The fork is of similar material and the skimmer also, which is needed to remove grease from the boiling dish. The egg poacher enables the girl to prepare eggs instantly in a wholesome and delightful way and the toaster is a necessity for toasting bread for a Welsh rarebit. The omelet or chop dish has a flat bottom, so an omelet may be properly and easily turned in it as would be difficult to do in a deep-bottomed dish, and it may also be used for frying. The flagon holds the fluid fuel and, being air tight, prevents evaporation.

Marble for Pastry and Pencoha.

Have you, in your kitchen, a marble slab? If not, and you have among your ancestral possessions, a marble-topped table, roll it into the kitchen and dedicate it to the stirring of penocha, and the rolling of pie-crust. It could not have a higher or more useful mission and you will be surprised to see how much more toothsome will be your pastry and how much more creamy will be your penocha when rolled or stirred on the marble slab.

Kitchen Comforts.

The perfectly equipped kitchen, says Paris Modes, as it is represented in the bride's new house, or in the progressive woman's apartment, is really a fascinating place, repiete with labor-saving devices. It is fitted up with the idea of bringing about the best results with the least expenditure of strength. Whatever the fuel be, gas, coal or alcohol, the stove is supplied with pots, pans and kettles of the lightest possible sort. If the entire outfit is to be bought anew, and it is possible to allow a sufficient amount of purpose, aluminum utensils are to be given the first choice. They are very nearly everlasting, and make no appreciable weight. Food cooked in them cannot easily be scorched or burned, and as they are seamless, there is no possibility of leakage. However, it is not always possible to indulge one's tastes in this direction on account of the expense involved, and the lovely blue and white, the all-white and the brown and white enamel-wares are each and every one to be desired. Indeed, their color effects are so beautiful, and go so far otward producing esthetic surroundings that even when the teakettle, the griddle and the larger pots and pans are chosen of aluminum, the enamel bowls, plates and platters are given the preference.

Dainty Dining-rooms.

When we stop to realize how much of the family life is spent in the dining-room, which is the one general gathering-place three times a day, it seems well worth while to give time, and thought, and money to its comfort and adornment. More and more is this fact coming to be realized and the increased demand lately for beautiful china and glassware and other fittings for the table, so dealers tell me, is most apparent.

I called attention the other day to the exquisite monogram china which is being used so much by the ultra fashionables. This has brought with it a like demand for table glassware to match. Some recent patterns in both china and glass have simply the gold edge with initial engraved and gilded. More elaborate designs show the heavy encrusted gold edge and monogram of two or more letters beautifully blended together in gold. No ornamentation is more appropriate for the thin, blown crystal table ware than a gold monogram, either with an embossed, narrow, gold border, or a simple gold edge. No other decoration combines so effectively with the transparency and brilliancy of the glass. Only the very best glassware is worthy of being decorated in this manner as pure gold is not easily fired and special artists who are experts in this branch of designing must be employed to meet the requirements.

I saw the other day a monogram set which was fit to set before a queen. The interlaced letters formed a single, ornamental figure, so symmetrical that it was simple and easily read.

Uncooked Food Fad.

The uncooked-food fad is again abroad in the land and may reach this side of the continent at any minute. An exchange reports that it has broken out in more or less violent form in Boston, where even beans must be left off the bill of fare for such dinners. Here, for instance, is the menu for one such meal which was prepared for a company of fifty:

Grape fruit, stuffed celery, ripe olives, grape juice, cold slaw, with chopped carrots, watercress, protoid nuts and red peppers with dressing, pecan meats, unfired bread, combination nut butter, jellied eggs served on shredded lettuce, orange baskets filled with marshmallow pudding, orange musse, cream cheese and fruit wafers.

To Save Skirt Laundry.

Talk as we may about the value of a silk petticoat, most women down deep in their hearts would prefer to wear dainty white skirts with pretty frou-frou ruffles of fine lace or embroidery—if they could afford it. But the laundry bills are prohibitive and we all know that a colored silk petticoat is much cheaper because it does not have to be laundered, and a soiled white skirt is about the most "shiftless" article of wearing apparel that a self-respecting woman can don. I read in the Ladies' World of a clever little scheme which I will pass along. We've all heard of the plan of having one petticoat a top with several flounces to be attached, one succeeding another as fast as they become soiled, but the difficulty has been to keep them properly adjusted. If buttoned on they are apt to sag in places, and, in time, the buttonholes work large and we never know when the button will slip out. This new scheme is to simply sew a strong piece of lace or embroidered beading to the top of each flounce and a similar piece some inches above the bottom of the petticoat top. Then lace the two together by running a ribbon through both. It takes but a few minutes to make the change and is very satisfactory. A dry ruffle means a dry skirt when you have had wet walking, and several frilly ones will save laundry when light dresses are worn. A silk petticoat may be treated in the same way, and if you cannot match its color in beading, crochet an open insertion for it.

Fads of the Moment.

Most of the new crepe blouses are inset with Irish crochet lace.

Pretty little neck bows are made of colored open-work embroidery.

On many of the new ribbons just arrived checks play a prominent part.

Swiss with colored dots is very fresh and dainty for frocks or curtains.

The Dutch collar may be worn with dresses and is equally good on coats.

There are jabots of net, linen or batiste, and they are variously trimmed.

Swiss embroidery, whether hand done or machine, gives excellent effects.

Some of the colored linens for suits have a pin stripe of white through them.

Sleeves are longer and flatter and they closely follow the lines of the arm.

Guimpes are made of cambric, a pleasant change after the too frequent use of net.

The plaid suit or kilted plaid skirt has been adopted by leaders of Paris fashion.

Taffeta bands, embroidered in silver bullion thread, make an especially rich trimming.

Hair ornaments are large, the newest barettes being from two to three inches wide.

The U.S.S. Cheyenne, Capt. Knapp, left port this morning for a cruise of three days for tests and practice. She will return here some time Thursday.

PREACHES UNDER GUARD.

Pastor Calls on Police to Aid Him Deliver His Sunday Morning Sermon.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Rev. Adam Traudt, pastor of the First German Evangelical Church of Globeville, a suburb of Denver, preached his sermon this morning under guard of three policemen stationed at intervals across the front of the church near the pulpit. This extraordinary scene was enacted as a result of a long quarrel with some of the members of his congregation. Last Wednesday evening at a church meeting a majority vote of one deposed the minister. He refused to recognize the vote and declared he would hold the fort against his enemies. In pursuance of this policy he spent Friday night in the church, heavily armed, to prevent the entrance of a hundred churchgoers who gathered, determined to enter and put him out.

"I am not going to allow the affairs of this church to be run by a crowd of infidels who were excommunicated from the church more than two years ago," said Rev. Traudt. The trouble will probably be taken to the courts.

A STATISTICAL ORGY.

Everything Reduced to Figures and the Remarkable Results That Are Arrived at.

From one point of view Christmas has never yet been properly treated—I mean the point of view of the statistician. Nowadays we reduce everything to figures. We judge of an author's genius by the number of books he sells, of an actress's popularity by the number of offers she receives from the sons of peers.

Every schoolboy knows that the number of speeches delivered during an average session of Parliament would, if they were bottled and sold by chemists, cure 2,127,865 persons of sleeplessness. We are all familiar with the fact that the popular tunes whistled by street boys and played on organs in London during any day of eight hours are enough to cause the untimely deaths of 24,185 cows. But as to the statistics of Christmas we are shamefully ignorant. To remedy this defect a representative of this journal called upon a famous statistical expert and from him extracted the following information, none of which I have any reason to think exact:

"I have given atetntion to this subject," he said, "for a great many years. I have numbers of correspondents supplying me with facts. I have made most elaborate calculations. I reckon that, excluding dumb persons, Turks, Zoroastrians, and Thugs, every person in England said 'A merry Christmas' on the average eight and a half times each. This would give a total of 319,987,645 merry Christmases exchanged during the twenty-four hours which end at midnight. No, I am wrong. The last figure should, I believe, be a 6.

"Reckoning geese as turkeys (on the railway companies' principle that 'turtles is insects') you may take it that 874,999 of these succulent feathered bipeds were cooked and eaten, accompanied by 7,431,627 sausages, 250 tons of bread-sauce, and as much gravy as would fill the Serpentine and still leave enough to float the model yachts on the Round Pond.

"Next we come to plum pudding. I calculate that if all the puddings were joined together they would reach from Charing Cross to within about half a mile of Birmingham Town Hall. If piled up in the air they would, allowing for squashing, be exactly two hundred and eighteen times as high as the Eiffel Tower.

"The number of crackers pulled was, so far as I can reckon, 6,514,202, of which twenty-three went off properly at the first tug; 2,111,876 were exploded by venturesome young men amid cries from their female relatives of, 'Oh! do be careful, there's a dear boy,' and the rest had to be cracked in the fire. Over one million young ladies said, 'Oh, don't be so silly,' after reading mottoes presented to them with admiring glances by very young gentlemen. Fourteen thousand children said on opening fresh boxes, 'These silly old caps again!' I hoped they'd be musical instruments.' Eighty-four thousand adults on hearing this said, 'Thank Heaven they aren't.'

"The following phrases were, as you will see, much in use during the day:—Just what I wanted.—8,123,456.

Christmas isn't what it used to be.—6,218,387.

Nice seasonable weather isn't it?—10,112,249.

Doesn't seem like Christmas weather, does it?—9,243,395.

Should you mind if I kissed you under the mistletoe?—2,278,942.

Of course I should. How dare you suggest such a thing?—2,278,942.

CLOCK'S ENORMOUS HANDS.

The Metropolitan Life's Timekeeper to Use Fourteen-Foot Pointer to Show Hour.

[New York Commercial:] The hands, said to be the largest ever made for a clock, destined for the tower of the Metropolitan Life building, are now being tested by the makers in Brooklyn. The minute hand measures fourteen feet from the center pin to the tip, and there are six feet of counterpoise.

The hour hand is eleven feet in length. They are made of manganese bronze, are of bridge truss construction and weigh more than 1700 pounds. Over the metal is a covering of wire glass which will allow illumination. Through each there are two twenty-four-inch electric tubes, and it is estimated that when illuminated it will be possible, on a clear night, to read the time at a distance of twenty-four miles, the clock being 400 feet above the street level.

There will be a clock on each of the four sides of the tower, and this will require four similar sets of hands. The present pair has taken three months to make. Together with the clocks there will be a set of five bells to strike the Westminster chimes. The clocks will be operated by electricity.

A Topsyturvydom People.

Saba, mentioned in a recent dispatch from the West Indies, is one of the most extraordinary places in the world.

By courtesy it is called an island, but it is really nothing more than the summit of an extinct volcano sticking up out of the sea.

Inside the crater live the only inhabitants of Saba. They live there because there is nowhere else for them to live, the outside slopes being nearly as steep as the sides of a house.

The place belongs to Holland, and the people are all Dutch. Nevertheless, they speak English as their native tongue. They call their crater town Bottom, because it is situated on the top of a mountain.

Although surrounded on all sides by the sea, they often spend weeks without seeing it, for that involves a long climb up to the rim of the crater. Still less frequently do they touch salt water, because to do so they must, in addition, climb downward for a distance of 1500 feet by a precipitous rock-hewn path, known as the Ladder.

It is, however, in regard to their staple industry that these Dutch people who speak English, and who live aloft in a volcano city called Bottom, reach the extreme of topsy-turvydom. One might imagine them making balloons or kites, or, in fact, anything which they do make, which is ships.

Not ocean-going liners, of course, but good, serviceable schooners and luggers, whose repute is great all over the Windward Islands. The ships, when finished, have to be hauled up to the rim of the crater, and then lowered over a precipice into the sea.—[Exchange.

Prompt Paying Company.

"Does our company pay promptly, ma'am?" exclaimed the representative of a well-known insurance company while canvassing in the Streatham district the other day. "Why, quite lately a man who had insured with us against accident fell from the roof of a house, and as he passed the third story window a check was handed to him for the full amount of the policy."—[Tit-Bits.

Not His Work.

Mr. Mildew (the undertaker:) Ah, it gives me a hawful turn, 'Enery, when I went in the barn an' saw poor Swilks hanging there. I turned and ran for the police like lightnin'.

Henry: But didn't you cut him down first?

Mr. M.: Course I didn't.

Henry: Why not?

Mr. M.: 'Cos he warn't dead.—[Tit-Bits.

Gold Dust
cleans everything

Don't mar your kettles and pans, or wear them out by such strenuous methods of cleaning as the use of knives, metal scrapers or iron dish rags.

Gold Dust affords easier, a more natural way.

Just add a little Gold Dust to the water—let soak in for a few moments—and the particles of food and grease clinging to the dish can be easily and quickly washed off.

Kettles last longer and retain their new appearance for a greater length of time when cleaned with Gold Dust.

PASADENA.

FINE TRIBUTE TO A MARTYR.

EX-VICE-PRESIDENT'S EULOGY OF WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

Eloquent Address at First Methodist Church—Both Parties Confident of Success in Mayoralty Contest—Millionaire Brewer Goes East. Society Interested in Engagements.

Office of The Times, No. 39 E. Raymond Ave.

PASADENA, April 5.—Former Vice-President Fairbanks spoke at the First Methodist Church last night on William McKinley. Briefly, he pointedly sketched the life of this great man. He said in part:

"A good Providence runs throughout the history of our great republic. We find that in great emergencies when great men have been demanded in some providential way they have been furnished.

"William McKinley was one of the greatest men this country has ever produced, one of the greatest men the world has produced. He was an eminent statesman; more than that, he was an eminent citizen; more than that, he was a good Christian. In this country of ours church and State are happily separate and in God's providence I believe they will always be separate. But in a large sense the Christian church is the corner-stone of the State. Our American republic is the fruit of Christian civilization. Take out the influence of the Christian church and we would indeed begin a backward movement. We are young years compared to the older peoples across the seas.

"Twice the leadership of his party was offered to McKinley, but he declined the honor because he was there to promote the welfare and happiness of that party. He loved honor not for the sake of honor; he loved place not for the sake of place—but because it enabled him to serve in a larger degree the welfare of his countrymen.

"Later he was elected Governor of the State of Ohio and served for two years with great ability, and after two years was reelected for two years more, and in 1896 when the country was prostrate from the Atlantic to the Pacific, his party sought for leadership and instinctively turned to the brave and efficient Congressman, the splendid executive of his State, and placed the leadership in the hands of William McKinley. The campaign was of intense interest until the verdict was that McKinley was to be our Chief Magistrate.

"President McKinley, in all the troubles and trials that he passed through and they were many—never lost the confidence of his temper, was never irritated. He counselled tolerance of others. One of the things which he did was to bring about an era of good feeling between the North and South. It was the ambition of his administration and he often said to his friends: 'If I can succeed in eliminating the last trace of bitterness of the Civil War I will regard it as the crowning achievement of my administration.'

"But I do not regard that as his crowning achievement. He rose at one period of his life to the highest conception that any man ever attained. That is strong language but you will agree with me. At the beginning when the country was impoverished for war, he knew perfectly well that in all human probability victory would crown our armies if war should come, and that it would put his administration above the dead level to a high rank in history. But to all such consideration he turned a deaf ear. He put patriotism above and beyond personal aggrandisement, the welfare of his country above personal considerations. 'I do not care how much money will be wasted if the war comes,' he said, 'if international conflict is to be our lot, but the thought of human suffering, the human anguish, is most overwhelming to me.' Nothing of the spirit of the conqueror in that, nothing of the self-seeker. It was the very fruit and flower of patriotism, the love of country and of humanity.

"President McKinley! What a splendid and majestic name! He was the very incarnation of the best and noblest aspirations of the American people.

"But a few days before the last trip he took I sat with him on that historic porch in Canton and he was full of the spirit of generous and kindly feeling. He spoke of the expression of popular confidence in himself and talked of the hour when he might lay down the great responsibility and assume his place in quiet life. The sky was cloudless. There were no danger signals anywhere, only love in the hearts of his countrymen. A great exposition was in progress at Buffalo. The great President was anxious that it should be a success. He went to Buffalo that he might emphasize the significance of the event by his presence. He delivered an address full of patriotism, full of wise counsel. His last address was worthy of the man and worthy of the supreme hour. The future was veiled, but had he foreseen the end, he could not have spoken more wisely.

"Shortly after, out of a cloudless sky the cruel bullet fell. Music hall; I can see it now, overmastering tragedy! In all the history of the human race there is only one it can be compared to, and I speak with no impiety—it was upon Mt. Calvary!"

BOTH PARTIES CONFIDENT.

"We not only expect to reelect Mayor Earley but also to carry every precinct in the city," was the sweeping statement of H. C. Hotaling, campaign manager of the administration party last night. "And you may add that I assure Mr. Waterhouse that if he should be elected by only one vote that we will not contest the election as he did when Earley defeated him, and that should be by chance be elected, Mr. Earley will await him in the Mayor's office to extend cordial greetings of good will, as he did not do when Earley defeated him. That may sound harsh, but it is based on fact and I do not hesitate to say that any man who can not extend common courtesy to his successor in office is not worthy the position of Mayor of Pasadena."

M. H. Weight, campaign manager of the Waterhouse party, was also confident of victory last night, but had nothing to say beyond the fact that his commitee was entirely satisfied with the manner in which the campaign had been handled and expects to place Waterhouse in the chair.

Mayor Earley said: "My opponents have given the impression that the municipal lighting plant is not safe in my hands and that I am liable to sell it out or do some other outrageous thing with it. I want to say that I guard the city's best interests. I refute the charge that I have been extravagant in the legal department, for the burden of increase in its expenses was saddled on to my term of office by the Waterhouse administration, which is responsible for the Edison Electric Company suits, the Graham and Alcot suit in regard to water and the Green and Marshall Company suit in regard to the widening of Fair Oaks. The department is overburdened with work and is being run on an economical basis."

BREWER LEAVES.

Adolphus Busch leaves on the Santa Fé overland tonight for St. Louis. He will be accompanied by his wife and by his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Faust. Mr. Busch stated yesterday that he expects to return to Pasadena in time for the Christmas holidays and that on his next visit he will remain until the middle of May.

SHORT LINE LONG.

J. W. McCauley has been "keeping tab" on the Pasadena Short Line cars and has some interesting data in regard to the running time between Los Angeles and Pasadena. "It takes longer for the Short Line cars to run from the Pacific Electric building to Los Angeles and Aliso streets, a distance of eight and one-half blocks, than it does for the same car to complete its run from that point to Pasadena, a distance of eight and one-half miles," said McCauley. He is of the opinion that the only remedy for the congested condition of the street car service on Main street is an elevated entrance into Los Angeles for the heavy traffic of the Pacific Electric.

ENGAGEMENTS ANNOUNCED.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Peterson, No. 337 Markham street, announces the engagement of their granddaughter, Miss Emma D. C. Peterson, to David Blankenhorn. Miss Peterson will return to Philadelphia shortly, with her grandparents, where she will spend the summer. The wedding will take place in the fall. David Blankenhorn is a son of Mr and Mrs. Louis Blankenhorn, old-time residents of this city. He is a real estate man.

Mrs. W. D. McGilvray has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marian, to O. J. Salisbury, a wealthy bachelor of Salt Lake City. The announcement was made at a small tea given by Mrs. McGilvray at the Hershey Arms, Los Angeles, Saturday afternoon. Miss McGilvray has resided in Pasadena since she was a little girl. She and her brother, Donald, have a wide circle of friends here who will manifest the greatest interest in this important event in the life of so beautiful and popular a girl.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Maclintock of Bradford street formally announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Constance Maclintock, to Edward Butler Rust of Los Angeles. No date for the marriage has yet been set. Mr. Rust is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Rust, who lived for many years in Pasadena on Kensington Place, and Mr. and Mrs. Maclintock have been residents of Pasadena since its colony days.

DEATH OF F. J. WOODBURY.

F. J. Woodbury, who lived in Pasadena twenty-eight years, died at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at his residence, No. 125 Terrace Drive. At one time he owned the Altadena Railroad that was purchased by the Pacific Electric. His estate is estimated at $200,000. Mr. Woodbury was 75 years old, and was a native of Iowa. He leaves a widow; a son in Chicago and a daughter at the old home in Marshalltown, Iowa.

FOR CHARITY.

Although those who are socially inclined have made little pretense of observing the Lenten season now closing in abstaining from social gaiety, there are new functions scheduled for Holy Week, and many of the younger society women are engaged in arranging, under the direction of Mrs. Alexander Sterling Calder an exhibiton of famous paintings for charity, the beneficiary to be the Emergency League, and the entertainment to take place at the Shakespeare clubhouse the Thursday in Easter week. These canvasses of famous artists will be made living pictures, in which the young and beautiful society girls and matrons will pose. In Burne Jones's "Mirror of Venus" will be seen Mrs. Stevenson, Misses Irene Grosse, Mildred Cushing, Nana Taylor, Ethel Hinds, Edith Rowland, Louise Austin, Ada Bonney, Margaret Sherk, and Teresa Cloud. Reynolds's "Three Ladies" will be represented by Misses Kate Smith, Julia Holmes and Genevieve Stehman. Mrs. Walstein Root will pose as Mme. Recamier, and others in portraits or groups will be Mmes. Clarence Austin, J. Foster Rhodes, Misses Marion McGilvray, Margaret Reynolds, Cora Auten, Maud Daggett, Pauline Lutz, Alice Aiden Bell and others. Four little misses will be used in some of Jessie Wilcox Smith's charming pictures, among whom will be Virginia Orbison, Florence Lowe, Blossom Hovt and Emmy Heap. Several of the pictures call for male figures, which will be represented by society men. An interesting feature of the entertainment will be the pretty girl ushers, among whom will be Misses Gerture Luckey, Mary and Katherine Wadsworth, Tirza Merriman, Marion Sharpe and Margery Moon.

Music will be furnished by Mrs. Revel English, piano; Miss Madeline Winthrop Barnes, violin.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB.

At the annual election of officers of the Shakespeare Club Saturday afternoon, the following women were elected to office for the club year, which will begin immediately upon the conclusion of the present season: Miss Lauretta Barnaby, president; Mrs. D. D. Kellogg, first vice-president; Mrs. J. H. Woodworth, second vice-president; Mrs. Lewis H. Salisbury, recording secretary; Mrs. Thomas H. Speakman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. Perryman, treasurer; Mrs. Henry H. Harris, auditor; Mrs. John Ely Janes, chairman of the Programme Committee, with the other standing committee chairmen as follows: Mrs. Hubert F. Ives., membership; Mrs. Moritz Rosenbaum, house; Mrs. Calvin Hartwell, civics. At the close of the business session tea was served in the tearoom, Mrs. B. F. Huntington being chairman of the committee in charge. Mrs. R. R. Meredith and Mrs. Frank Welles Parker pouring at the daintily appointed tea table.

The club programme for the remainder of the month offers many attractions, April 10 being "The Church as an Educator," Mrs. Frank S. Wallace; "The Club as an Educator," Mrs. Elizabeth Boynton Harbert; discussion on the questions, leader Mrs. L. P. Crawford, April 17, "Some of the Year's Notable Drama," Miss Winnifred Webb; "Literary Memories," Miss Theresa Jones. As usual, the club will recognize Shakespeare's birthday, April 23, with a special gathering, an evening one, for which an attractive programme has been arranged. It is expected that all members will appear in character (Shakespeare,) either in costume or with some device characteristic of some play or player.

Tuesday the current events section, led by Mrs. Mary M. Coman, will meet at 2 o'clock p.m. Wednesday at the same hour the music section will have its regular rehearsal and study period.

REACH BORNEO.

A. Claud Braden of the Pasadena Y.M.C.A., and his companion, Fritz McDonald, have now reached Borneo in their trip around the world.

Stanley Smith, 19 years old, was fined $50 Saturday for fast driving in an automobile. He admitted that he had been racing.

B. L. Richards has purchased a homesite on the west side of Ford Place, adjoining the residence of William Warr.

April 14 has been set as the date of the competitive drill for the Wankowski trophy and Co. I of the Seventh regiment, Capt. Charles Hurchins commanding, is drilling hard in preparation.

Seven hundred cards have been sent out for the Board of Trade dinner to take place at the Maryland tomorrow, at which C. W. Fairbanks is to be the guest of honor. Those in charge of the affair are anxious that answers be given not later than noon today.

It is conservatively estimated that 1500 people were on the Mt. Wilson trail yesterday, pleasure seeking and snow hunting. Many did not reach the summit and the Pacific Electric ran extra cars until midnight to accommodate the crowd. There were 240 at dinner at the Mt. Wilson Hotel last night, and the Casino was filled with cots to afford rest for weary climbers.

SEASON'S FIRST VICTIM.

DROWNS BEFORE EYES OF MANY.

SEA OVERWHELMS STUDENT AT LONG BEACH.

Stricken by Breaker and Carried Oceanward by Strong Current Young Man Is Torn from Grasp of Companion and Sinks from Sight. Bottom Dragged in Vain for Body.

LONG BEACH, April 4.—Before the eyes of thousands of spectators, old ocean today claimed its first victim of the bathing season, in front of the bath-house. Efforts to recover the body were fruitless.

The victim of the surf was John L. Jenkins, aged 19, a student of Harvard Military Academy, who came here a year ago, from Sherman, Tex., and has been making his home with his uncle, J. P. Parker, of No. 1848 West Twenty-first street, Los Angeles.

This morning Mr. Parker, accompanied by his nephew and Colvin Heath, of Pomona, another Harvard student, came to Long Beach to spend the day. After luncheon they secured bathing suits and after a time in the plunge entered the surf. The trio waded out several hundred feet when Parker felt a strong under current and warned the boys who were near him to get closer to shore. Young Jenkins misunderstood the caution and standing still, was overwhelmed by a heavy breaker and the retreating tide carried him seaward.

Heath started to aid his chum and Parker called to them to keep cool and take their time. Jenkins had Heath by the shoulder but instead of keeping cool became frightened. Heath, seeing this, called for help. The bathing season not being open the life guards are not on duty, but Hans Wockeroh, plunge guard, ran out from the bath-house and dashed toward the drowning man, but he found only Heath, who said that a wave had torn his chum from him and that he had gone down and did not again come to the surface. Later men in a boat dragged in the vicinity but found no trace of the body.

The police have taken charge of the effects of the victim, and Manager Archer has telegraphed the parents of the boy. The uncle and chum of the drowned lad were completely unnerved by the tragedy.

Following the drowning, which occurred at 2:30 o'clock, special guards went on duty and from now on the beach will be patrolled. The body will come to the surface in nine or fourteen days.

REHEARSING "PINAFORE."

Active preparations are in progress for the presentation on April 12 and 13, at the Bentley Grand, of the comic opera, "Pinafore," by local singers. Rehearsals are under the direction of Prof. Albert McGuckin. The opera is for the benefit of the Elks entertainment fund for the grand lodge meeting, and the male cast is composed of members of the order. The cast follows: Sir Joseph Porter, Dr. W. Harriman Jones; Capt. Corcoran, F. A. Knight; Ralph Rackstraw, L. L. Parmley; Dick Deadeye, Elliot Beamer; Tommy Tucker, Master Rivers Drake; Josephine, Mrs. F. A. Knight; Hebe, Miss Scott; Buttercup, Miss Lucille Saunders.

FOR ANCIENT CITY.

B. F. Bond, W. J. Hinshaw, O. P. Thorn and G. W. Trotter, the latter of San Francisco, representing a northern archaeological society, left yesterday for the scene of an ancient city which Mr. Bond claims to have discovered in the San Jacinto Mountains. They will be gone a week.

Wednesday evening of this week I. J. Boak, head consul of the Woodmen of the World, will pay a visit to Long Beach. Local Woodmen have plans for a banquet following the initiation of a class of fifty.

Grizzly Bear Parlor of the Native Sons has selected Edgar McFadyen as delegate to the grand parlor at Marysville.

The work of a youthful sign painter in Long Beach is attracting much attention. His name is Paul Turner and although but 13, he has been a professional painter for two years, and supports a mother and six brothers and sisters younger than himself.

TROPICO.

TROPICO, April 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Will J. Blain of Glendale avenue entertained with a dinner party, this evening, complimentary to James T. Gray in celebration of his birthday anniversary. Covers were laid for Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Frank Knowles, Sanderson Knowles of San Francisco and Merrill Blain.

Mr. and Mrs. Will W. Dunham celebrated the second anniversary of their marriage at their home on Central avenue, last evening. Red roses and orange blossoms were used effectively in the decorations. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goff, Mr. and Mrs. George Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Maxwell, Mrs. Emma Griswold, Los Angeles; Robert Gon and Edward Goff.

Mrs. Janet Hobbs of Oneida, Ill., who has been the house guest of her son John Hobbs and family, for several months, spent the past weeks at Long Beach, as the guest of Oneida friends.

E. W. Richardson has returned from Yuma, Ariz., where he accompanied the Chamber of Commerce excursion to Laguna Dam.

PROMOTING REPUBLIC.

Meeting in Interest of the George Junior Establishment to Be Held in Pomona.

POMONA, April 4.—A meeting in the interest of the California George Junior Republic will be held at the new Presbyterian Church, Tuesday evening, when Mrs. T. W. Heineman, financial secretary of the Pasadena Auxiliary, and purchasing agent for the republic, will tell of the plan and purpose of the organization, and Henry B. Mowbray, superintendent of the California branch, will tell of his personal experience in the work. The republic is getting settled on the 200 acres recently purchased four miles southeast of here.

The travelers' section of the Ebell Club will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Robbins on East Holt avenue and continue the study of Mexico.

Floyd Lorbeer, president; Frank Rambo, vice-president; Ruth Hogan, recording secretary; Edith Howard, corresponding secretary; Earl Van de Veer, treasurer, are the newly-elected officers of the Y.P.S.C.E. of Pilgrim Congregational Church.

Dr. Clarence G. Toland has been called to Waco, Tex., by the serious illness of his brother-in-law.

SAFETY AT SEA.

PROTECTION BY BELL SIGNALS.

IMPORTANT DEVICE THAT TELLS SHIP'S LOCATION.

Vessels Can Approach Each Other in Dense Fog When Desired or May Use the Device to Prevent Coming Into Collision With Other Ships.

[New York Sun:] On that eventful morning when the Republic, wrapped in the fog blanket off Nantucket, was struck by the Florida, one of the Republic's officers up in the wheelhouse, listening at two telephone receivers strapped to his ears, heard the sound of a bell. It was not a loud sound, and it seemed to come from a long distance. Faint as it was the officer listening was able to hear it plainly enough to catch its strokes.

"One—two—three—four—five—six," he counted.

There was an interval of two seconds. Then he caught the same number again. He let the two telephone receivers drop and turned to the little group of anxious navigators.

"It's Nantucket all right and she's bearing north northeast," he said; and the faces brightened up visibly.

The water, not the air, had told them where they were, and a moment later Jack Binns was tapping his key and sending out in all directions through the ether, to be picked up by the vessels within a radius of 200 miles, the information that the Republic, disabled and needing help, was from fifteen to seventeen miles south of Nantucket lightship and that she would be mighty glad if they would hurry to that spot and give her a helping hand.

Had the Republic's anxious navigators been able to see the Nantucket light instead of hearing her submarine bell they would not have known any more positively where they were. The submarine signal system in their distress played as important a part as did that other invention—wireless telegraphy. It told them accurately just where they were. Moreover it might have done more. Had the Republic been equipped with the submarine sending apparatus, as was the lightship, she could have by the same marvelous system drawn the big Baltic up to her as a drowning man would put out his hand and draw to him the floating spar which was to save his life.

It was because the Republic did not take advantage of the chance she had of calling to the Baltic through the water but used onldy the air as a medium for her calls for help that it took her big sister twelve hours to find her. In that time, according to the Baltic's captain, she traveled 200 miles, and all within an area of ten square miles.

"By wireless telegraphy," said an authority the other day, "you can tell folks a long way off what has happened to you, but the trouble is if you're lost in an impenetrable fog how are you going to tell them where you are? The electric current goes in all directions and will not convey the definite position of a ship. So far as locating you goes all that your friends who hear you call can be sure of is that you are somewhere within say 200 miles, but in what direction they don't know.

"With submarine signaling supplementing the wireless the difficulty is solved, for it's like calling to your friend and at the same time showing him a light to indicate to him where you are, and a ship using the two needn't be bothered by fog, wind or waves in summoning help."

The submarine signal is a simple device, but it has taken years to work it out. In fact, away back in the last century experiments were made that showed how much surer the water was in conveying your message than was the air, and quicker besides. Ring a bell under water and the sound will travel almost exactly four times faster than the same sound will carry through the air, and what is more its course will be straight. It will also go as far.

With all the improvements made in the steam sirens with which the world has tried to protect its shipping when the fog shuts out the lights there has always remained that curious tendency of the air currents to deflect sound. "Silent zones" the scientists have called the stretches on the sea where in the sound of these sirens cannot be heard, though they may be within a mile.

Ships have stumbled around blindly in a fog waiting for the siren of a lightship and have almost bumped into it before they have caught it. This happened once when Admiral Evans and his fleet were going into Newport harbor. Three miles away one of his vessels, the Iowa, caught the shriek of the harbor siren and tried to head for it. Then the siren was lost until she was 150 yards away. The result was that the big battleship bumped into the lightship.

A special commission appointed in 1894 tried to find out something about silent zones. They sailed around a big steam siren and drew marks on paper showing that absolutely no law could be laid down for the freaks of the atmosphere in this respect.

Now on forty-three lightships for the guidance of mariners there hangs from a davit a big brass bell attached to which is some mechanism operated by compressed air. Let a fog roll in from the sea and down goes this bell about twenty-five feet, the mechanism is started and the bell begins to give the code number of its lightship far below in the water.

There is a compressed air chamber above the bell with thirty pounds pressure. A little wheel is kept revolving aboard the lightship and its teeth regulate an additional supplw of air which opens a valve in the air chamber at the required intervals to make a signal. The air rushing out of the chamber lifts the clapper of the bell.

These bells have to be nearly three inches thick in order to convey the proper amount of sound to a distance of seventeen miles, as they do. They weigh 240 pounds. It is possible to operate them not only on a lightship but from the shore as well.

For instance there is one at Chebucto Head off the coast of Canada, suspended on a tripod 110 feet down and operated by an electric current from the shore, five miles away. There are also bells suspended on buoys and operated by the action of the waves, the old form of bell buoy upside down. The water, owing to its uniform density, transmits the sound of these bells uniformly in every direction, and hence all that remains is for a ship to pick them up just as it would pick up a light on a clear night.

Down in the bowels of a ship like the Republic, clamped onto the vessel's skin three or four feet above the keel on either side, there is a little tank of water about the size of a bird cage. Suspended in it is a microphone, an instrument much like the transmitter of a telephone.

The sound waves coming through the water hit the vessel's side, pass on through it, through the water in the tank, and strike the microphone, and from this run the wires to the telephone receivers up in the wheelhouse on the bridge. The two little tanks are situated equi-distant from the bow, back about eighty feet. By means of these port and starboard tanks the officer up in the wheelhouse tells exactly the direction of the sound.

Suppose, for instance, one of the Transatlantic liners is lost in the fog off the coast, and absolutely unable to tell where she is; this is what the submarine signal does for the anxious officers on her bridge upon whom the safety of so many souls depends: With two receivers at his ears the skipper may catch the strokes of the bell, faint, perhaps, but nevertheless audible, from the port tank. He knows at once by the number what lightship is warning him of danger, and he knows the location of that lightship.

The next thing he will probably do is to turn his ship until he gets the same sound from both tanks. Then he knows that he is head on to that lightship. All that he has then to do is to look at his compass and set his course accordingly. His troubles are solved as easily as though he had caught the sun's red ball through his glass and it had told him where he was on the surface of the globe.

When the newest device is installed a skipper will be able to push other vessels away from him as a man would push his way through a crowd. With all ships equipped thus the sea will have been robbed of one more terror.

There is another problem the submarine signal has solved, and that is the evolution of submarines. Until the invention of this mode of signalling there was no way to communicate with a moving submarine, either from a ship on the surface of the water or from another submarine scooting along the bottom. Hence maneuvers by two or more submarines were almost impossible.

Some of the latest submarines are equipped not only with receivers but also with the bells. A battleship on the surface can thus direct the operations of one or more submarines by different code signals on her bell, the bells taking the place of the flags used in operations on the surface.

Difference in Rubbers.

"Mistah Johnsing," said the end man, after the circle has been seated, "I has a puhplexin' interrogation to perpound to yo dis ebenin'."

"Go right ahead and propound it," urges Mr. Johnsing.

"What am de diffunce atween a man dat plays fohty-five games o' bridge whist an' don't win a game an' a po' feller dat gits a job in a Tukkish bathroom a-massahgin' gennelmen dat has dropped all dah money on de races?"

"Well, I confess that question is too abstruse for me," acknowledges Mr. Johnsing. "What is the answer?"

"One loses de rubbahs an' de oddeh rubs de loseh."

At this juncture the bass drummer smites his instrument a resounding blow and the entire troupe arises and begins singing that popular ballad, "When We Raised Our Spring Umbrellas Down Upon the Good Old Farm."—[Chicago Post.

When Tommy Overstepped.

From the dark kitchen there emanated a series of thumps and angry exclamations. Jones was looking for the cat.

"Pa," called the son from the stairway.

"Go to bed and let me alone," blurted Jones. "I've just barked my shins."

"Pa," insisted Tommy, after a moment's silence.

"Well, what is it? Didn't I tell you to keep quiet?"

"I—I didn't hear your shins bark.' And the next moment Tommy was being pursued by an angry sire with a hard hairbrush.—[Chicago News.

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gardiner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles and a severe female weakness. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but I could not bear to think of it. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash—and was entirely cured after three months' use of them."—Mrs. S. A. Williams, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 39, Gardiner, Me.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and renewer of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

W.B. Reduso CORSETS

Reduce Stout Figures

The result of a very fleshy woman wearing the REDUSO Corset for the first time is the same effect as a marked decrease in weight.

They modify the full bust, define a pleasing waistline, hold flat the abdomen, reduce the fleshy hips and taper off the full lines of the back.

A positive reduction of from one to five inches, is made without burdening the corset with straps or other devices.

REDUSO, Style 770, (same as illustrated), for tall large women. Material of very serviceable white coutil or batiste with three pairs hose supporters, sizes 19 to 36. Price $3.00.

REDUSO, Style 772, for short large women, same materials as 770, but slightly lower bust. Price $3.00.

REDUSO, Style 774, made slightly longer below the waistline than Style 770 and of a material especially woven to withstand extreme wear and strain. Three pairs hose supporters, sizes 19 to 36, $5.00.

W. B. NUFORM CORSETS SUBDUE THE HIPS

They are the universally popular models for average figures. Their shape-giving lines produce well subdued hips and stately carriage. Many models—all good—all dependable.

Made in $1.00, $1.50, $2.00 and $3.00 Qualities.

CALLED SIX HOURS IN SOFT PIECE OF ROAD.

Automobile and Trailers Which Are Making Their Way Overland Death Valley Delayed When Wheels of One Car Are Buried to the Hubs.

ESCONDIDO, April 4.—After being held for six hours in a "soft" piece of road, a mile below the city, Friday afternoon, a big automobile engine and three trailers of the California Motor Car Company, which is making the journey, under its own power from San Diego to Death Valley, via Los Angeles, left Escondido yesterday morning, over the regular automobile road route by the way of Elsinore. The overland train left San Diego, Thursday afternoon, making Miramar, seven miles north of the city, before down. Friday the journey was resumed and a point within a mile of Escondido, twenty-five miles farther, was reached by 2 p.m. Here the train attempted to take an untraveled section of the highway, in order, as Superintendent Wilkinson said, to prevent frightening teams. The wheels of one of the cars sank through the crust of the roadbed and were buried to the hubs. Six hours of strenuous work were required to extricate the equipment. The combined power of the cars is equal to that of 150 horses. A shaft runs from the engine in the first car back to and underneath each of the others. A clutch connects each section of shaft. When the engine is running it propels not only the head car, but by means of this clutch-connected shaft gives impetus to each trailer. A roller chain connects a cogwheel on the shaft of each car with a chain that turns an axle of the car. A powerful effect is produced when the engine is in motion. The wheels are of steel, equipped with teeth to bite into the sand.

The train is to be used for hauling ore from the mine in the desert, near Goldsburg, to the nearest railway, 175 miles away. It was to start across the Atlantic, thence through the isthmus by the Tehuantepec railway and from Salina Cruz to San Diego by one of the American-Hawaiian liners.

LOOKING FOR SQUIRRELS MAN DISCOVERS CORPSE.

Gruesome Find Near the Point of Rocks, a Few Miles East of Riverside and Close to Target Grounds of National Guards—Orange Grove Orchards Hands.

RIVERSIDE, April 4.—Much mystery surrounds the death of an unknown Indian, whose body was found yesterday afternoon in a lonely spot near the Point of Rocks, a few miles east of Riverside. Judging from the condition of the body, the man had been dead four or five days. As far as could be learned, the Indian, who apparently about 50 years of age, died a natural death, while lying among the rocks.

The grewsome discovery was made by Adolph Torren, while hunting squirrels near the target grounds of the company M. He noticed a coat in a crevice of the rocks, and soon found the body of the Indian.

SELLS ORANGE GROVE.

The sale has been made of W. T. Lamore's ten-acre orange grove at the corner of Madison street and Victoria avenue, for a consideration of $25,000. The deal was made through the agency of F. T. Morrison, and the purchase is J. F. Dixon of Chicago, one of the officials of the Western Electric Company. Mr. Dixon proposes to build a handsome home on the property and move to Riverside with his family.

GOLF VICTORS.

By the score of 18 to 13, the Victoria golf team of Riverside won the fifth game of the series of matches for the Horn-Hall cup on the local grounds yesterday afternoon, against the team from the Redlands Country Club. This makes Riverside three games as against two won by the Redlands team. The next game will be played on the Redlands grounds in two weeks.

The match aroused keen interest among members of the two clubs, and the points of each couple were watched closely as they returned from each round of the links.

ANAHEIM.

ANAHEIM, April 4.—R. M. Fay will once erect a $2500 residence on his place at West Anaheim.

Mr. Dixon proposes to build a handsome home on the property and move to Riverside with his family.

ANAHEIM, April 4.—R. M. Fay will soon erect a $2500 residence on his lot on West Anaheim.

Herman Kinner has let a contract for a $1800 residence on South Lemon street.

Deputy Marshal Steadman will represent the local Odd Fellows' lodge in the grand lodge in San Francisco. Fritz Fox and Herman Schindler will also attend.

Mr. Jepson is installing a thirty-horsepower pumping plant on his place near town.

Mr. Lawrence is also installing a pumping plant on his West Anaheim place.

J. Resh sold his fifteen-acre place yesterday at West Anaheim to John Curtis, for $5000. The property is improved, five acres being set to oranges.

MAY ERECT FACTORY.

Best Sugar Plant to Be Put Up at Perris If Farmers Encourage Company.

PERRIS, April 4.—Representatives of the Columbia Land and Sugar Company have been in this valley the past few days, looking over the field with a view of establishing a $1,000,000 beet-sugar factory here. Meetings of the local ranchers in the several school districts have been called for this week to consider the matter, and if reasonable encouragement is given the company will invest in 5000 acres and establish the plant here.

This place can now boast of another feather in its cap. This time it is an ostrich feather. A new industry and attraction has been added by the shipping in of fifty-three young birds by the Cawston Ostrich Farm, from their place at Whittier to pasture in their alfalfa ranch recently acquired. These birds are from three to four months old. They were unloaded from the box car into wagons with high racks, to be taken to the ranch, and the process afforded much amusement and excitement for the large crowd of spectators. The land here will be used for breeding and feeding ground for some of the young birds while others will be placed at San Jacinto.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hook entertained at their home on Thursday evening with a farewell party for Dr. and Mrs. T. L. Lanier, who will leave shortly for their new home at Portland, Tenn. About eighty guests were present.

FOR THE BUILDERS.

VALLEY TO GET BRICK PLANT.

SITE PURCHASED BETWEEN EL CENTRO AND IMPERIAL.

Hollow and Roof Tiles Are Also to Be Turned Out by New Manufacturing Concern—No Bonus Asked for Locating—Hotel at County Seat to Reopen.

EL CENTRO, April 4.—Another notable addition is to be made to the industries of the Imperial Valley in the location of a tile factory between El Centro and Imperial by E. O. Simons and associates, brickmakers of Los Angeles.

Mr. Simons was in El Centro the past week, looking over the field. He is so well pleased with the prospect for a great demand for this material that he has purchased a tract of fifty acres upon which to locate the factory.

It is proposed to manufacture hollow tile and roof tile for building purposes. The use of similar material in this valley has demonstrated its great adaptability to climatic conditions here. The Simons Brick Company asks no bonus of the community, but will proceed to establish the industry, which, it believes, will furnish a building material of desirability because of its cheapness as compared with lumber and its general excellence for this climate. The factory will employ a large number of men.

At the last meeting of the El Centro City Trustees the contract for constructing the city's septic tank sewer system was formally awarded to Frick & Ware of Los Angeles, who will use every possible effort to complete the work before the summer heat arrives. The City Trustees have also authorized the execution of a contract to purchase a site for septic tank from Dr. J. C. Blackinton and land for a sewer farm from I. N. Stevens.

Helms & Pellett, owners of the Hotel Oregon at El Centro, have given a trust deed for the hotel and its equipment to their creditors, who are represented by George A. Carter, president of the Valley State Bank. The hotel was temporarily closed last Monday, but will reopen tomorrow morning, under the charge of an experienced hotel manager from Los Angeles, and will continue to maintain its place as a feature attracting tourists and visitors to Imperial Valley.

Be interested in cleaning up El Centro have become the members of the woman's section of the Ten Thousand Club that they now propose to have every rubbish pile in the city carted away at the expense of the club. A systematic collection of garbage has also been provided for through the efforts of this club.

NEWPORT BEACH.

NEWPORT BEACH, April 4.—The directors of the Chamber of Commerce went over Collins's Island with W. S. Collins and Col. S. H. Finley Friday afternoon and measured the disputed territory. They say that if Collins is allowed to fill out to the south line of his property the narrowest point of the channel will be reduced to 565 feet. The Chamber of Commerce has signified its willingness to await the decision of the Supervisors and War Department, and abide by it. At a special meeting last evening a committee composed of Judge John King and Walter A. Cornelius was appointed to appear before the Supervisors Wednesday to continue the protest against the approval of the map of the island. Capt. Fries will at that time define the probable harbor lines in the bay.

The petrified remains of a whale were discovered a quarter of a mile from the bay while the city crew was digging dirt to be used in grading the streets.

EQUINE DREAM.

LONG SLUMBER ON THE HOOF.

SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY HAS MYSTERIOUS HORSE.

After a Rough Slide Down Mountain Slope the Animal Sleeps for Days and Shows Little Evidence of Disturbance, Even When a Shotgun Is Fired Close to It.

SAN BERNARDINO, April 4.—Charles Muir, a mine owner of Wild Rose Cañon, has a queer equine case on his hands which is attracting considerable interest from teamsters and mining men. His horse went to sleep two weeks ago and, despite the most strenuous efforts to arouse it, has remained in deep slumber ever since. That it is slowly coming out of its queer repose, Muir says is evident by its increasing susceptibility to the report of a shotgun, with which he has daily tested its power of hearing.

Over two weeks ago the animal was lost, and when found was in a gorge. Muir discovered where it had slid down a steep side of the mountain, evidently having had a hard time to prevent rolling to the creek bottom. The animal was considerably bruised, but was easily led back to the Muir place. Muir threw it a fork full of alfalfa, and next morning was surprised to find the animal still standing where he had left it, the feed untouched. Having to go to Randsburg, Muir tossed the horse more alfalfa, provided it with a well-filled trough of water, and drove away.

Two days later he returned and found the animal still standing almost in the same spot, and there was no evidence that any part of the fodder had been disturbed. For three days Muir worked over the horse, and on the fifth day called several teamsters to look at it. They were freighting to Skidoo, and on returning two days later they found conditions with the horse still unchanged.

At their suggestion Muir discharged a shotgun close to the animal, and a slight jerk of the head indicated that the noise had been heard. Daily since then the horse has shown increased evidence of hearing the shotgun, and Friday, when last heard from, the horse had assumed a reclining position, and had shown its first interest in the pile of alfalfa, which encourages the belief that it will ultimately recover.

The teamsters are of the opinion that the horse strafned or jarred the nerves which control consciousness, the result being its record-breaking slumber.

SELL FOR TAXES.

All property in San Bernardino county upon which taxes have been delinquent for over a period of five years and which has passed into the hands of the State, is to be sold at public auction. The State Comptroller has made a demand upon the County Tax Collector to make the sale, and County Auditor Hammer has now a big force of clerks at work preparing the necessary data. From an estimate made by the Auditor the sale of this property will add at least $100,000 to the yearly tax receipts of the county by returning the lands to the assessment rolls. The sale will be authorized under a recently- enacted law, which gives the State authority to order the sale of all such delinquent property. Heretofore such sales have involved only such parcels of land as parties desiring to bid upon the same might ask to have sold, leaving the bulk of the delinquencies still unsold, the owners finding it much less expensive to pay an annual 7 per cent. upon their property than to meet the taxes.

PINE CONES FOR ELKS.

Within the next five days no less than seventy trainloads of Elks and other sightseers will pass through San Bernardino over the Salt Lake and Santa Fé for Los Angeles. The Chamber of Commerce and local Elks have joined hands to provide entertainment for the visitors here, if it can be arranged to have them devote an hour or more to seeing the sights of this city and valley. The Elks have planned to provide each visitor with a big pine cone, fresh from the forests on the mountains. Today men were set to work collecting the necessary cones, and tomorrow the first wagonloads from the heights will be received here. A card or something else to identify the city and the local lodge will be attached to each cone.

FIGHT FOR DEPUTY.

County Surveyor Cook has appointed a deputy in his office, as a basis for testing the right of the Supervisors to shelve his monthly expense account. He proposes to get a court decision upon the problem whether the section of the newly-enacted County Government Act providing for additional help in some of the county offices is immediately applicable. Heretofore the District Attorney has refused to approve these expense accounts, the result being that there has been a constant war between the Surveyor's office and the legal department of the county.

GARDEN GROVE.

GARDEN GROVE, April 4.—On Friday, while gathering eggs in a loft, Mrs. T. A. Richardson stepped on a board that broke. She fell eight feet. She may be hurt internally. She is 55 years old.

Rev. Mr. Millett has resigned as pastor of the Baptist Church here, and Rev. Mr. Parkette has been elected as his successor. As showing its appreciation of Rev. Mr. Millett's work, the congregation gave him a month's vacation before the end of his pastorate on May 1.

Sales of lumber at the local lumber yard show considerable building to be going on in this vicinity.

FAITH.

THEY'LL PRAY ALL THE DAY.

Continuous Imploring While Polls Are Open.

Temperance Folk Determined to Close Saloons.

Campaign at San Diego Will End Strenuously.

SAN DIEGO, April 4.—Continuous prayer from 6 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening, the period that the polls will be open on Tuesday, is the plan of the Christian people, who hope to close the saloons by carrying the no-license ordinance.

Volunteers for praying have been called for and enough have responded to insure uninterrupted prayer throughout the day. The meeting will be held in the Methodist Church (South,) and all denominations in the city will be represented. Leaders will be changed each hour.

The anti-saloon forces today held dozens of meetings in churches and halls. Leading laymen, as well as ministers, have spoken to large crowds.

The temperance advocates say their parade tomorrow will eclipse any like attempt in the history of the State. There will be at least six divisions, and from 5000 to 6000 persons in line, principally women and children.

The saloon element is also active, but the leaders decided to close their campaign with less bluster than was at first contemplated. The parade scheduled for tonight was abandoned for the reason that charges were made by the opposition that it would be a desecration of the Sabbath. However, a mass meeting was held at a local theater and speakers presented arguments why San Diego's saloons should not be put out of business.

The saloon men claim they will win at the polls by from 1000 to 2000, while the Prohibitionists say their majority will be overwhelming.

POSTAL RECEIPTS INCREASE.

Stamp sales at the postoffice during the month of March aggregated $10,400.35. Receipts from other sources were $102.61, making a total of $10,502.96. This is an increase over March, 1908, of $1451.58. One of the causes of this is the vast amount of literature sent through the mails by the campaign managers of the respective parties figuring in Tuesday's election.

ACTRESS BUYS HOME SITE.

Lillian Russell, while on an automobile tour of the city and environs, yesterday, was shown the beauties of Point Loma. The actress became so captivated with the location that she at once arranged for the purchase of a site and announced that she would build a magnificent home there to enjoy life when her stage career terminates.

RARE JELLYFISH.

The biological station at La Jolla has been presented with a rare and beautiful specimen of the jellyfish, which was recently caught at Long Beach. Biologists say it is a species entirely unknown here. The "bell" portion is of octagon shape, of pure white color, except ribs of deep purple shaded to lavender. Unfortunately the specimen can be seen only during the time it can be kept alive, as the station has no means by which it can be preserved.

BABY FALLS TWO STORIES.

Kelly, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hemming of La Jolla, yesterday fell from the second-story window of their home without receiving as much as a scratch. The child was left alone and, unlatching the screen, leaned out of the window and tumbled to the hard ground below. The mother was attracted by his screams and expected to find him seriously injured.

BOARD NAMES OFFICERS.

Public Works Body Is Organized in Santa Barbara—City Engineer Retained.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA BARBARA, April 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The newly-elected Board of Public Works organized last night, with Neal Callahan as president. The other commissioners are George Gregson and George Rutherford. Jas. Cornwall was appointed secretary of the department. Street Superintendent Bodie was elected foreman, and City Engineed Batty is retained. The new board will have a great mass of street and other improvement work to do.

Word was received here today of the death at the ranch San Ysidro of Dr. H. C. Potter, founder and builder of the Pere Marquette Railroad.

TUSTIN.

TUSTIN, April 4.—At the school election on Friday, E. M. Nealley, a member of the County Board of Education, was elected a trustee of the district.

The San Joaquin Fruit Company has its entire ranch of 1000 acres planted to trees. This year about 600 acres between rows will be planted to lima beans.

The ranchers in this vicinity are very busy just now. Teams are at a premium, the work of preparing the ground for bean planting being at its height. On the Irvine ranch about 16,000 acres will go to beans.

A BAPTIST ELDER

Restored to Health by Vinol

"I was run down and weak from indigestion and general debility, also suffered from vertigo. I saw a cod liver preparation called Vinol advertised and decided to give it a trial, and the results were most gratifying. After taking two bottles I regained my strength and am now feeling unusually well." Henry Cunningham, Elder Baptist Church, Kingston, N. C.

Vinol is not a patent medicine—but a preparation composed of the medicinal elements of cods' livers, combined with a tonic iron and wine. Vinol creates a hearty appetite, tones up the organs of digestion and makes rich, red blood. In this natural manner, Vinol creates strength for the run-down, overworked and debilitated, and for delicate children and old people. For chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis Vinol is unexcelled.

All such persons in this vicinity are asked to try Vinol on our offer to refund their money if it fails to give satisfaction.

THE CITY IN BRIEF

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

Cort Leaves.

John Cort, the northwestern theatrical magnate, left on Saturday, with his party, for Salt Lake City. Mr. Cort's stay here was marked by several conferences looking toward enlarged business next year. He controls the bookings of the Los Angeles and Hamburger's Majestic theaters.

Address at Y.M.C.A.

Prof. P. P. Bilhorn of Chicago, author of several hymns and a sweet singer, spoke at the Y.M.C.A. men's meeting, yesterday afternoon. His subject was: "Who Shall be Stoned, the Man or the Woman?" The meeting was preceded by a social hour in the lobby.

Fiske Gets Auditorium.

According to a deal concluded Saturday by Fielding J. Stilson, Harrison Grey Fiske has secured the Auditorium for the week of June 14, for the use of his wife, Minnie Maddern Fiske. Mrs. Fiske and her company will present her new play of New York City slum life, "Salvation Nell."

Head Woodman Coming.

I. I. Boak, head consul, Woodmen of the World, will arrive in Los Angeles this afternoon. He will be met by a delegation of local Woodmen and escorted to his hotel. This evening he will deliver an address at a public meeting in Blanchard Hall. This is open to all men who are interested in the order, whether members or not. An attractive musical and vaudeville programme has been prepared.

Broadhurst Going East.

George Broadhurst, the dramatist, will go East this week. He has spent several months in Southern California, working upon his latest play, "The Dollar-Mark," and several others for future production. He will go to New York City to have a conference with W. A. Brady regarding new metropolitan productions next fall. In contemporary prominence and largeness of royalty income, Mr. Broadhurst is one of the foremost play-makers of the world.

Stanton Improving.

Speaker Stanton, who has been ill since the adjournment of the Legislature nearly two weeks ago and who has been at the California Hospital for several days, was reported much improved yesterday, though it is possible that his physician will not permit him to resume his business activities for another week. He suffers principally from fatigue, the result of his ardhous labors at Sacramento, added to which is a muscular heart trouble that makes it unwise for him at present to leave his room.

Still Is Missing.

No clew to the whereabouts of Mrs. Nanette French, who disappeared from her apartments at No. 1223 South Hill street, Friday night, has been obtained, and her mother, with whom she lived, is almost prostrated. Howard Van Velsir, a brother of Mrs. French has been summoned from the northern part of the State, and is expected here today to assist in the search for the missing woman. Mrs. French had been in ill health and her relatives fear she may have harmed herself.

Persian Poetry.

Persian philosophy will be in order at Symphony Hall tonight, when Dr. Norton J. F. Hazeldine will give an address before the monthly meeting of the Southern California Academy of Sciences. He has chosen as his subject the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyan and will add some observations on the Avenda of the Zends. This latter is the Persian Bible and furnished much of the inspiration for the "Rubaiyat" and contemporaneous works. Dr. Hazeldine is an adept in Persian and other Oriental tongues and will give a literal translation and scientific explanation of the great poem.

ATTRACTIVE INFORMATION.

Handsome Pamphlet Issued by Railroad Tells Much of Interest to Visiting Elks.

An unusually attractive purple and green illustrated folder for members of the B.P.O.E., who will meet in Los Angeles next July, is being distributed by the passenger department of the Denver & Rio Grande. The eight-page booklet contains condensed information of everything likely to be of interest to a stranger in Los Angeles, and gives the complete programme for the entertainment of the visitors.

The railroad is offering special rates and has made it possible to take in the Alaska-Pacific Yukon Exposition. Lists of hotels, car lines to suburban points and other matters of interest are included in this attractive pamphlet. It also contains many pictures and maps in illustration of this beautiful city and the surrounding country.

BREVITIES.

Remember the slogan: "Buy and Boost Home Products." For daily references, see page 17, of The Times, containing list of wide-awake manufacturers, under the heading "Made in Southern California." You will find there are manufacturers of necessities and luxuries here—manufacturers of things to eat and drink—things for the home, the factory, the office and the farm. Buy them! Try them! There are none better. Buy and Boost, and keep your money at home where it will do you and yours the most good!

Times' Cook Book No. 2 ready today, and until the edition is exhausted, is placed on sale the largest, most elaborate and comprehensive cook book of the series issued by The Times. The 318 recipes for hot Spanish and Mexican dishes and the hygienic department are big features of the publication. The recipes, brought out by The Times' prize cooking contest, are generally from Southern California housewives and noted chefs. Price 25 cents; by mail 5 cents additional. MEN OF TRADE ASK FOR LINE.

Desire Espee to Build from Pearce to Douglas.

Agree to Help Make It of Mutual Benefit.

Steel Rails Reaching to Many New Localities.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)

PHOENIX (Ariz.) April 4.—The people of Douglas have sent a petition, with about 200 signatures of business men to Col. Epes Randolph at Tucson, asking him to forward if possible the extension of the Southern Pacific from Pearce to Douglas, the petitioners agreeing to do all in their power to make the extension one of mutual benefit. It is understood that this committee is perfectly willing to take up the work of securing suitable station grounds and rights of way wherever needed, as it is acknowledged that the entrance of the Southern Pacific into Southern Cochise county will give railroad competition and better service, even though railroad rates are not reduced. Although a number of men and teams have been taken from the construction work between Pearce and Courtland and sent to Globe, work is being prosecuted with energy toward the new copper camp, to which the grading has nearly been completed.

Around south of Courtland is to be a spur to the old copper camp of Gleeson, on which some work has been done already. Some understanding appears to have been reached between the Southern Pacific and the El Paso and Southwestern system and fear is expressed at Douglas that the Southern Pacific will make connection with its Yaqui River Valley line by way of the new Phelps-Dodge road being built from Douglas to Courtland and from Douglas southward over the Nacozari road of the same company. This, it is believed, would fail to bring the desired competition, even though an additional railroad should be secured to the border city.

The Phelps-Dodge road, the Mexico and Colorado, is being pushed northward from Douglas and from now on a mile of track a day is to be laid.

Still another line is expected to be built to Douglas very soon, a road that will connect the city's Mexican suburb of Agua Prieta with Cananea. A survey for this road has been completed, a very favorable route having been found running around through the rich mineral district that lies northwest of Fronteras.

RE-BALLASTING MAIN LINE.

The Southern Pacific has commenced re-ballasting its main line and is making great improvements throughout Arizona. Clubhouses have been built for the railroad employés at Lordsburg, Tucson, Gila Bend and Yuma. The clubhouse at Gila Bend has just been completed. It is rather large and more elaborate than the others, owing to the slight accommodation offered at this point for the needs of the railroad men in the way of restaurants and lodging houses. The block system is being extended westward and towers are being erected over the Estrella hill between Maricopa and Gila Bend.

The management of the El Paso and Southwestern system has contracted for one million new ties which are to be laid over the entire 400 miles of the main line from Tucumcari, New Mexico, to Benson, Ariz. Old trackage is being re-ballasted, as well, with slag, much of it secured at the Copper Queen smelter at Douglas.

Among the notices of intention to build, called for by the late railroad tax exemption law passed by the Territorial Legislature, was one filed by M. P. Freeman, Albert Steinfield, George Kitt, Mose Drachman and William Sautelle of Tucson, who gave notice of their expectation to construct within the present year a railroad from Sahuarita station on the Twin Buttes Railroad, south of Tucson, to Calabasas, on the line of the New Mexico and Arizona railroad. This is a movement fostered by the Tucson Chamber of Commerce, looking toward the construction of a short-cut road by the Southern Pacific from their city to the Mexican border in the hope that such road may in future be used for the passage of traffic from Pacific Coast points into Western Mexico, saving a round-about and hilly climb by way of Benson. It is understood that the Southern Pacific people are more than willing to coöperate but that it was not deemed feasible to undertake construction of the line at present. The Twin Buttes road is a broad guage, connecting the city with a mining camp twenty-three miles to the southward. The entire distance between Nogales and Tucson is about seventy-five miles.

The Santa Fé system is behind a notice of intention to build from Bouse on the Arizona and California road, to Swansea, about twenty-five miles to the northward, where the Clara Consolidated company is erecting a smelting plant, which will urgently need better transportation facilities within a few months.

The Shannon-Arizona Railroad Company has been intending to build a line this year from its smelter below Clifton to the foot of the Metcalf Incline in Chase Creek Cañon, so the passage of the tax exemption act was in the nature of a much-appreciated gift, and one which has not been anticipated. The company has given notice that it will build a ten-mile narrow-gauge road.

INTO GILA VALLEY.

The Phoenix, Buckey and Arlington Railway Company is the style of a corporation which proposes to connect Phoenix with Arlington in the Gila Valley, fifty miles southwest of this city. It has been assumed that $750,000 will be required for the construction work, and it is believed that this amount can be raised. George M. Hahn of Phoenix is president of the corporation, and Selim Michelsen, secretary. If the road be built, it would be under Southern Pacific auspices and with the intention of turning it over to that company, possibly as a link in the new system contemplated by the Southern Pacific between Yuma and Lordsburg, through Phoenix.

Also claiming exemption, notices have been received by the Territorial Secretary that several interurban lines are projected in the Salt River Valley, mainly around Phoenix, including Scottsdale and Glendale in their route. Four notices were filed, also, by A. J. Chandler, three for lines around Mesa and one for a line from Phoenix to Mesa.

Three hundred men and one hundred teams are busy on the extension of the Gila Valley, Globe and Northern Railroad from Globe to Miami, to complete the work to the new copper camp in about three months. Globe is one of the most important freight centers of the Southwest. It is told that during March the freight receipts of the town were about 1000 carloads.

About April 16, Tucson will be abandoned as a terminal of the Sonora train, locally known as the "burro," or "Cannonball," which will thereafter start from Benson, connecting under the new order, with trains 7 and 8 on the main line.

The change of time of trains 7 and 8 will render necessary the running of two trains out from Maricopa to Phoenix over the branch Southern Pacific line. The second train will leave Phoenix about 10 o'clock a.m., and return about 3 o'clock p.m., connecting within that time with both 7 and 8, permitting passengers to make an almost continuous daylight journey between Phoenix and Tucson, and between Phoenix and Yuma, something that has not been known for years. About the same time, a railway postoffice will be established on the Maricopa and Phoenix Railroad, giving Phoenix city distribution of its incoming mail.

Yesterday Vice-President Corral of Mexico formally inaugurated traffic on that portion of the Southern Pacific West Coast line lately completed between Culiacan and Mazatlan, the day being the anniversary of the victory of the Mexican troops under Gen. Diaz at Puebla.

Charles Guthrie, for nearly thirty-three years an engine man for the Southern Pacific Railroad Company and an engineer on this division almost ever since the railroad came to Tucson, has purchased a farm near Santa Ana, to which he intends to retire at once.
